"Machine Gun" Kelly Confesses Kidnaping Millionaire Urschel

Abandons Plan to Fight Return to Oklahoma From Memphis.

Gang Leader Definitely Linked With Chicago Holdup Sept. 21.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 27 (AP). George ("Machine Gun") Kelly tonight confessed, officers said, to a part in the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma oil millionaire.

"You got me right on the Urschel kidnaping," Kelly was quoted by W. A. Rorer, Department of Justice agent, as saying tonight.

Kelly admitted the kidnaping, Rorer said, "but not the Chicago robbery or the Kansas City Union Station job."

Albert Bates was portrayed as the actual accomplice of Kelly in the Urschel kidnaping, according to additional details of Kelly's oral statement revealed tonight by a confidential source close to Department of Justice agents.

"Kelly told the Department of Justice agents that he and Bates were the ones who did the actual kidnaping and that they took Urschel to Paradise, Tex., and returned to Oklahoma City to collect the ransom," the informant said.

All of Ransom Split.

"Kelly indicated the degree of guilt of the others connected with the case and gave some idea of the disposition of the ransom money."

The desperado's decision to return voluntarily followed a reputed confession by his first wife's brother, Langford Ramsey, an attorney, that he went to a farm near Coleman, Texas, to try and locate some of the $200,000 money paid for Urschel's release.

A removal order, empowering Department of Justice agents to take Kelly and his wife back to Oklahoma City was obtained late today from United States District Judge Harry B. Anderson at Jackson, Tenn.

The Kellys at first said they would fight extradition, but early tonight announced they would go back peaceably.

Federal agents still closely guarded their plans for removal of the pair to Oklahoma.

Rorer would add nothing to the brief quotations from Kelly, refusing to say whether a more detailed statement had been obtained.

Kelly's alleged statement on the Chicago robbery referred to the holdup of Federal Reserve Bank messengers and the slaying of a policeman on the night of September 21. His reference to the "Kansas City Union Station job" was to the machine-gun slaying of four officers and Frank Nash, notorious criminal, whom the officers had in custody.

Police forces had linked Kelly's name with both slayings.

Chicago Killing Link.

John M. Keith, Federal agent from Chicago, confirmed the confession as reported by Rorer and by implication connected Kelly with the Chicago holdup.

"The Kellys were in a bad jam

Ship Owners' Agent Names Cone Sponsor

Spoke for $20,000,000 Subsidies With Board Auspices, She Says.

A paid employe of subsidized merchant marine interests yesterday told a Senate investigating committee that Chairman H. I. Cone of the Shipping Board had authorized her to speak "under auspices of the Shipping Board" in behalf of the $20,000,000 annual subsidies.

"Yes. I told him I was employed by the American Steamship Owners Association. He would not have permitted me to speak unless I was," she told the special committee under the constant battering of questions driven home by Chairman Black.

Draws $200 Per Month.

The witness was Mrs. Clara W. McQuown, of the Kennedy-Warren Apartments. A former school teacher with graying hair, she told the committee in a tremulous voice she draws $200 a month from the association for "telling the truth about the American merchant marine."

Mrs. McQuown, however, said she has not told the clubwomen before whom she speaks about the cost of individual mail subsidy contracts "because they are not interested in that," but merely has mentioned the entire subsidy is "less than $20,000,000 a year more than it would cost to transport mail on a poundage basis."

Neither, she said, has she mentioned in any of her speeches that she is an employe of the American Steamship Owners Association.

Senator Black, however, pointed out in figures he introduced into the record that one of the steamship concerns interested in her association annually has drawn Federal subsidies which exceed the price it paid for 18 ships purchased from the Shipping Board.

Black Gives Figures.

This is the Export Steamship Co., which, he said, received $1,291,187 in 1929 and $1,498,430 in the fiscal years of 1932 and 1933 through mail transporting contracts negotiated during the Hoover administration.

These subsidies, he said, gave the company $86,000 for every pound of mail carried in 1929, and $125,820 for 9 pounds carried on the company's Branch A ships between July, 1931, and June, 1933.

The 18 ships which were used in these services, Henry Heberman, Export president, testified, were purchased from the Shipping Board for $1,171,431 after the board had spent $1,825,718 repairing them.

The cheap price was attributed to Bascomb Slemp, former repre-

Two Senators Visit Moscow

McAdoo, Reynolds Deny They Are on Official Mission.

Moscow, Sept. 27 (AP).—Senators W. G. McAdoo, of California, and R. R. Reynolds, of North Carolina, have come to Moscow and taken suites in the hotel where Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh are guests.

McAdoo flew in from Berlin last night, and Reynolds, accompanied by his wife, came by train from Leningrad. Both declared their visits were purely personal and only of brief duration, deprecating the suggestion they were on an official or semiofficial mission.

The senators were among 60 guests at a banquet given at the hotel tonight in honor of the Lindberghs.

During the day the colonel and his wife inspected the Soviet Air Institute, including the experimental factory where they saw a huge eight-motored hydroplane under construction.

The couple then was taken on a tour of the Kremlin. Afterward the colonel demonstrated the mechanics and the equipment of his own plane to interested Soviet air officials.

15 Hurt as Police Quell Dublin Riot

Dublin, Sept 27 (U.P.).—Fifteen persons were taken to hospitals today and many others suffered minor injuries in a street battle involving hundreds of persons at a Republican demonstration protesting arrest of three Republicans recently when they raided an English brewery here.

The police charged with their clubs when the crowd smashed windows in the brewery.

Change in Dollar Value Held Remote

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—Senator Robert J. Bulkley (Democrat), Ohio, who sailed for Europe today, predicted that there would be no immediate change in the dollar value.

"I do not look for any marked change in currency in the near future," he said.

Senator Bulkley, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, is going abroad to study currency matters and will spend about three weeks in informal conversations with London and Paris financial experts.

4 Torch Thieves Steal 'Big Way;' Take Locomotive

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 27 (AP). Police didn't bother to search the pockets of a man and three youths arrested here on theft charges, for they were accused of stealing a 40-ton locomotive, a steam shovel and some railroad tracks.

State police, who arrested the four, accused them of cutting up their loot with an acetylene torch in a gravel pit, where they found the abandoned equipment, and selling it piecemeal as junk. The owners valued it at $10,000.

Shoot to Kill Order Is Issued In Felon Hunt

200 Indiana State Troops Join Search for Ten in Prison Break.

Michigan City, Ind., Sept. 27 (AP). Two hundred National Guardsmen were mobilized in Indiana's "war zone" tonight to assist hundreds of police and citizens in hunting down 10 escaped killers and robbers from the State penitentiary.

They were sent by automobile with machine guns, rifles, and gas bombs into a region near Chesterton, Ind., 25 miles to the southeast, where five of the desperadoes last were seen. With the convicts, or perhaps slain, was Sheriff Charles Neel, kidnaped by them as they fled the prison here.

There was an atmosphere of tensity at the prison. Every one of the 2,000 inmates crowded within the walls was being questioned about the evidently long-plotted break.

Searched for Weapons.

A cell-by-cell search for weapons was carried out. The vigil of guards was reported doubled over the corridors through which the escaping prisoners walked yesterday, carrying bundles of shirts from the prison shop concealing pistols, knives and clubs, in their hands.

Finley P. Carson, clerk shot in the hip and abdomen when he failed to obey an order promptly, was reported in danger of death.

A possible murder charge in the event Carson died, with charges of kidnaping Neel and two other motorists whose automobiles were commandeered, prison officials said, probably would make the escaped convicts doubly dangerous. Searchers were advised to "shoot to kill."

The search centered about a

Japan Will Keep U. S. Navy Pace

San Francisco, Sept. 27 (AP).—Count Y. Yanagishawa, former chairman of the budget committee of the Japanese House of Peers, declared today if the United States increases her navy "Japan will be forced to do likewise, to maintain the equilibrium of maritime power in the Pacific."

The Count arrived here on the Asama Maru from Yokohama, on his way to Mexico, D. F., to attend the twenty-fourth session of the international conference on statistics.

"Japan faces the largest budget in her history," he told interviewers through an interpreter. "I'm afraid I shall have to support passage of it."

Hitler Aid Fights Ban Upon Jews

Decree Says Disorders Will Continue Unless Boycott Is Lifted.

Rhineland Agitators Face Arrest; Nazi Attitude Remains in Doubt.

(Copyright, 1933, by United Press.)

Berlin, Sept. 27 (U.P.).—Intimation that the anti-Jewish boycott in Germany might be partially lifted was seen today in a ruling by the ministry of economics that discrimination between Aryan and non-Aryan business firms was "insupportable."

The ruling, opposed to these teachings of the Hitlerite creed designed to exterminate Jews as a control influence in the Reich, said:

"Such discrimination, with the purpose of boycotting non-Aryan firms, inevitably must lead to disturbances. Such a program of economic reconstruction will react unfavorably on the labor market. There is no grounds for procedure against any firm as long as the proprietor does not violate the law or the mechants' code of honor.

Nazi Groups Split.

The decree, issued by Economics Minister Schmitt, while in a certain measure expressing his personal convictions, was not inharmonious with the views of an important faction of the Nazi party, in contrast with those who contend Jews must be "rooted out" of economic and professional life.

Many quarters, however, were skeptical of the extent to which his views might be put into practice and what weight they would carry among small Nazi retailers, who insist Jewish competition must be eliminated.

The Schmitt ruling was followed significantly by a statement by the Nazi labor administration in the Rhineland, which threatened police measures unless agitation for a boycott of department stores ceased immediately.

Sweeping Changes Doubted.

Observers were inclined to feel the decree and the administrator's action were not fundamental changes in the Nazi party's anti-Jewish front, although a lessening of the pressure might be found expedient.

The move was seen primarily as evidence of the concern with which more conservative Nazis face the increasingly radical demands of certain subordinates, especially the outcrying against large department stores which bear a Jewish stigma despite the fact not all are Jewish owned.

Fugitive Burns Asks Clemency

Chain-Gang Writer, Wanted in Georgia, Requests Free Man's Status.

Atlanta, Sept. 27 (AP).—Robert Elliott Burns, author and notorious will o' the wisp of the Georgia chain gang, has filed an appeal with Gov. Eugene Talmadge, asking clemency.

Burns, convicted in March, 1922, in Atlanta, of robbery, and sentenced to 6 to 10 years, escaped, and in 1929, was apprehended in Chicago, where he was a magazine publisher, and returned to Georgia as a fugitive.

He later escaped again and was located in New Jersey, whose governor refused to send him back to Georgia, after hearing charges of abusive treatment on the chain gangs in this State.

The petition specifies that clemency is "not desired for the purpose of exploitation" but that "applicant respectfully asserts that the present status of his case is a great hindrance and drawback to him and he will, if clemency is granted, do his best in future years to fully merit the consideration herein sought."

Opera Singer Gets Divorce.

Chicago, Sept. 27 (AP).—Olga Kargau, opera singer, was granted a divorce today from Edward Schwartz, president of the Grand Rapids Furniture Co. She charged desertion.

Roosevelt Rule Flayed By Watson

Chicago Speech Viewed as Opening Gun in 1936 Campaign.

Demands G. O. P. Rally to New Battle for U. S. Principles.

Chicago, Sept. 27 (AP).—Former Senator James E. Watson (Republican), Indiana, today launched a barrage of criticism against the Roosevelt administration accusing it of failure to live up to campaign promises and called upon Republicans to break what he termed a self-imposed silence.

His address was regarded by listeners at the Hamilton Club rally of local Republicans as sounding the G. O. P. keynote for the coming congressional races and possibly as marking Watson as presidential timber for the 1936 campaign.

At the meeting, J. W. Maloney, chairman of the political action committee of the club, urged Indiana and Illinois to unite behind Watson in 1936. Watson would not discuss the proposal.

Assails Administration.

Watson blamed the administration for failure to reduce Government costs, to maintain a stable currency, and to prevent undermining of Government credit.

He assailed the administration's agricultural relief plans in the form of crop plowing and live stock destruction as going far beyond Republican proposals which he said were criticized strongly a year ago.

Watson condemned strongly the reported introduction of NRA primers into the schools and assailed what he termed threats of coercion through the boycott method in the recovery administration drive.

The country, he said, was threatened with fiat money, mounting Government costs, dislocation of economic laws and an uncertain credit.

The Rooseveltian school has turned protectionist insofar as the tariff was concerned, he said, and added that not an item in the Smoot-Hawley tariff has been revised.

For two hours and a half, the Indiana leader spoke, making a plea for a "back to the Constitution" movement.

Pleads for Constitution.

"The mere fact," he said, "that a world-wide depression has upset the whole earth, changed all financial, commercial and economic conditions, and produced governmental revolutions everywhere—the fact, stern and forbidding as it is, should not be permitted to drive us away from those basic realities that underlie our Government, the operation of which is responsible for the marvelous growth of this Republic and that still must constitute the beacon light to lead us on to greater heights of industry, prosperity and liberty."

"I believe the Republican party should affirm its determination to stand by the Constitution of the United States, its fundamental principles to be preserved unaltered but to be applied to changing conditions so as to promote the equality of men in America, the basic thought underlying this instrument.

"We are said to have entered the last war to make the world safe for democracy," Watson continued, "yet democracy was never less secure anywhere in the world than at the present time.

"This should teach us to cling to a representative republic such as our fathers founded and not bend our efforts toward making our Government a pure democracy, every effort toward which has but weakened its cardinal principles."

Time to Break Silence.

Watson said the wealth of the country "can not be wholly redistributed by taxation processes."

"We are opposed," said Watson, "to regimenting every young man entering active life, putting him in a strait-jacket, giving him an opportunity to be so much and no more."

Opening his address Watson said the time had come for Republicans to break a silence he said was self-imposed because of a reluctance to impede the national administration.

"We feel that we have a right to reassert our views on the subject of sound money and to criticize him (President Roosevelt) for having abandoned a time-honored American policy."

Dollar Value Revision By U. S. Is Held Near; Gold Hoarder Indicted

Wealthy Lawyer Named After He Files Suit to Test Legality.

200 Others Will Face Swift Prosecution by Treasury.

Upward of 200 hoarders of large amounts of gold, who have defied the President's executive orders demanding its return, learned yesterday that long promised prosecutions are no empty threat.

An indictment returned yesterday in New York against Frederick Barber Campbell, lawyer and director in American and British insurance concerns, marks opening of the prosecutions, according to Treasury and Department of Justice authorities.

The gold hoarders who snapped their fingers at the antihoarding orders, assuming they are unconstitutional because allegedly confiscatory, may be in for a surprise. The indictment returned by the New York grand jury against Campbell adroitly dodges the broad constitutional questions.

Basis of Indictment.

It is based, primarily, on the ground that Campbell failed to comply with Treasury regulations requiring all holders of large amounts of gold to file returns showing amounts in their possession.

Astute Federal lawyers hazarded the opinion last night the hoarders would have difficulty invalidating, on constitutional grounds or any others, legality of the Executive orders requiring the returns to be made.

Even if the Executive orders are vulnerable in requiring surrender of gold—which neither the Treasury nor Justice Department legalists admit—they are legally puncture proof in requiring returns to be filed, so the same authorities reason.

It is a matter of comparative indifference to the Federal prosecutors whether they jail the defiant horders for failure to file a return or for failure to disgorge their gold. The maximum penalty is 10 years in prison and $10,000 fine.

Campbell Case First.

Campbell was singled out to make the first test because, in view of the Treasury, his is a conspicuous case. The indictment against him charged him with hoarding $200,574.34 of gold.

Attorney General Cummings has a list of about 200 alleged horders of large sums of gold. The list, obtained by the Treasury from reserve bank members throughout the country, was turned over to the Justice Department in June.

Since the deadline for voluntary surrender of gold, on March 28, Government officials have been threatening prosecutions or publication of the names of the horders, or both. Nothing happened, however, until yesterday. In the meantime, the shrewder legal lights of the Treasury and Justice Departments had the executive orders amended to require filing of returns.

That made it possible to prosecute without facing the question of constitutionality of the law and the executive orders under it compeling surrender of property. Critics of the executive orders, like former Senator Charles S. Thomas, of Colorado, and Senator Borah, of Idaho, insisted the Government could not take away gold from its possessors, and that to do so violated constitutional guarantees

Debt Envoys Sail for U. S.

British Commission Is to Discuss Revision Proposals.

Southampton, England, Sept. 27 (AP).—Three British officials, including Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, government economic adviser, sailed today for America, to discuss war debts with President Roosevelt.

Sir Frederick declared he was visiting America "to observe the feeling toward the question of the war debts.

"And I expect," he added, "I shall be presented with an opportunity of discussing the position with President Roosevelt, although he is engaged with internal problems."

The other members of the party were Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador to America, and T. K. Bewley, treasury official, who has been attached to the Washington embassy.

Johnson, Recovered, Resumes NRA Helm

Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, is expected back at his desk in the Commerce Building today after a three-day convalescence from a minor operation at the Walter Reed Hospital.

At the suggestion of his physicians he remained an extra day at the hospital for a complete rest and recovery, although he has been receiving many callers. NRA conferences have gone on as usual at the administrator's bedside.

Would Quit Post

LEO A. ROVER, who has asked to be relieved from his post as United States attorney.

Many Seeking Post as Rover Asks to Quit

Van Doren, Cusick and Others Mentioned to Succeed Prosecutor.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover yesterday served notice on administration officials he would like to be relieved immediately from office.

Action of Mr. Rover prompted reports that Attorney General Cummings would name a new District attorney today.

Lucien H. Van Doren, who is a Marylander but who has been practicing in Washington for several years was named in unofficial political circles as Mr. Rover's successor.

Mr. Van Doren is known to have the support of Assistant Attorney General Stanley, who has had charge of going over the lists of candidates for the various posts coming under the Attorney General. He also is said to have the support of other Maryland Democratic leaders.

District Democratic organization leaders have urged the appointment of Ralph A. Cusick, a native of Washington, who has practiced law here. Mr. Cusick has been active in the District Democratic organization and was head of the Roosevelt war veterans' club in the last campaign.

Several others have been mentioned for the post, including John Bramhall, and Levi David. Because of the importance of the post, the President has been urged to draft a nationally-known lawyer.

Justice department officials denied knowledge of the imminence of appointment of the new District Attorney.

Mr. Rover's term expired several months ago. Yesterday he engaged a suite of offices in the Colorado Building, preparatory to entering private practice.

Gasoline Tax Rebate Tested

Court Grants Hearing on Constitutionality of Virginia Law.

Richmond, Sept. 27 (AP).—The constitutionality of the gasoline tax rebate measure, passed by the recent special session of the General Assembly for the benefit of Arlington and Fairfax County points competing with the District of Columbia, was attacked in Richmond Circuit Court today.

Judge Gunn, acting on a petition from northern Virginia gasoline dealers, ordered the division of motor vehicles director to show cause October 10 why he should not be enjoined and restrained from making any refund.

A rebate of 2 cents a gallon to stations nearest Washington and 1 cent to those within a 10-mile radius, is allowed by the new law.

The petition alleges the act contravenes the Virginia Constitution provision that "all taxes, whether State, local or municipal, shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects within the territorial limits of the authority levying the tax, and shall be levied and collected under general law."

Penny Paid for Rats In Bubonic Battle

Mukden, Manchuria, Sept. 27 (AP).—In an effort to stop the spread of the bubonic plague, raging for days in this area, the government today offered a penny each for rats, carriers of the disease.

In the Nungan district 281 persons have died. The Chinese Eastern Railway administration appropriated 50,000 gold dollars to fight the epidemic.

Treasury Officials Talk With Rogers; Secrecy Shrouds Moves.

Senators Prepare Plans for Inflation Stand by Congress.

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt's financial handy men bent to a close study of the monetary outlook with Dr. James H. Rogers, of Yale, yesterday, giving rise to numerous reports some change involving the dollar's purchasing power was in early prospect.

Rogers, one of several close economic advisors of the Chief Executive, maintained effective silence.

Meanwhile, inflation advocates quietly planed a campaign in the next Congress for monetary expansion by legislative edict unless President Rosevelt's moves before the January session satisfy them.

Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, leading inflation advocate, said "the depression baby is on the doorstep of the money changers."

Treasury Officials Confer.

Rogers conferred with Dean Acheson, Acting Secretary of the Treasury; Budget Director Douglas, and other fiscal agents of the President.

Despite his silence, Treasury officials had on their desks copies of various gold regulations for study. There were several impromptu conferences among higher departmental officials.

Some persons familiar with the situation expected Mr. Roosevelt to announce a monetary policy this week.

Some of his economic advisers have been studying the commodity dollars plan, under which the monetary unit would have a presumably constant purchasing power, with its buying ability lowered by reducing the gold content or increased by adding to it. Price trends as shown by commodity indices would govern the variation of the gold content of such a dollar.

Thomas Halts Campaign.

Thomas, announcing several groups working with him for inflation had decided to suspend their campaign for the moment to permit trial of the credit expansion program proposed by President Roosevelt, said he eagerly awaited pronouncement by the Chief Executive of his monetary program.

Members of the Senate and House, meantime, privately discussed tentative plans for insisting upon inflation by Congress at the session opening in January if they consider it necessary.

Senator McAdoo (Democrat), California, war-time Secretary of the Treasury, was said to be ready to press for inflation. He is now in Europe.

One prominent senatorial supporter of the administration, a member of the Banking and Finance Committee, privately said, "I think Congress has only itself to blame for the condition in which we now find ourselves."

Senator Scores Bankers.

"The issuance of Treasury notes is needed imperatively to put over successfully the Agricultural Adjustment Administration and the National Recovery Act," this senator added. "The banking interests can't see that; they are bound by dogmas and prejudice."

Thomas predicted the credit expansion program would fail and that President Roosevelt would be forced to adopt inf[illegible]

Superintends Planting of Trees on Estate.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 27.—President Roosevelt will find time during his brief stay at the home of his mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, to superintend the planting of about 10 acres of young trees on his own land, across the road from his mother's farm.

The President owns 400 acres of land east of his mother's place. For a number of years a portion of his farm has been used by New York State forestry officials as a site for experiments in replanting, and the President is looking forward to what he calls the spring planting.

Representatives of the State Forestry Division are expected here within the next few days to see Mr. Roosevelt on the subject of promoting reforestation in the Empire State.

U. S. to Back Roads Buying Locomotives

President Indicates He Wants Steel Trade Further Aided.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 27.—President Roosevelt tonight definitely indicated that he anticipates the purchase of locomotives and other equipment by the railroads through advances from the public works fund as an addition to the credit expansion program.

This move to further sustain employment in the steel industry during the winter months follows closely the President's announced intention to bring the carriers into the market for the purchase of approximately 700,000 tons of rails.

Executives of the leading steel companies already have agreed with the President that such business as is available from the railroads will be the object of real competitive bids.

Wants Cheaper Steel.

The steel magnates during the past year have reduced the price of steel rails from $43 to $40 per ton, but it is expected that this figure will be further reduced, due to the fact that the administration believes that the offer of 700,000 tons of business justifies a reduced price. Even at reduced rates this will require the expenditure of at least $20,000,000.

Mr. Roosevelt's consideration of additional strengthening of the railroad and steel business points to the adoption of a course which will adhere strictly to the consolidation of the country's potential credit forces.

In connection with his general program of easing the credit situation it was understood the President is working with Secretary Woodin toward early action on the release of billions of dollars now tied up in closed banks.

The President's effort to promote business activities between railroads and the steel industry is considered a powerful means of furthering a program of quick credit expansion and at the same time increasing employment in the capital industries, which have lagged behind retail trade.

Easier Credits Sought.

With the announcement that credit expansion is being urged upon the major industries, Mr. Roosevelt appeared to indicate that he is still pursuing steadfastly his original program of easier credits rather than to resort to monetary inflation.

Several months ago the President decided upon a credit expansion program involving five separate phases thus far. They are, in the order of their development:

Purchase of Government securities through open market operations of Federal Reserve banks, proceeding at the rate of $30,000,000 or more per week.

Advances to farmers under the processing tax law.

Purchase of preferred stock in banks by the R. F. C.

Expenditure of $75,000 000 for the purchase of farm surpluses for relief of the destitute.

The offer of money to private industry by the R. F. C. through banks and mortgage companies to meet pay rolls and other business requirements in cases where credit is unavailable at banks.

sentative from Virginia, who, after he had resigned as Secretary to President Coolidge, Heberman said, asked a $50,000 lawyer's fee for services in connection with hammering down the Shipping Board's asking price by $1 a ton Heberman gave him only $15,000.

Important Disclosures.

Earlier another disclosure which Chairman Black considered important was drawn from another witness.

Mrs. Mina G. Irvine, secretary to T. V. O'Connor, Shipping Board chairman during the Hoover administration, testified O'Connor and D. A. Kelly, of the Clyde-Mallory Steamship Co., had "pooled a little money to buy and sell lots" in the Florida land boom. Kelly previously had been employed by the Government-owned Merchant Fleet Corporation.

Spoke Here Before D. A. R.

The speech which Chairman Cone approved, Mrs. McQuown said, was made here in April before the Daughters of the American Revolution, and that it was printed and distributed with a notation at the top, "Given under auspices of the Shipping Board." Furthermore, she said, the program given out at the meeting at which she spoke listed her as a Shipping Board speaker.

"Why didn't you say on the program that you were speaking both 'under auspices of the Shipping Board and as an employe of the American Steamship Owners Association?'" demanded King.

"Why should I say that when Miss Amelia Earhart, who also was on the program, did not say she was an official of the American Airways Association, or Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, another speaker, did not note that she was minister-designate to Denmark?"

"Did you ever tell your audiences that some of the steamship companies were paying $125,000 salaries from their subsidies?" Senator Black asked.

"I have told them some things were not as I liked them," Mrs. McQuown replied.

She could not recall, in what speech she had voiced her disapproval.

The committee will recess until Friday, when it plans to subpoena R. J. Baker, secretary and treasurer of the American Steamship Owners' Association, from whom Mrs. McQuown said she has received directions.

against seizure of property without due process of law or without "just compensation."

It also made it possible to make good on threats of prosecution, which were beginning to seem empty. As far back as March the Government warned it would prosecute. Periodically since then both Treasury and Justice Department have been renewing the threats.

The Justice Department has not decided to ask for indictment of all alleged offenders at once or await outcome of the Campbell test case.

Campbell beat the Government into court by filing his own suit first. He entered suit yesterday against the Chase National Bank to compel that institution to turn back to him 27 bars of gold bullion which he said he had entrusted to it as custodian for hire.

Campbell challenged constitutionality of the President's executive orders of April 5 to 20 and of August 2. He contended nothing in the orders made illegal return of gold entrusted to a custodian, but that if "the executive orders do prevent and make illegal the return of such bullion they are without any authority in law whatever and in violation of the complainant's rights, privileges and immunities under the Constitution and laws of the United States."

Marine Unit To Be Trained On Wyoming

27 Officers and 514 Men to Embark Monday at Norfolk.

A battalion of Marines on duty at Quantico, Va., is to be given a course of training on board the U. S. S. Wyoming beginning Monday, it was announced yesterday at the Navy Department.

The Wyoming returns to Annapolis today from the midshipman's annual cruise. It will proceed at once to the Norfolk Navy Yard, where it will base while training the Marines. While operating in the Norfolk area, the Wyoming will have its machinery overhauled.

Naval officials made it clear yesterday that the embarkation of the Marines has no connection with the present Cuban situation. A large number of the Marines are recruits and are to be trained in a manner similar to the battalions which made cruises last year on the U. S. S. Arkansas and the Wyoming.

The battalion to embark Monday on the Wyoming consists of 27 officers and 514 enlisted men under the command of Lieut. Col. John Potts, of Alexandria, Va. Maj. Clifton B. Cates, of Knoxville, Tenn., is the battalion's executive officer.

Groups Battle On Aluminum Codes Today

Leading Firms of Nation Split Over Price "Slashing."

Representatives of the Nation's leading aluminum manufacturing and fabricating companies will attend a hearing before Deputy Administrator Philip C. Kemp in the grand ballroom of the Willard Hotel this morning, to draft a code of fair competition for that industry.

As spokesmen for five groups filed notice at NRA headquarters by noon yesterday of their intention to appear as objectors to various provisions of the three tentative codes under consideration, a lengthy and possibly bitter fight was anticipated.

Discussion at today's hearing will center about a basic code submitted by the Association of Manufacturers in the Aluminum Industry, representing 95 per cent of the couptry's producers and fabricators.

Hearings to Last Days.

The other proposed codes will be discussed before the hearings, expected to occupy several days, are adjourned.

Sitting with Kemp in a supervisory capacity at this morning's session will be Dr. Edwin C. Eckel, Geological Survey, representing the Labor Advisory Board; G. M. Tisdale, Consumers' Advisory Board; James W. Hook, president of the Geometric Tool Co., New Haven, Conn., for the Industrial Advisory Board; George A. McNulty, legal division of the NRA, and Arthur Notman, NRA planning and research division.

The four representatives of the Association of Manufacturers in the Aluminum Industry will be Donald McDonald, secretary of the association; I. W. Wilson and Winthrop C. Neilson, vice presidents of the Aluminum Co. of America, and Harry W. Holt, vice president of the Bohn Aluminum & Brass Corporation.

This group was in session last night completing a general brief on behalf of the association's code.

Foes Prepare Battle.

Principal opposition to this code will come from three units which have joined to present a code of their own for the aluminum fabricating industry.

Their spokesmen will be William A. Hastings, president of the Aluminum Products Corporation, LaGrange, Ill.; George D. Haskell, president of the Bausch Machine Tool Co., Springfield, Mass.; and George M. Carter, president of the Sheet Aluminum Corporation, Jackson, Mich. Oswald F. Schuette also will appear as an objector to the association's code.

Ship Brings $500,000 Fur.

St. Johns, N. F., Sept. 27 (AP). The steamer Nascopi arrived today from its annual cruise of the Hudson Bay and Arctic fur posts with a cargo of $500,000 in furs for transshipment to Canada.

Mary B. East Pleased as Ever Reporting Labor Conventions

Took Up Her Work When Queen Victoria Was Ruling Britain.

Mary Burke East was reporting labor conventions when Queen Victoria ruled the British Empire. Yesterday, with all the enthusiasm that precipitated her into the work in 1900, she came to Washington to report another.

Now it's the building trades. A few weeks ago she "covered" the Illinois State labor convention. And so on back to the turn of the century. Painters and boiler makers, steamfitters and lathers, sheet metal workers, roofers, tile setters—all demand Mrs. East for official reporter of their annual conventions.

She has worked at every American Federation of Labor meeting since 1904. Her coverage of the Illinois convention recently was the latest in an unbroken line which began in 1902.

Her Silver Anniversary.

The building trades department of the A. F. & L. was unorganized in 1907, and Mrs. East has been its official reporter since the first convention in 1908.

"Why, this is your silver anniversary with us!" exclaimed some one at yesterday's gathering.

"Yes, oh, yes; I hadn't thought of it," replied Mrs. East, broadening her smile as the greeter contributed an extra handshake to celebrate the event.

Before and after the opening session in the Washington Hotel rose room she was besieged by delegates. It was "Hello, Mr. Morrin," and "Glad to see you again, Mr. O'Neil."

Knows Them All by Name.

She knows them all by name, although she sees them no oftener than once a year. All, that is, except one or two new ones among the 55 delegates.

Mrs. East, who is a widow, said she can not begin to estimate how many conventions she has reported. Asked if 500 was conservative, she replied "Very."

She averages about 10 a year, although 1932 and 1933 were exceptionally dull. Bad times, and many of the trades had to cancel their conventions because of the expense.

She scarcely can wait for William Green to call the A. F. of L. to order next Monday.

"They all will be there," she beamed.

Kelly Admits Taking Part In Kidnaping

Abandons Plan to Fight Return to Oklahoma From Memphis.

before they were caught," he said earlier in the night. "They needed that buried money (which was dug up on a farm near Coleman, Tex., today), but they couldn't get to it. Kelly grew desperate.

"We know that he was in Chicago the night of September 21 when two messengers of the Federal Reserve Bank were held up and a Chicago policeman was killed.

"All the thieves got was two pouches of canceled checks. He left Chicago, we believe, immediately for Memphis and set up his contact with Ramsey in an attempt to get money."

Ramsey Tells Story.

Meanwhile, John M. Keith, Department of Justice operative, said Langford Ramsey, an attorney and brother of Kelly's first wife, had told in detail how he went to the farm of Cass Coleman near Coleman, Tex., and unsuccessfully tried to obtain $73,250 of the Urschel ransom buried beneath a tree in a cotton field. The money was Kelly's share of the loot, authorities said. The money was recovered on the Coleman farm late today.

Ramsey, Keith said, first planned to go to Texas with Kelly, but was persuaded to go alone. He took his 12-year-old girl who tipped officers to Kelly's whereabouts here—to the Coleman farm and asked for Kathryn's "white fox furs." The word "fur" was the code for money.

He also was to say "that party wants to see you" and instruct Coleman to drive to a point 5 miles west of McGregor, Tex., today and wait for Kelly. If Kelly did not come he was to repeat the trip nightly for a week.

Coleman Frightened.

Coleman, he said, was frightened and did not want to meet Kelly.

Advised that Federal agents were in the vicinity, Ramsey left for Oklahoma City, where he was to go to a rooming house and ask for "Mrs. E. L. Moore," and obtain clothes for the Kellys. He telegraphed Kelly from Fort Worth that he did not want to "bring home the sad tale" indicating he was afraid of being trailed back to Memphis.

He telegraphed Kelly for instructions at Gainesville, Tex., and was told to proceed, Federal agents intercepting both telegrams.

At Fort Worth, the Arnold girl told Ramsey she was tired of riding an automobile and begged to be allowed to go home on a train. Ramsey said he humored the child's wish and sent a telegram to Luther Arnold to meet the train arriving there at 10 o'clock Monday night.

It was later that the little girl tipped officers as to the whereabouts of the Kellys.

Ramsey said he left Oklahoma City Monday night when the Arnolds refused to allow their daughter to return to Memphis.

To Prosecute Lawyers.

A campaign to disbar or prosecute attorneys with definite underworld connections was started by the Department of Justice yesterday, after Federal operatives had dug up from a Texas cotton patch $73,250 of the ransom money paid for the release of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma City financier.

The hiding place of the money was revealed by Langford Ramsey, 25-year-old Tennessee attorney and former brother-in-law of George ("Machine Gun") Kelly, who confessed the notorious outlaw sent him to Coleman, Tex., in a futile effort to obtain it. He is under arrest in Memphis.

Revelation that Ramsey had made a trip from Memphis to a farm near Coleman at Kelly's direction, to obtain part of the $75,000 which was to have been used for "Machine Gun's" defense and his fight against extradition, stirred the Department of Justice to action against gangsters' attorneys

Cummings Aroused.

Attorney General Cummings was described as aroused at the activities of such attorneys, particularly those who accept retainers from criminals for definite periods of time.

These retainers are given, it was explained, for the protection of the criminals' legal interests in any eventuality that may arise.

The Department of Justice is eager to bring criminal proceedings against such attorneys, or, if this is impracticable, to institute disbarment proceedings.

Ramsey had been trailed to Texas Tuesday, and was not arrested in the hope he would lead Federal agents to the cache, according to John M. Keith, Department of Justice operative.

Money Identified.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, said last night the $73,250 dug up near Coleman, Tex., had been identified through serial numbers as part of the Urschel ransom money, and that this practically clinched the Government's case against Kelly.

Kelly has tried for several weeks to get to the cache, Hoover said. It was for this purpose the gangster went to San Antonio, September 13, on the occasion when he nearly was captured by Federal agents.

Canadian Housewife Drowns in Sauerkraut

Windsor, Ontario, Sept. 27 (AP). Mrs. Peter Senko, 57, was found late today drowned in a barrel of sauerkraut in the basement of her home. Police hunted persons they believed robbed the house and attacked the woman when she sought to prevent the robbery.

Her husband found the body on his return from work. She had been forced into the barrel, head down. Cash boxes, Senko said, containing $700 to $800 in the cellar were missing.

Thomas J. King Former Elks Leader, Is Dead

Retired Contractor, 79, Was Incorporator of Grand Lodge.

Thomas J. King, 79, retired building contractor and fraternal leader, died of heart disease yesterday at the home of his daughter, Miss Viola King, 55 M street northwest.

He was the last surviving incorporator of the grand lodge of Elks and a past exalted ruler of Washington Lodge, No. 15. He had been tiler for the past 30 years.

W. S. Shelby, secretary, announced the organization will conduct memorial services honoring Mr. King tonight at 8 o'clock in Lee's Chapel, Fourth street and Massachusetts avenue northeast.

In addition to Miss King, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Elmer Theobald and Mrs. George Walsh, both of Los Angeles, and two sons, Bart L. King, Washington, and Thomas J. King, Chicago.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 9 a. m. in St. Aloysius Church. Burial will follow in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Pair Bind Mother, Baby, Turn on Gas

Neighbor Saves Victims After Robbers Leave.

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 27 (AP). Attempted robbery nearly resulted in a double killing today when two men entered the home of Mrs. Katherine Di Santis, bound her, turned on the gas and left her and her baby boy to die. They had demanded her husband's money.

Mrs. Di Santis and her 2-year-old son, Francis, were probably saved from death when the downstairs tenant smelled gas and went to their aid.

Repeal? Sure!

Why Waste Montana Cash Voting? Asks Governor.

"The only man in Montana who can't have a drink when he wants it is the one who hasn't the price."

Therefore, reasoned Gov. F. H. Cooney of Montana, in the Capital yesterday to get $42,000,000 in public works money for 160 State water conservation projects, why call a repeal election?

Furthermore, the governor believes the repeal amendment will be ratified in 60 days without Montana's voting. The money thus saved will be spent for relief, he said.

Gov. Cooney hopes today to tell Secretary of the Interior Ickes about projects in 42 counties of his State.

Father Hurney Dead, Funeral Here Saturday

Body to Lie in State at Church He Served Four Years.

The Rev. Francis J. Hurney, pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, who died yesterday at Providence Hospital, will be buried Saturday at 10:30 a. m. from the church where he labored nearly four years.

At 9 a. m. today a high requiem mass will take place at the church. The Rev. S. A. Czyz will be celebrant. The Boys Sanctuary Choir will sing the mass.

A solemn high mass will be said at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow. Children of Catholic schools will attend. The Rev. John I. Barrett will be celebrant; the Rev. Lawrence J. Shehan, deacon, and the Rev. F. P. Harrity, subdeacon. At 3 p. m. tomorrow the office of the dead will be recited by the clergymen of the archdiocese. The public may attend.

Body to Lie in State.

Father Hurney's body will be taken to the church this morning at 9 a. m. It will remain until Saturday. The church will remain open day and night while the body lies in state. Interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Father Hurney was popular with all creeds and noted for his charity and social work. He took an active interest in veterans' affairs. He served as chaplain on the U. S. S. Charleston during the World War. He was a member of the American Legion and chaplain of Costello Post.

Outside of the church he was widely known for his direction of the St. Patrick's Players.

Born in Washington, October 3, 1886, Father Hurney was educated at St. Paul's parochial school and St. John's College. Later he attended St. Charles College in Maryland, and St. Mary's Seminary in Baltimore.

Ordained in 1914.

Ordained in 1914, Father Herney returned to St. Charles College as a faculty member.

In 1915 he returned to Washington as assistant pastor of the Sacred Heart Church, remaining there until the United States entered the World War.

After the war he went to St. Elizabeth's Church in Baltimore. He returned to Washington in 1920 as assistant pastor at St. Patrick's. He was named pastor of Immaculate Conception Church, in 1929.

Father Hurney broadcast the local Catholic Radio Hour from his church. For this work he gained the praise of Archbishop Michael J. Curley.

Mass for Service Men.

He instituted two services which have become important annual events—a mass for service and former-service men on Armistice Day and a mass on George Washington's birthday.

Father Hurney was stricken last April. The last time he was seen in public was when he left his sick bed to testify in the trial of Gaston B. Means in the Lindbergh kidnaping hoax.

Plant Closing Restrains NRA Appeal to Ford

Mediation at Chester Ends as Other Strikes Gain Over U. S.

The closing of the Ford plant at Chester, Pa., for an indefinite period has temporarily halted NRA attempts at mediation with the Detroit automobile leader.

Senator Wagner, chairman of the National Labor Board, yesterday received a report from J. F. Dewey, special mediator, sent to Chester to settle amicably a strike of Ford employes which said the plant closing left nothing to be mediated. Wagner said the NRA is powerless to act if an employer chooses to close his plant.

This first move by Ford has forestalled a crisis in the Ford-NRA relationship, although the first actual clash is expected to arise over the collective bargaining provisions of the code.

Gen. Johnson was informed of the Chester situation and upon his return is expected to join Wagner in seeking to halt the spread of labor troubles.

Strikes on Increase.

Meanwhile, strikes in several industrial centers took on added impetus yesterday, hindering production in a variety of lines, from automobiles to bread, according to Associated Press dispatches.

The workers' protests were based largely on the charge that their employers did not comply with the spirit of the NRA in its recognition of labor.

A walkout of expert machinists in Detroit's automobile manufacturing district in protest of working hours threatened to tie up production. Joined by 2,000 men from the Murray Auto Body Manufacturing Co., the strikers—tool and die makers—claimed a force of 8,000 and predicted 4,000 men would join them tomorrow, affecting 100 to 150 plants engaged in the manufacture of automobile parts.

Pennsylvania's coal strike spread. Pickets enlisted the support of 7,000 more miners, bringing the idle to between 30,000 and 40,000.

Another Plant Closes.

The Wierton (Pa.) steel mills answered a strike of 300 employes by suspending operations, making 8,000 workers idle.

Nine Philadelphia baking companies asked a court injunction to prevent striking drivers from interfering with their business. Home deliveries of bread were abandoned in the city.

A labor impasse at Davenport, Iowa, came to an end when construction workers at a Government dam across the Mississippi River accepted a 20 per cent wage increase.

wooded area 5 miles south of Chesterton, where the fuguitives fled with the sheriff captive after wrecking an automobile stolen from Virgil Spanier, a farmer. The sheriff's car previously had been wrecked.

Believe Convicts Near.

Vigilance over nearby highways and a railroad line led State and local police to doubt the convicts escaped from the area. They suspect the men hid in a farmhouse during daylight hours, planning to flee after dark.

The second group of convicts, four or five of them, were unreported after taking possession of the Valley Werner farm home near Wanatah for several hours yesterday. They stole an automobile and left in darkness.

Previously the group had commandeered an automobile owned by Harry Van Nalkenberg as he passed the prison. They slugged him and threw him from the car because he would not drive fast enough.

Prison officials believed the second group scattered and headed for prearranged hideouts in some city, perhaps Chicago.

Belief the break had been long plotted was substantiated by the fact that several pistols wrapped in cotton were found on the prison grounds a week ago. Apparently they had been thrown over the wall or dropped from an airplane.

Prison Quiet After Riot.

Philadelphia, Sept. 27 (AP).—With 68 convicts segregated for judgment, Pennsylvania's Eastern Penitentiary returned to normalcy today after one of the worst riots in its century of history.

In the center house, from which the long rows of cells radiate, State Troopers were ready for any recurrence of the outbreak which they and 400 Philadelphia police and firemen quelled early today.

Six men, including the warden and a chaplain, were injured seriously enough to require treatment as prisoners raged in their cells, set mattresses afire and attacked officers who tried to extinguish the flames.

Machine guns, rifles and tear gas bombs were rushed to the scene, but not one was fired. High pressure streams from fire hose and the thud of riot sticks took the fight out of the convicts.

Warden Herbert J. Smith expressed the opinion the trouble was over—but he took no chances.

"This trouble has been brewing for some time because of the antiquated building, lack of space and shortage of guards," he said. "We have three or four men in every cell that should have only two."

Hurley Urges Fair NRA Trial From Nation

Good Sportsmanship Will Require Aid, Says Former Secretary.

Good sportsmanship as well as good Americanism require that the NRA be given a fair trial, former Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley declared last night in a radio address on the recovery campaign.

"It stands to reason," Mr. Hurley said, "that some of us can not conscientiously approve all the laws, nor the methods of administration of all the laws, passed during the last session of Congress. But we should not forget that ours is a Government by majority. We must assume that these laws were passed in response to the demand of the majority.

"Gen. Johnson has asked me to do my part in upholding the purpose of the National Industrial Recovery act and I gladly give my support to help attain the objectives of the NRA."

Declaring he was not in accord with the agriculture adjustment act, Mr. Hurley asserted "it is apparent that a revival of industry would increase the consumption and raise the prices of farm products, thereby giving to agriculture its share in the prosperity of the Nation."

Characterizing the industrial-control plan as self-government for industry, Mr. Hurley pointed out that under the codes each separate branch of industry will police itself and enforce its own code. He said the codes being approved by the President represent the highest standards of business ethics.

Gay Funeral

"Guests" at Services Wear Evening Clothes.

Los Angeles, Sept. 27 (U.P.).—One of the strangest funeral services ever witnessed in Los Angeles was held today for Dr. Michael Mellenthin, 50, a physician, who requested his services be conducted according to his direction.

His widow, Mrs. Gurli Mellenthin, attired in an ivory satin dress and a Spanish shawl, received "guests" attired in evening clothes.

Mrs. Mellenthin stood beside the bier, greeted each guest with a cheerful salutation, and asked that there be no tears.

"He is not dead," she told them. "He has only gone away."

A Negro barytone sang Ted Lewis' song, "Until We Meet Again. My Sweet."

The body was cremated and the ashes were scattered from an airplane over the Mellenthin residence.

Dry Agent in Court On Attack Charge

U. S. Officer Accused by Traffic Policeman.

Karl O. Speiss, prohibition agent, went on trial yesterday on a charge of assaulting Policeman Edward Commingore, of the Traffic Bureau, last August.

The policeman declared Speiss attacked him when he attempted to stop him after an alleged traffic violation. Seven witnesses varied in their acounts as to who was the aggressor, and Judge Ralph Given adjourned the case until today to hear arguments of attorneys.

The traffic charge was dismissed last week.

Plot to Rule Market Is Laid To Sugar Men

Puerto Rican and Cuban Interests Open Attack on Agreements.

Charges that the proposed sugar marketing agreement is illegal and is a plot of continental refiners to create a monopoly, were made last night as Puerto Rican and Cuban interests started a campaign to prevent Government approval.

David A. Buckley, jr., attorney for Puerto Rican producers and refiners, wrote Secretary of War Dern the pact is illegal because it permits unlimited output by continental refiners, yet limits to 100,000 tons the production of Puerto Rica, which "is as much a part of the United States as Louisiana."

"This question is the more serious," he wrote, "because at present it is obviously an unfair confiscation of Puerto Rican capital and an embargo on Puerto Rican sales in the United States for the sole and exclusive benefit of the continental sugar cane refineries and to the detriment and loss of the sugar farmers and producers of Puerto Rico."

Following a cablegram from Buckley, Puerto Rican producers called a meeting Friday in San Juan to plan action.

Buckley said approval of the pact would enable refiners to raise the price of sugar to consumers without benefiting sugar farmers.

"The threat in the code," he said, "is that if we do not sign it, licensing provisions will be resorted to, with the Secretary of Agriculture a party to it."

While the agreement would curtail Puerto Rican production by 35,000 tons, Cuban sugar which could be brought to the United States would be reduced from 800,000 to 250,000 tons.

Chief of Capitol Pages Weds Secretary to Representative

William J. Bray and Miss Margaret Cuddy Married.

Senators were among the guests yesterday at the marriage of William J. Bray, chief of Capitol pages, to Miss Margaret Cuddy in the flower-bedecked Hamilton Hotel.

The bride is secretary of Representative Francis T. Maloney, of Connecticut. She wore a white velvet gown and hat to match and carried a bouquet of White House roses. Her sister, Miss Helen Cuddy, was her attendant.

John A. Reilly was best man. Ushers included Francis Bray, Charles MacKimmon, James Reilly and C. Thomas DeFeis. The Rev. Eugene J. Connelly officiated.

Forty friends attended the wedding breakfast. The couple later departed for a Canadian honeymoon. They will reside here at Sulgrave Manor.

August Boost In Jobs Shown To Be 815,000

Labor Federation Head Sees Greater Rise in September.

Marked improvement was shown in general conditions by reemployment of 815,000 persons in August, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, reported yesterday.

First returns indicate there will be an even greater number of workers added this month than last, Green disclosed. He predicted the September gain would exceed that of any month since March, except June. He warned, however, that the country still has more than 11,000,000 jobless, and relief needs this winter will be greater than ever before because troubles of the unemployed are cumulative.

"The President's reemployment program in its first month," Green reported, "brought greater progress in employment than in any month since the depression.

"Nevertheless when one considers the 11,000,000 persons still out of work and looks ahead to winter months when more than 1,000,000 will probably lose their jobs, progress in the conquest of unemployment seems slow indeed.

"But miracles do not happen even under the NRA, and the fact that more than 2,800,000 have gone back to work since March, when all industries are counted, is at least a beginning toward recovery."

Green said 3,500,000 families were on public relief rolls in August and this number might increase to 4,500,000 during the winter.

"This beginning of reemployment," he concluded, "must not mislead us into thinking that the need for relief is over or that it is even decreasing. In spite of the return to work of 2,800,000 by August the number of families on relief rolls in our principal cities in August was 85 to 90 per cent above August last year."

Citizens Demand Gas Tax Be Used

"District property owners should not be taxed for street paving until the surplus gas tax has been used."

With this protest the Randle Highlands Citizens Association went on record last night in an effort to have the tax on street paving eliminated.

"With more than a million and a half dollars gas tax in the Treasury, there is no reason why this money should not be used for paving the city streets," read the resolution.

A copy will be sent to Senator King and the District Commissioners.

Week's Freight Loadings Gain on Western Roads

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—Freight traffic reports for last week, available today, according to the Associated Press, showed general increases in loadings over the previous week.

The St. Paul Railroad handled 25,045 cars against 24,328 the week before and 25,684 a year ago; Nickel Plate, 12,683 against 12,433 and 11,268; Chicago & North Western, 24,322 against 22,662 and 23,101.

Fusion of NRA Into Commerce Body Planned

Absorption as Permanent Department Phase Soon Indicated.

Absorption of the National Recovery Administration by the Department of Commerce is being studied, Gerard Swope, chairman of the Business Advisory and Planning Council of the Department, said last night.

The announcement coincided with the disclosure that Gen. Hugh S. Johnson is ready to revamp his organization into a cohesive, smaller body to function through the two-year life of the recovery act.

Decision on which elements of the NRA program would be retained by the Department, must be reached before a consolidation is approved, and such decision is expected within six months, it was indicated.

Gen. Johnson is expected to follow a plan laid out by Thomas S. Hammond and the policy board in rearranging the NRA. The plan calls for greater self-regulation of industries operating under codes and less Government influence.

NRA personnel and expense will be curtailed, it is understood. Hundreds of employes have been used in the emergency reemployment campaign, but this phase virtually comes to an end October 1. After that, only enforcement work will be left and that is to be minimized in accord with industrial self-regulation.

Gen. Johnson is expected to take up his reorganization when he recovers from a boil infection.

The Swope committee studying the permanent establishment of NRA under the Commerce Department is made of about 50 leading industrialists. Six members now serve on the NRA industrial advisory committee.

Building Disputes Here Get Attention of Labor Body.

The overture to the American Federation of Labor convention was played yesterday as pounding gavels called to order the Metal Trades and Builders Trades conventions. They will continue this week at the Willard and Washington Hotels, respectively.

Committees were appointed and routine business conducted. Michael J. McDonough, president of the Builders, and James O'Connell, Metal Trades president, presided.

The 55 building trade delegatees heard speeches by Solomon Barkin, of the NRA Labor Advisory Board, and Frank Biggs, president of the local council.

"The best opinion is that the National Recovery Administration should embark upon a program based on 1926-1929 production and price schedules," Mr. Biggs said, "but, so far as wage earners are concerned, with payment of 1926-1929 earnings for a work week 25 per cent shorter than prevailed in 1929."

A report was submitted to the metal trades delegates by John P. Frey, secretary-treasurer.

Jurisdiction disputes on Federal building projects here are expected to be brought up today. The metal trades group represents only workmen engaged in manufacturing.

Dog Safe!

Doomed as Nuisance, He Wins Many Friends.

Baldwin, Kans., Sept. 27 (AP).—Red Romeo, Baldwin's ownerless and self-appointed watchdog, was saved from being shot by Mayor Carl Butell today.

Some person complained the dog was a "nuisance" and asked that he be killed. As no tax had been paid for him, the dog's fate appeared sealed.

Then the protests poured in. H F. Field, of Kansas City, sent a check for the taxes. A telegram came from California stating money was on the way.

"So far as I am concerned, Red Romeo will be permitted to live to a ripe old age," Mayor Butell said.

Fried Goldfish?

A couple from Iowa, or perhaps Alabama, lunched at the cafeteria adjoining the aquarium in the basement of Commerce Building yesterday. They selected various dishes until they came to fried fish. Then the wife asked the attendant:

"Are you sure the fish are nice and fresh?"

"Gosh, Bess," interjected the husband, "didn't you see all those fish in the room yonder?

All they have to do is walk a few steps and catch a mess."

Inventions by Employes.

AN automatic engine control for ships, adapted to be placed below the waterline, is one of the devices patented this week by Federal workers. Walter C. Dean, Engineer, Navy, is the inventor.

Other devices patented under the act that allows them to be used by the Government without royalties include:

An automatic steersman for vessels, by Hyde A. Harman, Navy.

Insecticide, comprising rotenone, colloidally dispersed in water with a small amount of a pyridine base, by Howard A. Jones, chemist, Agriculture.

A lifting airscrew for planes, by Sidney P. Vaughn (*), Navy.

Personals.

Mrs. Bernetta Hoffman, Public Roads, Agriculture, has returned from the World's Fair.

Ernest L. Geeslin, assistant national bank receiver, Treasury, is back from a vacation at Arlington, Ga., with his bride. He married a Georgia girl September 8. His colleagues gave him several presents.

Miss Helen Smith (*), Comptroller, Treasury, is back from Chicago.

J. L. Robertson, Treasury, former special agent in Investigation Division, Justice, and Mrs. Robertson accompanied Charles Docherty, of Omaha, on an inspection trip through Equipment Section, Technical Laboratory and Identification Unit, this week.

Claiborne Durham, Treasury, resumed work in Assistant Secretary Robert's office this week, after being away ten days with muscular rheumatism.

Mrs. Lois McRae, Ordnance, Navy, spent Sunday with her husband swimming at the Annapolis Roads Club, where Mr. McRae is a member.

M. J. Cairns, Engineering, I. C. C., and family enjoyed a vacation motoring through New Jersey.

Jerry Bonham, Engineering, I. C. C., recently visited his home in Findlay, Ohio.

W. A. McCallum, Accounting, I. C. C., has returned from a trip through the Middle West.

Jerry Bowman, Accounting, I. C. C., enjoyed a week at his home in Virginia.

H. L. Shrader (*), Extension Service, Agriculture, has completed a business trip to several cities in the Middle West.

Mrs. Edna V. Steely, Animal Husbandry, Agriculture, is visiting in Philadelphia.

E. Z. Russell, Animal Husbandry, Agriculture, leaves today for Nokesville and Belmont, Va., on official business.

Maj. L. R. Watrous and F. A. Coldwell, both of Finance, War, are attending conferences in Chicago this week on railroad passenger traffic.

J. A. Duerksen, Coast and Geodetic Survey, is visiting his home in Kansas, where his mother is reported seriously ill.

BY taking a bitterly fought 5-to-3 battle from Engineer Reproduction Plant, the Geological Survey nine lays claim to championship of the map printing sections of various Government departments.

Jack Elliott, old-timer and well known to sandlotters, pitched for Survey. He allowed but 8 scattered hits and struck out 9. William E. Dykes, Engineers, allowed 13 hits and fanned 10. W. J. Finley starred at third base for the winners, while J. Dean played a bang-up game in left field for the losers. M. R. Keough and J. H. Montague were swat leaders, collecting 7 of the 13 hits.

Survey challenges Hydrographic Office to bid for the title before the season closes. On the last engagement Hydrographic copped the game in the tenth inning, 11 to 10. Such a game warrants a new deal, Survey players declare.

Germany's Envoy Greeted by Howls Of Milwaukee Mob

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 27 (AP).—Dr. Hans Luther, German Ambassador to the United States, was an interested spectator today as a crowd shouting defiance to Hitler fought police at the door of the exclusive Milwaukee Club.

Police took no action until the crowd blocked traffic, and then they charged with swinging clubs. One man, who gave his name as John Piasecki, 42, Milwaukee, was taken to Emergency Hospital after he collapsed in a police patrol car. He is suffering from concussion of the brain.

Twenty-three others were arrested, including three women and Fred Bassett Blair, once Communist candidate for Governor of Wisconsin.

Dr. Luther, who came here to be a luncheon guest at the club, stepped from his automobile a block from the door. He made his way unobserved through the crowd. He glanced over banners on which were written "Bloody Luther, Agent of Hitler," "Nieder Mit Hitler," and other legends.

Dr. Luther apparently was undisturbed. He left the club for a tea at the home of Mrs. Fred Pabst.

Jewish Holy Day Starts Tomorrow

Sunset tomorrow will usher in Yom Kippur, holiest day in the Jewish calendar, and marked by a 24-hour fast, prayer and penitence. The celebration will start with the chanting of Kol Nidre by the cantor, as he stands before the opened ark of the law.

Rabbi Solomon H. Metz will speak at the Adas Israel services tomorrow night on "From the Depths." Saturday his subject will be "Atonement."

U. S. Workers Again Elect M. D. Schaeffer

Housing Conditions in the Capital Denounced at Meeting.

Michael D. Schaeffer was re-elected president of the District Department, American Federation of Government Employes, meeting last night.

The Washington housing situation was outlined by James Ring, rent investigator for the Public Utilities Commission. Miss Esther Penn, new federation secretary-treasurer, also spoke.

Mr. Ring told the meeting that rent regulation in the District would not be enough. What is needed, he said, is adequate low-cost, sanitary housing to get rid of the "shacks, shanties and huts which disfigure this city." The District, he continued, needs free competition in real estate transfers, a housing code to enforce proper living conditions, and a study and amendment of the local landlord and tenant laws.

16 Dead, 2 Missing French Storm Toll

Seven in One Family Die in Flood Waters.

Marseilles, France, Sept. 27 (AP). Sixteen dead and two missing was the toll tonight of storms and floods over a 50-mile strip from Toulon to the Pyrennees along the Mediterranean.

Among the dead were seven members of one family who drowned at Montpellier when their house collapsed under the weight of flood waters.

Three rock quarry workers were blown to bits when lightning struck a dynamite shack in which they had sought shelter from the rain.

Farm crops and vineyards were heavily damaged.

U. S. Hits Story Of 2 Shannons On Kidnaping

One Witness on Stand in Rebuttal; Argument Opens Today.

Oklahoma City, Sept. 27 (AP).—The Government took a parting shot at the Shannon family in rebuttal testimony of a Federal agent and wound up the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping conspiracy trial late today. Arguments will begin tomorrow.

E. J. Dowd, Dallas operative of the Federal division of investigation, was the lone witness called.

"For two hours while they were in my custody in Dallas the Shannons steadily denied any knowledge of the Urschel kidnaping," Dowd declared.

It was the Government's contention that they had not told consistent stories. R. G. Shannon, his wife, Ora, and his son, Armon, were arrested at their farm home near Paradise, Tex., where Urschel was kept prisoner.

Judge Edgar S. Vaught announced the attorneys for the four groups of defendants will be allowed five hours for argument and the prosecution three and one-half hours.

Attorneys for Albert Bates and Harvey Bailey, accused principals in the abduction, did not have their clients testify.

Dahlia Show Plans For Sweepstakes

25 Classes to Be Viewed at Farmville Exhibit.

Farmville, Va., Sept. 27 (AP). Twenty-five classes and a sweepstakes are listed in the thirteenth annual Dahlia Show to be staged in the Armory here Friday by the Farmville Dahlia Society.

Prof. J. B. S. Norton, University of Maryland, will be judge. Five silver cups will be offered as well as ribbons.

Proceeds will go to the Southside Charity Hospital.

Bedford County Board Asks Trial Justice

Bedford, Va., Sept. 27 (Spl.).—The Bedford board of supervisors has sent a resolution to Judge A. H. Hopkins asking a trial justice be appointed for the county for at least one year.

Action was taken because of a recommendation of Gov. Pollard the trial system be generally adopted.

Death Sought For Kidnapers

Five Men and Woman Hear State's Arraignment in Luer Case.

Edwardsville, Ill., Sept. 27 (AP). Five men and a woman heard the State demand their death in the electric chair today, as punishment for their alleged participation in the kidnaping of August Luer, wealthy Alton, Ill., banker.

A plea that the jury assess the death penalty against the six defendants, Randol Norvell, Percy Michael Fitzgerald, Mike Musiala, Christ Nicola Gitcho, Mrs. Lillian Chessen and he husband, Charles Chessen, was made by assistant State's Attorney Austin Lewis.

He previously had given a 50-minute analysis of testimony by Norvell, who from the witness stand admitted complicity in the kidnaping of Luer and implicated all his fellow defendants.

"If ever a case called for the death penalty, it is this one," Lewis said.

The State's argument was begun this morning by Assistant State's Attorney John F. McGinnis.

The State's final summation will be made tomorrow by State's Attorney Lester M. Geers.

After Lewis had finished, Robert Tunnell, attorney for Norvell and first defense attorney to address the jury, devoted most of his time to an attack on the testimony of Mrs. Chessen, Musiala and Gitcho, who had declared they were actuated by fear of Norvell.

Airport Crash Hurting 3 Laid To Ground Fog

Doctor Believes Victims in College Park Mishap Will Recover.

Ground fog, air navigation's greatest enemy, was blamed yesterday by Eugene L. Vidal, director of aeronautics, for the airplane crash Tuesday night at the College Park Airport in which three officials of the Department of Commerce were injured seriously.

Rex Martin, assistant director of aeronautics; William T. Miller, airways superintendant and a Department of Commerce test pilot for seven years, and Chester H. McColl, assistant to Secretary of Commerce Roper, were passengers in the plane.

In a report to Secretary Roper Vidal said "a haze had developed into a ground fog extending perhaps 50 feet above the ground.

"As the plane glided in for a landing, Mr. Miller, the pilot, who has flown in and out of this field many times at night, evidently had difficulty in determining exact position of lights due to the fog."

Vidal said a more thorough investigation would be made.

Condition of the three men was termed "satisfactory" by Dr. Guy W. Leadbetter, in charge of the cases.

Martin is believed suffering from brain concussion. He has been conscious only periodically at Providence Hospital.

McColl, aid to Secretary Roper, will be out of Casualty Hospital in 10 days, the doctor said.

Miller, who was at the controls, showed much improvement yesterday.

After examining the three patients last night, Dr. Leadbetter said he "believes all of them will recover."

Quarles Added to Group Studying Education

An Unusual Kind of Company

NRA

The Sherwood Organization was built upon the same principles that inspired the N. R. A.

SHERWOOD BROS., Inc., is like a big family. Big because it is old. And a family because every Sherwood worker is proud of the Sherwood name. The reasons for this pride date back a generation. Back to the day when business was done on a personal basis and a man's good name was the guarantee of his products.

As the organization grew, each new employee was instilled with this spirit, inspired to take pride in his company and its products and treated in a way that would keep him happy and loyal. The result is that today Sherwood Bros. still do business on a personal basis.

Sherwood employees believe in the products they sell and in the services they render you. They take pride in making the Sherwood name mean something, whether they are filling your car with Richfield or installing an Oil Burner for your home.

30-Hour Week Drive Opened By Union Men

Question to Top Program of Labor Federation Next Week.

(Associated Press.)

Unionized workers started a movement yesterday to take full advantage of opportunities allowed them under the recovery act and demand officially, through the American Federation of Labor, that forthcoming NRA codes limit their hours on the job to 30 a wek.

Two meetings preparatory to the federation convention next week were under way—the metal and building trades departments. Official reports to both said a work week longer than 30 hours would not reemploy the jobless. Officers of the Union Label Trades Department, which begins its convention tomorrow, said similar recommendations would be made to that group.

Resolutions already were being drafted suggesting that each of these trades inform the federation of their desire for a 30-hour code week. Officers of all three agreed these resolutions would top their list of proposals to the federation convention beginning Monday.

Would Strengthen Unions.

All groups also heard today renewed pleas to organize every last worker so their strength will be greater for the collective bargaining allowed by the recovery act.

To the Building Trades Department, President M. J. McDonough's report said:

"A sharp reduction in hours is essential to bring employment in the industry back to its predepression level."

Solomon Barkin, of the NRA's labor advisory board, told the building trades delegates "a 30-hour week is imperative if a direct attack is to be made on unemployment."

To the metal trades went a report from John P. Frey, their secretary-treasurer, saying:

"It is plainly evident from Federal statistics of employment that a 40-hour week is much too long."

Want Industry Licensed.

Broader aspects of the recovery act and its influence on the future also were discussed. Frey recommended his organization submit to the general federation a resolution calling for Federal licensing of all industry.

R. E. Lee Wilson, Cotton Titan, Dies

Former Laborer Sold One Crop for $712,567.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 27 (AP). R. E. Lee Wilson, 67, sole owner of the "model" town of Wilson, Ark., one of the world's largest cotton planters and a powerful figure in Arkansas politics, died here today.

Operating one farm of 40,000 acres in Mississippi County, Arkansas, alone, Wilson owned large acreages in other states.

He sold 7,314 bales of cotton grown on his farms in 1929 for $712,567.

Quitting school at 15, Wilson worked as a farm hand, then rented 20 acres of land, on which he made his first cotton crop.

Farmers Demand Roosevelt's Help

Moratorium to Save Land Vital, Says Milo Reno.

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 27 (AP). Milo Reno, president of the Farmers Holiday Association, in a letter today to President Roosevelt, demanded farmers be given "the same consideration as banks and insurance companies, which by Government edict have been protected in possession of their property."

He asked if the President had "any reason" why farmers were not given such consideration.

"If the farmer must wait 90 days or 6 months for better prices, we demand a governmental decree declaring a moratorium on executions on real property and chattels," he wrote.

New Mine Scales Awaiting Johnson

Tennessee and Kentucky Operators Agree on Pay.

(Associated Press.)

Coal experts of the National Recovery Administration last night concluded their negotiations with southern Tennessee operators, and basic wage scales for that region, tentatively agreed upon, await the approval of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson today.

The $4 a day basic wage proposed by Western Kentucky operators also awaits Johnson's approval.

Johnson is expected to set a rate for the Alabama district, where operators and the NRA have been unable to agree.

Possum Jinx!

Auto Kills Animal Paying Frederick Sudden Visit.

Frederick, Md., Sept. 27 (Spl.). A 12-pound 'possum was killed by an automobile last night at the Square Corner, intersection of two of the busiest corners of the city.

The animal darted past a traffic officer into the path of the car.

Disease Perils Tampico; Train To Bring Help

Slow Progress Is Made as Troops Repair Line Torn Up in Storm.

Tampico, Mexico, Sept. 27 (AP).—With soldiers repairing flood-washed tracks ahead of a locomotive, a relief train was moving slowly toward Tampico tonight from San Luis Potosi, bringing aid to a city still prostrated by Sunday's hurricane.

With restoration of rail service the threatening food shortage was expected to end, but danger from disease presented a real menace. Authorities resorted to compulsory vaccination in ruined suburbs.

The water situation was acute. In the poorer sections no water was available for drinking and throughout the city none could be spared for any other purpose.

From the capitol came word that physicians and nurses were ready to fly in with food and medical supplies.

It was learned the Chamber of Deputies was appropriating $140,000 for relief. The British government and a steamship company offered to place ships at disposal of relief authorities.

No further official check of the death toll is believed possible. An estimate placed the dead at 54, and the injured at 850. Martial law still prevailed and order was maintained.

President in Charge.

Mexico City, Sept. 27 (AP).—President Abelardo Rodriguez cut short his vacation and returned today from Tehuacan to take general charge of the government's efforts to prevent spread of famine and disease in storm-stricken Tampico.

Food can be brought to Tampico by boat as a channel in the silt-laden harbor has been opened.

Engineers will attempt to supply the city with fresh water, its greatest need.

Hoot Gibson Can't Pay $2,500 Debt Judgment

Los Angeles, Sept. 27 (AP).—Hoot Gibson, cowboy movie actor, has no money or assets with which to satisfy a $2,500 judgment, he told Court Commissioner Kurtz Kauffman today.

Gibson had been summoned for examination as to his ability to pay the judgment, obtained on a promissory note executed December 1, 1928, to Mrs. J. L. Johnson. Gibson was discharged but the judgment still stands.

Jack Kearns Ordered To Pay $2,730 Alimony

Los Angeles, Sept. 27 (AP). — Because Jack Kearns, former Jack Dempsey manager, did not appear and answer the suit of his former wife, Legana Kearns, a default judgment for $2,730 was entered for her today.

The suit was brought to enforce a judgment obtained in New York courts for back alimony.

Grocery Codes Fix Day Limits

Hearing Set for Oct. 5 on Proposals, Including 48-Hour Week.

Wholesale and retail grocery codes, calling for maximum work weeks of 44 and 48 hours, respectively, were presented to the National Recovery Administration yesterday, and October 5 was set for a public hearing.

Fair practice and other sections of the codes will go before the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Provisions regarding price regulation were not made public.

The retail code calls for a work week of not more than six days nor more than 10 hours a day, while the wholesale code would limit hours to nine per day.

Professional persons, outside salesmen, collectors, watchmen and detectives are not included under these provisions. The retail code limits the number of inside workers who may be exempt from the maximum hour provisions to one in five, including executives, proprietors, partners or persons not receiving monetary wage.

NRA Governs 35.

(Associated Press.)

Thirty NRA codes have been promulgated by President Roosevelt, and five other industries are operating under charters by Executive order.

Nine other codes have been approved by Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, and sent to Mr. Roosevelt; hearings have been completed on 96 codes, and hearings scheduled on 45 others.

Industries for which codes have been approved are: cotton textiles, shipbuilding, wool, electrical manufacturing, women's coat and suit, lace manufacturing, corsets and brassieres, theater, petroleum, lumber, steel, photographic manufacturing, fishing tackle, rayon and synthetic yarn, hosiery, men's ready made clothing, automobiles, motion picture laboratory, wallpaper, leather, cast iron soil pipe, salt, bituminous coal, underwear and allied products, oil burner, transit, gasoline pump, textile bag, linoleum and felt base, and artificial flower and feather.

Farm Credit Unit Organized In Baltimore

Entire Capital Area to Be Served by Central Lending Body.

Baltimore, Sept. 27 (Spl.).—Organization of a complete unit of the Farm Credit Administration in Baltimore, which will provide farmers of Maryland, Virginia, the District of Columbia, Pennsylvania, Delaware, West Virginia and Puerto Rico with their own cooperative credit facilities, was completed here tonight.

Addressing directors and officers of the Federal Land Bank of Baltimore and of the Farm Credit Administration unit here, Henry Morgenthau, jr., governor of the Farm Credit Administration, outlined the plan for the establishment of a large number of production credit associations in these States included in the Baltimore Federal Land Bank district.

New Central Body.

A new institution, the Production Credit Corporation of Baltimore, was established here today when Gov. Morgenthau, in the name of the Farm Credit Administration, purchased $7,500,000 in stock of the corporation. This corporation will own approximately three-fourths of the stock of local, cooperative, production credit associations. Farmers who borrow from these associations will purchase the remainder of their stock by subscribing to this stock an amount which is 5 per cent of their loans, as provided by law. The funds are borrowed by farmers for agricultural production purposes, including both crops and live stock.

A second part in the Farm Credit Administration unit here is the Bank for Cooperatives of Baltimore, which also was set up today. This bank will lend to cooperative marketing associations to finance and refinance physical facilities or provide them with operating capital.

Fills Credit Need.

Mr. Morgenthau pointed to the lack of production credit throughout the United States which had resulted, in the last two years, in the establishment of regional agricultural credit corporations by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and large loans by the Department of Agriculture for feed, seed and fertilizer purposes.

The establishment of the production credit corporation in Baltimore, he said, marks the beginning of an intensive effort to make it possible for farmers to control their own production credit machinery and afford them a place to discount their production credit paper with the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Baltimore.

Vote Challenged In Congress Race

Terry Leads Hays by 450 Margin in Arkansas.

Little Rock, Ark., Sept. 27 (AP). With his opponent, Brooks Hays, challenging the unofficial one-sided returns from one county, D. D. Terry, Little Rock lawyer and State legislator, held a lead of 450 votes today in nearly complete returns for yesterday's run-off primary for the fifth district Democratic nomination for Congress for the unexpired term of Hertsill Ragon, who resigned to become a Federal Judge.

Hays, Democratic national committeeman and twice a candidate for governor, threatened a court contest if Yell County's unofficial returns were certified officially. He charged the vote was several hundred more than the county had qualified voters.

New Stores Barred By Swiss Parliament

Berne, Switzerland, Sept. 27 (AP). The Council of States, the Swiss Parliamentary body, voted 23 to 1 today to forbid the opening of new department stores and fixed-price stores, and to ban the enlargement of existing establishments in these categories.

Proponents of the measure said it would protect merchants against increased competition.

Shantytowns Built of Junk House Manhattan Thousands

"Hardluck-on-the-Hudson" Has Parlor, Bedroom, Bath Made of Can.

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—Thousands of squatters are living in junk-built shantytowns a few blocks from the doors of Manhattan apartment dwellers.

Last fall, when chill winds howled up the deserted canyons of Broadway from the sea, police rounded up shivering, homeless vagrants and warned the squatters, "you'll be starving to death if you don't freeze first."

The penniless colonists smiled grimly, plugged up the chinks in their shanties and managed to survive the winter.

This is how they're living tonight.

Manly Beauty

Woman Gives Cosmetic Hints for Males.

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—The men got some beauty hints today at the industries.

"Beauty a sensible person looks for in a man," Miss Florence E. Wall, fellow of the American Institute of Chemists, said, "means good physical development, good health—and above all, radiant cleanliness."

She recommended: Cleansing cream instead of water for dry skin; a mild, low-alcohol lotion after shaving; and a face powder in a natural shade.

"It is hoped that courageous persons—men or women—will soon open beauty shops for men," she said.

Defense Loses Point in Trial Of Sen. Davis

Testimony Scope Widened in Moose "Lottery" Hearing.

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—Taking advantage of an opening afforded by defense counsel, Assistant United States Attorney Louis Treadwell today delved into a charity ball conducted in 1930 by the Loyal Order of Moose, at the trial of Senator James J. Davis, accused in connection with the interstate shipment of alleged lottery tickets issued for a ball conducted in 1931.

Treadwell, seeking to connect Davis with the alleged lottery of 1931 by tracing his activities in connection with the previous year's ball, was allowed to question Malcolm R. Giles about the 1930 affair after Defense Counsel Charles H. Tuttle had brought it up in a cross-examination.

Tuttle had asked Giles, supreme secretary of the Moose, when he first learned that cash awards were a feature of the balls, and Giles had answered

"When I received a book of tickets in 1930."

Tuttle protested that the question and answer did not afford Treadwell an opportunity to question Giles further about the 1930 affair, but the court ruled otherwise.

"Did you ever discuss the legality of the 1930 charity ball with George Ward?" he asked Giles. Ward was general dictator of the Moose.

"I did," replied Giles.

The witness said he also had discussed the legality of the matter with a member of the supreme counsel's executive committee.

Seabury Holds McKee "Tool" Of Tammany

Fusion Leader Charges Move to Split Vote for LaGuardia.

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—Samuel Seabury, generalissimo of fusion forces, charged today the movement to draft Joseph V. McKee as an independent candidate for mayor was an attempt to split the anti-Tammany vote.

"The sole purpose back of the McKee candidacy can only be to divide the anti-Tammany vote and thus aid Tammany, which McKee has professed to oppose," he said.

Seabury, prosecutor of the inquiry which ended in the resignation of James J. Walker, called McKee weak and vacillating.

"McKee had his chance and pledged his word he would not be a candidate," said Seabury.

Into the McKee movement Seabury also read an attempt by Edward J. Flynn, close friend of President Roosevelt, to "grab control of the political machine which governs this city."

Realization that Mayor John P. O'Brien, Tammany candidate, faced defeat by Fiorello H. LaGuardia, fusion nominee, was responsible for the McKee movement, Seabury charged.

Meanwhile, McKee, former acting mayor after Walker resigned, withheld his decision.

Electric Production Rises During 1933

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—Electric power production in the United States last week totaled 1,638,757,000 kilowatt hours, about 25,000,000 under the previous week, and an increase of 9.9 per cent over a year ago, the Edison Electric Institute reported today.

For the week ended September 16 the improvement over 1932 was 12.7 per cent. The average percentage gain last week was the smallest in several months.

Output in New Eengland was 8.6 per cent above a year ago compared with 9.5 per cent the week before; Middle Atlantic States 4.7 per cent against 9.3; central industrial region 13.5 against 17.9; west central 3.5 against 6.9; Southern States 11.7 against 10.7; Rocky Mountain area 28 against 27.6, and Pacific Coast 1.3 against 1.2.

Construction and Recovery.

Since March the Reserve Board's index of industrial production has risen about 50 per cent, over 2,000,000 workers have been reemployed, pay rolls have expanded more than proportionately, and increases in consumer buying power have been reflected in a growing volume of wholesale and retail trade. During August, however, signs of business reaction became apparent. Industrial production declined from the July level and the advance in wholesale prices was halted, with only a negligible rise recorded for the month.

With August construction activity approximately one-fourth the average for the years 1923-25, it is becoming increasingly evident that business recovery, which so far has been based largely on improved demands for consumers' goods, must be accompanied by a revival of demand for the products of the heavy industries which supply materials for construction and expansion of capital equipment and plant. In 1929, about 40 per cent of all persons employed in manufacturing were engaged in the production of durable capital goods. The construction industry not only produces durable goods in the form of houses, factories, public works and utilities but it makes heavy demands upon industries engaged in producing steel, cement, lumber and other construction materials.

The deadening effect of the prostration of the construction industry is best realized by noting that in 1928 outlays for private construction exceeded $5,400,000,000, for railroads and public utilities, $2,900,000,000, and for public construction, $3,023,000,000, a total of $11,339,000,000. Last year the amount of private construction was 36.4 per cent below the 1928 level and 54.1 per cent lower for railroads and public utilities. Evidently a return to a normal level of construction activity would bring new demands for goods and services amounting to billions of dollars. Directly and indirectly, employment would be given to several million men engaged in producing and transporting construction materials, and doing the actual work of construction. The emergency public works program of the Federal Government, even if pushed rapidly and efficiently, can not take the place of private enterprise.

The experience of the United States and other industrial countries indicates that a revival of the construction industries invariably accompanies an upward swing of the business cycle. Today it is impossible to conceive of an all-around permanent improvement in business sufficient to reabsorb into industry the 10,000,000 workers who are still idle, unless a simultaneous revival takes place in the heavy industries. Depreciation of the dollar already has lost much of its psychological power to bring about a speculative advance in prices of commodities and securities, and to stimulate consumer buying. We are beginning to face economic realities and to understand that there must be buying for investment purposes as well as for immediate consumption, if we are to go forward.

So long as fear of monetary inflation hangs over the country, however, the average man will not be willing to provide funds for financing permanent improvements by investing in mortgages and fixed interest obligations. There is no assurance now that he will be able to recover his principal at maturity in dollars of unimpaired purchasing power. Once this fear is removed, the construction industry should revive under the encouragement of sound monetary policies.

The country has had several years of subnormal construction activity and there will be need for new homes, factories, and other buildings as business improves and workers are in receipt of more income. That demand can not be satisfied, however, unless the investor is convinced of the safety of his dollar.

No Exchange Removal.

The New York Stock Exchange will remain in its historic setting at the corner of Broad and Wall, amid the towers of lower Manhattan. Mayor O'Brien has vetoed the bills that would have imposed additional taxes on stock transfers and on the gross incomes of all persons engaged in the business of buying and selling securities. Brokers considered the taxes so excessive that they were preparing to remove their operations to New Jersey. A new exchange was to have opened in Newark on October 2, with more than 90 per cent of the members of the Stock Exchange supporting the new organization.

It became evident early this week that, in view of developments, the proposed tax action might be reconsidered. President Whitney, heading both the old and new exchanges, wrote to Mayor O'Brien, offering in the name of the governing boards to abandon removal plans if the mayor should veto the tax bills. This the mayor has done, to the relief of many New York interests that would have been adversely affected by the departure of the exchange.

If the great stock trading center had been transferred to New Jersey, New York would have realized little from the new taxes, and a large portion of the $30,000,000 collected as State taxes would have been lost.

Many officials and workers are relieved of the inconvenience that the change would have involved. The situation in Newark is not so happy. Center Market, used as a garage, was being remodeled to provide a makeshift home for the New Jersey Stock Exchange. The hectic scramble for office room in Newark, with many fat options paid for reservations, has come to an end, and the city's vision of new business and a substantial increase in population has vanished as the big board and all its satellites settle down again in their comfortable and ample quarters on Manhattan Island.

Japan's Naval Aims.

A dispatch from Tokyo states that the Japanese government has announced a revision of naval regulations to enlarge the powers of the chief of the naval general staff on "questions related to a scheme of national defense." A naval spokesman is quoted to the effect that the revision will enable the chief of the naval general staff to veto any reduction or limitation of sea forces to which civilian authorities might agree with other powers.

Behind this grant of authority to the Japanese chief of the naval general staff looms the possibility of disagreement by the great naval powers, when they reassemble in 1935 to consider the situation that will arise by expiration of the London treaty in 1936.

The London treaty, establishing the ratios of naval strength of Great Britain, the United States, and Japan, was ratified by Japan only after a struggle which nearly wrecked the treaty.

In order to minimize the powerful influence of the navy in foreign affairs, Premier Hamaguchi in 1930 assumed the direction of the naval ministry during the absence of Admiral Takarabe in London. Instructions were dispatched to the Japanese delegation in London approving the so-called Reed-Matsudaira compromise, which reduced the Japanese claim for a ratio of 70 per cent in cruisers. These instructions were approved by the foreign office, by Premier Hamaguchi as acting head of the navy, and by the cabinet, but they were opposed by Admiral Kato-Kanji, chief of the naval general staff. He went to the imperial palace and made a direct appeal to the throne, protesting against the instructions, which already had been sent. For several months it appeared probable that the navy party would prevail in the privy council, in which it had powerful friends, but the council ultimately ratified the treaty.

This action by the privy council was hailed at the time as a strong precedent for freeing the government from the influence of the army and navy in foreign policy. It was believed that a gradual change would be made, resulting in a lessening of the Emperor's prerogative in treaty-making, and enlarging the powers of the Diet. But the Manchurian campaign, the withdrawal of Japan from the League of Nations, and the appointment of foreign ministers with increasingly nationalistic tendencies revealed that the military party in Japan was stronger than the civil power and could make its policies effective, in spite of treaty obligations.

Now the naval general staff in Japan wins a position which will enable it to dictate the course of the negotiations in the next international conference for the limitation of British, American, and Japanese navies.

The Sugar Agreement.

A stabilization agreement among sugar producers who supply the American market has been submitted to Secretary Wallace for final approval. Representatives of the sugar producers in Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Philippines and the United States are said to have signed the pact, although Cuba was without official representation in the final conference. The agreement could go into effect without the approval of Cuba, but officials hope that it will be found acceptable to any regime that may grow out of the revolution.

Quotas are fixed by the agreement for all of the areas contributing to the American sugar supply. Domestic beet growers are allotted 1,750,000 tons, which requires no curtailment. Hawaii is allotted 975,000 tons, slightly less than her entire crop in recent years. Puerto Rico may send 975,000 tons, which is almost equivalent to her 1930-31 crop. Louisiana is allowed 250,000 tons and Florida 60,000. Neither of these State quotas involves curtailment of present production.

A liberal quota of 1,100,000 tons was allotted to the Philippine Islands. Under the Hawes-Cutting independence act, which has not yet been accepted by the Philippine Legislature, duty-free imports from the islands would be limited to 850,000 tons. The Virgin Islands also were allowed a considerable increase over the quota originally proposed.

Cuba's quota was increased from 1,700,000 to 2,000,000 tons, with a provision that the President may raise or lower this quota. In 1929 Cuba exported 4,855,411 tons of sugar. Even in 1931 her exports amounted to 2,638,490, with about 95 per cent of this sugar coming to the United States. Prior to the depression the Cuban crop was averaging somewhat more than 5,000,000 tons per year, and she has no substantial market outside of this country.

Even with this low estimate for Cuba, the agreement makes an allotment of about 7,000,000 tons of raw sugar. The domestic need for the coming year is estimated at about 8,350,000 tons. Apparently a surplus is contemplated. To meet this situation a reserve corporation would be set up. Its duty would be to buy up the surplus sugar with funds from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation or elsewhere. If Cuba's quota should be increased by the President as a rehabilitation measure this agency would face a formidable undertaking.

The agreement on quotas may be the best that could be negotiated at this time, but apparently it leaves the door open to the production and importation of an excess supply of sugar.

The St. Lawrence Waterway.

Assurance from Secretary of War Dern that the administration stands behind the proposed shipway connecting the Great Lakes and the Atlantic through the St. Lawrence River revives active discussion of this extensive waterway and power project. The treaty, which was signed with Canada in July, 1932, is before the Senate for ratification. It will be the first order of business at the January session.

Enthusiastic support and determined opposition to this vast improvement will be presented when the treaty is considered. The support of the President and the New York Power Authority is now expected to be enlisted in its behalf, and if the waterway should be included in the plans of the Public Works Administration it will add prestige to the proposal.

The St. Lawrence waterway plan contemplates a 27-foot channel from Duluth, Minn., and Port Arthur, Ont., to tidewater, providing outlet from the grain ports and such lake cities as Chicago, Cleveland and Detroit. Every feature of the waterway project encounters divided opinion. Shipping interests are at odds as to the practicability of a route that is closed by ice a large part of the year, and agricultural experts have never agreed upon the percentage of wheat that would be moved by waterway ships.

Engineering authorities are divided as to the advisability of one dam or two in connection with the locks on the St. Lawrence rapids, and experts differ as to which plan would provide cheaper power. Seven years ago the international board of engineers estimated the cost of the project at about $550,000,000, to be divided between the two nations, but with a considerable allowance to Canada for work already done. Opposition interests have challenged these figures as being entirely too low. Other estimates last year reduced the cost. The waterway, however, still is called a half billion dollar project.

Only One New England.

From the Chicago Tribune.

One of the new Australian states in the proposed division of New South Wales has been given the name of New England, an impropriety, a profanation which conscience should stop even in the Antipodes, where respectfulness is not always regarded as a virtue. There can, if the Australians insist upon it, be another England, but not another New England. The latter could not repeat itself. It happened but once, and if time can not change or wither it the truth is equally self-evident that it can not be imitated. Where New England is there are and have been New Englanders. Australia can not produce them by naming a name.

New England begins with Capt. John Smith, the admiral of New England, who named it so on a map he drew and in a description he wrote in 1615 while the captive of a French pirate. Drake had named California Nova Albion. The Australians are welcome to that name. The Californians do not want it. They are Greeks by choice. Smith asked Prince Charles to give his map place names and the prince changed Indian names to English. At Smith's "humble suit" he retained New England. Australia may have no reverence for the royal family, but this was the martyred king. New England returned some Puritans to their native shores to try him for his head.

New England must be a mixture of William Bradford and Thomas Morton, of Merrymount, of John Winthrop and Anne Hutchinson, Cotton Mather and Robert Child. There must be conformity rebelling against conformity and irritated by nonconformity. Character must be a rock bound coast with angry waves. First the tea is dumped in the harbor to exasperate the tax collector and then the ancient and honorable artillery company is organized to perpetuate his memory. Contrariness, if frigid enough, will seem to be consistency, and when the east wind gets in the bone estheticism will "give to the Mellancholy man a cup or two of't now and than." New England must be Adamses.

Australia should stick to such inventions as Canberra and Riverina. There has been too much trifling with the names given meaning by the people of the United States. America, which was theirs by common grant, general consent and world-wide use, has challengers and usurpers who would restrict it in the United States, by a prefix, to North Americans. Even the United States would be strictly defined by a suffix, the United States of North America. Triflers reduce it to "the States," an odious locution and today historically false. There are no States. They were lost in Washington.

The Once Over.

By H. I. Phillips.

WHAT! ANOTHER WORLD SERIES?

The world series is around again, and to say that it has caught people unawares is an understatement. The folks have been so busy with other matters like Blue Eagles, code arguments, pork processing, &c., that they didn't realize baseball was being played this season.

• • • •

Even now millions of Americans are skeptical, and when the series opens it may be necessary for the President to assure the public that what it is watching is a baseball epic and not another national recovery pageant.

• • • •

Washington, it seems, will get into the world series this year.

• • • •

This was to be expected, as Washington gets into everything these hectic days. Early in the year there were those who thought Washington would be too busy with codes and things to bother with baseball. But by midsummer the administration heard about the series and before you could say Gen. Johnson she was in it.

• • • •

So here it is the autumn of 1933 with the baseball classic between Washington and a team of Forgotten Men called the Giants because they looked so much like midgets in February.

• • • •

The presence of Washington will not attract any attention, as Washington is in everything, from your business to your mother's washing, but the presence of the Giants in the world series is of the greatest significance. It is epochal. It is even symbolic.

• • • •

The Giants disappeared over the rapids with Goldman-Sachs, Kreuger-Toll, Samuel Insull, big business, the best minds and Coolidge prosperity some years ago.

• • • •

The fact they could be found, nursed and brought back to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness is one of the most amazing evidences of what has happened in America under the Democrats.

• • • •

With the Giants turning the corner the whole corner-turning movement is given an impetus, and the most downtrodden, discouraged and forgotten American can now feel that there is definite hope for him.

• • • •

A few weeks ago Americans were asking, "Do you think there is room for us all on the life raft?" Today the cry is, "The tide has turned. The Giants still live! Get me two behind the catcher's box!"

• • • •

A good, fast-breaking curve will presently get more attention than the whole economic crisis, and a stolen base will electrify America more than a Cabinet meeting on unemployment.

• • • •

Even Gen. Johnson will take time out for peanuts. And the Blue Eagle will be flying all over the lot yelling for a base hit.

• • • •

HITCH-HIKING.

No tabulation has ever been made as to how much money is lost in the United States each year through hitch-hiking, says the Boston Transcript. THE MARCH OF DEMOCRACY.

James Truslow Adams writes books on American history that appeal to the multitude and yet are not "written down." He is a scholar who possesses the flair for making history "interesting."

His 1932 volume, called "The March of Democracy," begins with the foundation of the American Union and has been followed by a second. Not every student of history will agree with all his conclusions or with his estimates of American statesmen, but everyone will find the narrative interesting.

The most amazing thing in the entire history of North America is the extraordinary group of men of genius who stood at the cradle of our country. In 1787, when our Constitution was made, those who helped to make it were George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, Alexander Hamilton — also John Adams, John Jay, James Madison and many other men of talent. The first three were men of genius. It is often said that great times produce great men. This is very far from the truth. During the years from 1913 to 1920, great men were sorely needed. There was not a man in any country in the world who had the ability of Franklin, of Washington or Hamilton, and we had all three at once in 1787.

Matthew Arnold said Franklin was the greatest genius who ever lived in the Western Hemisphere, and I think he was right. Washington is almost unique in that the more power he had, the more unselfish he became. Hamilton was a financier who knew how to turn deficits into surpluses. He would be quite useful today.

Evolution of American Capitalism—A British View.

An Editorial from the Statist.

The most striking reversal of the American individualist idea is contained in the National industrial recovery act.

The original purpose of this act was to destroy the meaning of the Sherman antitrust laws, which were regarded by the public, though they did not completely serve the purpose, as the bulwark of free competition. In their place are to be put voluntary agreements or codes to insure "fair competition" in industry and trade and to eliminate what President Roosevelt has denounced as "cut-throat underselling by competitors unwilling to join in such public-spirited endeavor."

The act in effect constitutes exemption from the antitrust laws, provided that the industrial leaders concerned accept certain conditions with regard to the status of labor, the prevention of "monopoly" and discrimination against small enterprises.

The codes of fair competition may be voluntarily agreed to by those concerned in the industry themselves or they may be imposed from above, but once they are in force they are the law for that industry and violators of it are liable to severe penalties.

The object of the United States administration, therefore, is to force this additional production into consumption by preventing wage cuts, through the minimum wage regulations of the industrial recovery act, and to increase employment by fixing maximum hours of work.

The American capitalist is, therefore, willing to accept the regimentation implied in the act on the condition that it applies also to his competitors, as it must necessarily do, because he realizes that it may save him from the danger of a failure in the initial stages of inflation.

How far this scheme will actually succeed remains to be seen, because if costs of production are raised sufficiently to offset the rise in prices, it follows that production will again recede. If this should happen, then a further rise in prices may become necessary, but it is hoped that in the meantime a genuine impulse will have been given to industry by increased purchasing power.

It is to be hoped that this will in fact result, but it is difficult to escape the conclusion that the result of President Roosevelt's experiment will not cease when the period of experimentation is over. Particularly is this the case in regard to the American capitalist system, which, even after the depression is past, will find it impossible to get back to its original state.

The new capitalism that is dawning in the United States may herald better things, but we, in this country, may at least feel gratified that if less was expected of our system at any rate it has withstood the forces of an overwhelming depression without the necessity of any such radical transformation as now seems to be taking place in America.

THE WHISPERING TREE.

The sprays of the mountain ash are of fern-like appearance. The bunches of white flowers so beautiful in the spring, later on turn into even more beautiful bunches of berries which decorate the wild mountain glens with vivid crimson. In Scotland the mountain ash is called the rowan tree, according to the London Spectator. It is the whispering tree and has secrets to tell. It is believed to be proof against demons and the evil eye. Pin it on your coat and nothing malignant will happen to you. In Wales many of the churchyards contain a rowan tree, put there to drive away the spirits who will disturb the dead, or perhaps to defend the living who bring flowers to place on the tombs.

Sharing.

We who have wept together know what it means to love.
We who have suffered sorrow,
strewn roses a mound above,
And knelt on the ground together to whisper a common prayer
With trembling lips and hearts aching know what it means to share.

Time was when we danced together and laughed as the days went by.
Month after month we romped through with never a tear in her eye.
We fancied we loved each other,
but little of life we knew.
And I was a jesting comrade with only my work to do.

Then suddenly sorrow found us.
Out there by a tiny grave
We learned what it means to be tender and just what it means to be brave.

We learned that love deepens and strengthens by hurts it is asked to bear,
And out of our common heartache
we learned what it means to share.

DESCENDANT OF PEPYS' CAT.

Brutus, who had perhaps the longest and most distinguished descent of any of London's "official" cats, and was also unique in possessing a ticket to the National Gallery of Art, died the other day, mourned by many friends, says the New York Times Magazine.

He was a majestic black and white feline, more often than not to be seen on the terrace of the National Gallery. His principal claim to fame was that he traced his descent, or rather had it traced for him, back to the cat that belonged to Pepys, the diarist.

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

Bargeron.

I HAVE a sneaking suspicion the brain trust boys had better be grabbing up the newspaper syndicate contracts while the grabbing is good because there are many indications they — the boys—are about to pass out of the picture. They do not, for that matter, seem to be connected with this second phase — if it is the second phase of our recovery at all. Of course, there may be another phase that will return them to the fore, but if they await this, it would not appear they really are a brain trust.

To pass up the opportunities of the recovery phase one is in, to rest through a phase with which he has nothing to do hoping for another phase, does not constitute clear thinking though it may be a sort of a profundity which I know nothing about.

TAKE the five foremost of our current endeavors: Lending money to railroads with which to purchase rails to help our heavy industries; purchasing foodstuffs from the farmers to feed our needy to help the both of them; lending money to private industry; reopening of closed banks and finally the old-fashioned pork barrel distribution of public works funds in a heroic effort to get those funds to work.

No one of these came from the brain trust. They are, in fact, entirely too simple to come from them. There is not a man or woman of average intelligence who should not be able to understand them at a glance. For profoundness of conception, indeed, they never will rate, but the administration seems to be right hopeful they will do the work.

If this doesn't look bad for the brain trust, I'll eat my hat.

It's funny, you know, but at least two of these propositions—pork barrel public works and lending of money to private businesses—came from a man who is the very antithesis of a brain trust, one with whom you would never associate the name—no one but—and who else could it be?—than Jack Garner, himself.

We've called him "Texas Jack" and "Broncho Jack"—I think—and "Cactus Jack"—I know—but no one to my knowledge has ever spoken of him as Prof. or Dr. Jack, or as Jack, LL. B., or Jack, Ph. D. Why we've never even referred to him as brilliant or as a genius. Politics is Jack's business or profession, his schooling and his training.

To see his ideas and proposals come to be accepted after all these months of heavy thinking—umph! it may mean we are emerging from the clouds of professional thought.

• • • •

WHY Jack took an awful razzing on these two proposals, don't you remember? The Republicans set up such a howl of derision that Jack got an inferiority complex and they could hardly get him to make a speech in the campaign. He thought to do so would hold Mr. Roosevelt back. The Republicans actually got Jack to thinking that he was standing in the way of Mr. Roosevelt's career, that he was a yoke or something.

To be very fair, the lending of money to private business through the R. F. C. was Mr. Hoover's original idea. But he got cold feet on it simply because Jim Couzens squawked and subsequently he denounced the idea when Jack advanced it. A very raw thing, said he, in effect.

• • • •

IT was at a meeting in the White House of Republican senators one night when Mr. Hoover broached the subject. He said he thought it a good way to get business moving. Senator Couzens asked him if he could give an example of a business to whom money should be lent. Mr. Hoover cited Mr. Willys, the automobile man, who was rushing back from the ambassadorship at Poland at the time in an effort to revive his business. It was the worst example he could have cited. Couzens hit the ceiling and Mr. Hoover dropped his proposals forthwith.

I don't know to whom should go the credit for originating the plan to buy foodstuffs from the farmer to give to the needy. That seems to be the simplest thing yet. It involves no codes or anything else difficult.

It is just the very plain proposition of getting foodstuffs from those who have an abundance of it and giving it to those who have none. It is strange no one thought of this plan before.

Maybe, it was just too simple to be interesting; certainly, it was too simple to arrest the attention of the brain trust.

CHINCOTEAGUE PONIES.

Just off the coastal juncture of Virginia and Maryland lies small, picturesque Chincoteague Island. Sportsmen know it as a good place to go for fishing and duck shooting, says Time. And once a year, during its Volunteer Firemen's carnival, Chincoteague stages the East's only wild horse roundup "Pony Penning day."

No one knows where Chincoteague's wild horses came from. Natives say they have been there some 250 years and like to believe them descendants of horses which swam ashore from a wrecked Spanish galleon. Less romantic historians think they may have sprung from Virginia strays isolated when Chincoteague, once a peninsula, became an island. Small and shaggy, they look like a cross between horse and Shetland pony. Led by stallions, they range the island marshes in bands of 15 to 20.

Farley Defends Salary Policy Against Critics

Cuts in Pay Rates and in Forces Needed for Recovery, He Says.

Postmaster General Farley last night came to the defense of restrictive Federal personnel policies in an address before the National Association of Postmasters in Rochchester, N. Y.

Goverment salary cuts and reduction in working force were viewed by Farely as budget-balancing necessities, pointing the road to recovery.

"We could not in good faith, ask the business men of the Nation to provide more employment for the rank and file of our people if, as a government, we had continued to spend money with a reckless hand," Farley said.

Like Secretary Roper, who denied any "inconsistency" in the Government policy, Farley said the cuts were necessary to recovery. Roper contended the NRA applied to industry is an emergency program, while the Government's policies represent long-range planning.

Administrator Johnson previously conceded the cuts were "inconsistent" but argued their necessity from a budget standpoint.

"Of 661 postmaster removed since March 4, 1933, before the end of their terms, 625 were removed because of infractions of the postal laws and regulations relating solely to the conduct of the offices, and only 36 for political activity," Farley told the postmasters last night.

There was "a substantial basis" for each of the 36 removals, Farley said, and none was made except after a report by a postal inspector. Farley said he intended to have half the postal inspectors Republicans and half Democrats. When he came into office, only 170 of the 540 inspectors were Democrats.

Mr. Farley also explained why the Federatl Government was not raising salaries nor hiring more men, although asking private business to do both. "We could not," he said, "in good faith ask the business men of the Nation to provide more employment for the rank and file of our people, if, as a Government, we had continued to spend money with a reckless hand." It was perfectly apparent, he declared, that the first step on the road to recovery was the balancing of the Federal budget by abandoning unnecessary expenses and reducing salaries.

'The Fox' Wins Pauper Appeal

Judge Permits Convict in $35,000 Lindbergh Hoax to Plea.

Norman T. Whitaker, "the Fox," now under sentence of 18 months following his conviction on a charge of conspiring with Gaston B. Means to steal $35,000 from Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, is "broke," he informed Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue in the District Supreme Court yesterday.

Whitaker asked that he be allowed to proceed with an appeal from the conviction as a "pauper," which would leave him free of the costs of the appeal. Justice O'Donoghue assented.

Means and Whitaker were convicted of conspiring to obtain $35,000 from Mrs. McLean, in return for which she was to receive $50,000 in "hot money" from kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby in Chicago. Whitaker and Means told her, she said on the witness stand, that the baby would not be returned until this "hot" money had been redeemed by her for the smaller amount in good money.

$500,000,000 Sought For Federal Relief

Request for additional Federal funds for the unemployed was presented to Emergency Administrator Harry L. Hopkins yesterday by the Joint Committee of Unemployment. In a letter signed by Prof. John Dewey, chairman of the volunteer committee, 11 participating organizations estimated $500,000,000 would be needed for Federal relief work during the first six months of 1934. Approximately $250,000,000 of the last relief appropriation still is available for the 1933 calendar year.

Mr. Townsend was named consul to Albania by President Wilson after the World War.

Work Gain Reported.

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—An increase of 8.6 per cent in the number of persons employed and a gain of 9.2 per cent in average hourly earnings, accompanied by a decline of 8.9 per cent in average hours of work a week in August, were reported today by the National Industrial Conference Board.

Brewery Blue Prints Demanded by U. S.

The Federal Government yesterday served notice on all breweries that a blue print of bottling plants, storage vats and pipe lines must be filed here.

J. M. Doran, Commissioner of Industrial Alcohol, determined upon the step as a further check against the commercial production of tax-free beer. In the future no brewery will be licensed until these plans ar filed with the regional supervisor of permits.

The Return of Feudalism

One Quiet Feature of Our Move Toward Socialism

By William Harlan Hale.

Again for the third time this season, stenographers, statisticians and telegraph operators descend like locusts upon the vicinity of Hyde Park, thus providing the town of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., with a pleasant little boom of its own. And attention of the country again is focused on that estate of a thousand acres, broad and luxurious in its growth, along one of the handsomest stretches of the River Hudson.

The Roosevelt estate is not just any large freehold of land; it represents, in form and location, the large manorial grants once made to the wealthy Dutch "patroons," and unique to that part of the country. Those manors, staked out under the Dutch rule in seventeenth-century New York, began to break up after the English invasion, but the cores of some of them remain, and they symbolize the only appearance in this country of an authentic feudalism.

Our Presidents have not, as a rule, been lords of the manor. Washington and Jefferson, of course, owned large estates in Virginia, but their feudalism was erected on the basis of the Negro slave; it does not quite qualify as the authentic thing. Most of our Executives have been land-poor. They have not represented, at least in that respect, a vested interest.

Mr. Wilson's pre-Presidential summers generally were spent in humble rented cottages, at places like Sea Girt, N. J. Mr. Harding's home in Marion, Ohio, had very little of the grandeur of a chateau about it. Mr. Coolidge's two-family house in Northampton provided the country with no palatial thrills. Mr. Hoover's Palo Alto home, although a distinct improvement in size and style, always stayed remote from the public eye.

It seems to be the tradition that Presidents, no matter how much cool cash they may have stowed away in their bank vaults, shall not blossom out into fine old mansions, formal gardens, plashing fountains and meadows, with all the animal life that goes with them. Mr. Roosevelt broke a precedent which was becoming a pretty strict one. And, at the start, the breach worked in his disfavor.

How can a man, one argued, whose whole surroundings hark back to the days of fiefs, vassals, manorial lords, tenant farmers and indentured servants, pretend to any gospel of liberalism? How can a man whose days have been spent under the ancestral elms of his little kingdom want to go forth and do battle for the progressive cause? Is he not, after all, a member of what in England is called the landed gentry; and what are such people, if not arrantly conservative?

If the election had been fought in a year when the odds were not so completely against the party in power, the Hyde Park estate might have been made a major issue—something approaching the church issue raised against Al Smith. Dire prophets would have assured the people they were about to sell out into the hands of an American Junkerdom. Perhaps, for all we know, it might have lost Mr. Roosevelt the election. Elections have been lost on less than 1,000 acres.

But everything, of course, turned out differently. And the Hyde Park estate has become the object of national admiration, in respect to landscaping, flower planting and tree culture.

Better than that, it is having the effect of gently tempering the now established Roosevelt radicalism. A sharp pronunciamento against the industrialists, coming from a President residing in a very ordinary summer establishment, would lead people to suspect an alliance on his part with labor and the unpropertied interest. But a similar pronunciamento coming from the lawns of Hyde Park is in its own way reassuring; however notable the President's left-wing expression may be, he still has just as big an estate as the industrialists in question, and probably a bigger one.

The land acts as a quiet curb on radical impact and conservative alarm. It expresses the traditional element in the Democratic revolt. All is for the best, along the rolling Hudson.

Ohio Mortgage Holders Agree to Bond Exchange

Holders of Ohio mortgages aggregating $61,000,000 have agreed to accept Home Owners Loan Corporation bonds, it was announced yesterday. Home owners in Ohio applied for $120,400,000 loans, it was revealed. Corporation officials are checking the applications on which such agreement has been made.

Appraisals of eligible properties are being made before granting exchange of the bonds for mortgages. The bonds run for 18 years and carry 4 per cent interest.

Sally Eilers Rift With Studio Told

Dissatisfaction With Part Blamed for Trouble.

Hollywood, Sept. 27 (U.P.).—Sally Eilers, married Sunday in an airplane elopement with Harry Joe Brown, was believed today to have severed relations with the Fox Studios as a result of her refusal to appear in a picture with James Dunn.

The picture was to have been known as "Jimmy and Sally," but Miss Eilers objected that she had a minor role. She moved her furniture out of her Fox Studio dressing room today.

"I understand," Brown said, "that Sally wants to break her contract and go to Paramount, where I am a director."

Museum to Get Flag Seized at Gettysburg

Bedford, Va., Sept. 27 (Spl.). Mrs. Helen Early Turner has presented to the United Daughters of the Confederacy chapter here a flag captured by her uncle, the late John M. Early, at Gettysburg. The flag will be placed in the county museum.

More than 30 graves of Confederate soldiers have been marked by the chapter in the past year.

Dorothy Fell Soon to Marry Woolworth Kin

Daughter's Engagement to Donahue Told by Mrs. Mills.

Ogden L. Mills, former Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Mills, yesterday announced engagement of Mrs. Mill's daughter, Miss Dorothy R. Fell, to Woolworth Donahue, son of Mrs. James P. Donahue and grandson of F. W. Woolworth, founder of the 10-cent store chain.

The wedding is scheduled to take place early in the winter.

Miss Fell, whose father, a socially prominent New York and Philadelphia sportsman, died in Java last February, attended the Fermata School, and was introduced to New York society at a dance given by Mr. and Mrs. Mills at Woodbury, Long Island, in September, 1930.

She is granddaughter, on her mother's side, of the late Philip S. P. Randolph, and on the paternal side of Mrs. Alexander Van Rensselaer.

Mr. Donahue, who attended Hill School in Pennsylvania, afterward spent two years hunting big game in Africa and India.

Central Group For Transient Help Planned

Arthur S. Rosichan Heads New U. S. Relief Activity Here.

A central bureau to relieve Community Chest and other social agencies of Washington's transient problem will be established "as soon as possible" under the Federal transient aid plan, Arthur S. Rosichan, newly appointed director of the project, said last night. He will make a survey to determine funds necessary.

In line with the Federal transient scheme, the agency will not seek to make transients "move on" to other places, but will attempt to create a place for them to live here through their own efforts. Transient men, women, children and families will be cared for.

First step in the new system for caring for unemployed transients, Rosichan said, will be establishment of a registration bureau. Through registration of transients, an idea will be gained of the physical requirements of the new agency, the number of sleeping quarters necessary, food outlay and similar factors.

Plans Are Nebulous.

Plans for the agency as yet are nebulous, owing to the lack of concrete figures about the number of transients now cared for here. This care is scattered among the various charity groups.

Grants of $257,000 to 14 States to care for transients were announced yesterday by Harry L. Hopkins, Federal emergency relief administrator. No grant has been made to the District because of lack of definite plans, but officials estimated roughly that needs probably would exceed $60,000.

It was emphasized by Morris Lewis, Federal director of transient activities, that transient labor will not be put on the general labor market. Individuals aided by the District and State bureaus will have to work for their "keep," but such work will be strictly noncompetitive.

Hope Stop Begging.

The Federal agency, established by the emergency relief act, hopes that as a result of giving transients places to live that panhandling, hitch-hiking and "bumming" on trains will be drastically cut. The care for transients, both within and without the District, will be in no way compulsory for those aided, officials explained.

Woman Loses $20, Purse.

A pocketbook containing $20 and a gold wrist watch, owned by Mrs. Lottie C. Barnes, 1013 C street southeast, was lost in the market at Seventh and O streets northwest, Mrs. Barnes said.

THE VERY REV. ARCHPRIEST VIACHESLAV GINDLIN, rector of St. Alexander's Russian Orthodox Church, received yesterday a certificate designating him as Doctor of Christ, which was awarded for his scholarship and missionary work by church officials of Versailles, France. The degree, is signed by Archbishop Metropolitan Mars Timonius.

Georgetown Opens Today With Mass

President Coleman Nevils Will Preach.

A Mass of the Holy Ghost in Dahlgren Chapel, followed by a convocation of the student body at Georgetown University today will mark the formal opening of the 1933-34 academic year.

Dr. Coleman Nevils, S. J., president of the university, will celebrate the mass at 7:15 o'clock and preach a short sermon. He will be assisted by the Rev. Charles J. Foley, S. J., professor of philisophy, who will be deacon on the mass and the Rev. George A. Yanitelli, S. J., professor of latin, as subdeacon.

At 10 o'clock the student body will assemble in Gaston Hall at the College of Arts and Sciences. The newly appointed dean, the Rev. George F. Strohaver, S. J., will make the awards of scholastic honors among the undergraduates. President Nevils will address the students.

Paris Opera Building Saved.

Paris, Sept. 27 (AP).—The famous opera building escaped a disastrous fire today when a nearby watchman chanced to see flames shooting from its roof. Damage was $25,000.

Transit Union Final Approval Set for Today

Utilities Commission Hopes New Operation Will Start Soon.

The Public Utilities Commission today is expected to place its final stamp of approval on the agreement for merging the two street railways into the Capital Transit Co.

Just how soon the new company will begin operation is conjectural, though it will be in existence as soon as the articles of incorporation are filed with the recorder of deeds.

Commission officials hope the consolidated company will begin actual operation within two months, although the law permits a year's lapse.

Engineer Commissioner Gotwals yesterday revealed that plans for the Calvert Street Bridge, now awaiting approval of the Fine Arts Commission, provide for future extension of the underground power system across Calvert street, thus eliminating the plow pits at the eastern terminus.

The Capital Transit Co. is expected eventually to take up the matter of extending the underground system on Calvert street and in suburban areas.

250 Jobless Men Threaten Stores

Merchants Study Relief to Avert Disorder.

Central City, Ky., Sept. 27 (AP). Merchants here, faced with threats by 250 unemployed men, today were studying means of providing further relief.

They gave food yesterday for 64 families to last until Friday, when the local relief committee hopes for funds from outside sources. Meantime Mayor Charles Wells telegraphed Gov. Laffoon of the situation. He termed the situation critical.

Declaring "We want something to eat today—not tomorrow," the unemployed gathered yesterday, and threats were made to loot the stores if the necessities of life were not forthcoming immediately, but today there was no further demonstration.

Winchester & Western Valued at $425,000

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday fixed the value of the Winchester & Western Railroad Co., operating from Winchester, Va., to Wardensville, W. Va., for rate-making purposes at $425,000 as of December 31, 1927, and of property used but not owned at $15,837, according to the Associated Press.

Presidential Regatta Starts Tomorrow

Chief Executive Unable to Attend but Many Affairs Will Mark Brilliant Two-Day Event.

The absence of President Roosevelt from the Capital will prevent his attending the President's Cup Regatta tomorrow and Saturday in the Potomac River near Washington. The annual regatta is one of the outstanding motorboat events in the country, and the gold cup is the coveted prize of every competitor in the races.

It is probable Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland and Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia will be present at the invitation of Mr. John A. Remon, chairman of the regatta committee.

Tomorrow afternoon open house will be held at the Corinthian Yacht Club and will be attended by Government and racing officials. In the evening there will be the coronation of the "Queen of the Night Pageant," which will start at the club and proceed around Hains Point, where it can be viewed by the public.

On Saturday evening there will be an entertainment and dance at the National Press Club in conjunction with the President's Cup banquet, when all officials and those partaking in the races will be present.

Members of the Diplomatic Corps, officials and prominent residents will assemble aboard yachts and smaller craft to witness the various events, and the occasion will be outstanding in the social as well as in the boating world.

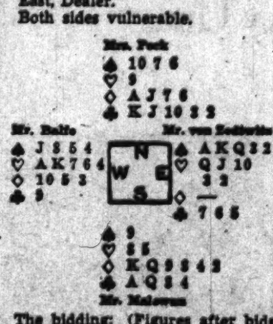
A Redouble With a Moral.

Ancient story-tellers made a practice of always appending a moral like a postscript at the end of their tales. The moral of the story might be trite, but at least in the opinion of the story-teller, it was true. I am not at all sure, but that the ancient story-tellers had a very good idea and one that even master Bridge players might frequently apply to their own great profit. The moral of this story is short and sweet. It is: When you are doubled by an opponent, do not redouble unless a penalty as great or greater than the premium you can make is in sight.

The hand which brings forth this homily was played in the experts' room at Crockford's Club, New York, and the offenders were two very fine players—no less than my old teammate, Waldemar von Zedtwitz, and that extremely keen psychologist, Raymond Balfe.

East, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

East	South	West	North
1♠	2◇	2♠	3◇
3♡	4◇	4♡	Pass
Pass	Dbl. (1)	Pass	Pass (2)
Redbl. (3)	5◇	Pass	Pass
Dbl.	Pass	Pass (4)	Pass

1—This Double is psychological. South is resigned to his opponents' playing the hand and hopes that if there are finesses in either spades or hearts the Double may induce Mr. von Zedtwitz to take them the wrong way.

2—Whether North should permit the hand to play at four hearts doubled or not is a reasonably close question. Probably the fact that West has never supported spades, indicating two or three spades losers, is a controlling factor in her decision.

3—The Redouble is very bad. Apparently four hearts can be made laid down and certainly East's hand does not suggest any strong defense against an adverse diamond.

4—West should not permit the doubled contract to hold, but he is possibly influenced by the fact that the double of five diamonds may indicate a trick in that suit. However, this prospect on the bidding is too remote to justify the pass.

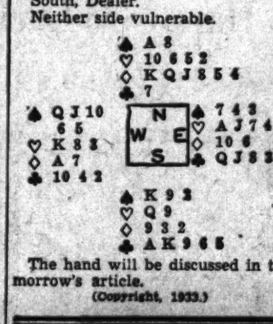
In the play Mr. Balfe, hoping to make some use of his three small trumps, opened the singleton club and in consequence Mr. Malowan made not only his contract of five diamonds doubled, but an overtrick as well.

It will be noted that East and West can make a Small Slam in either spades or hearts. The distribution is such that that contract would be hard to reach, but the distribution also strongly argues that East and West should play the hand at whatever reasonable contract they may be required to undertake.

Tomorrow's Hand.

What line of play can East and West adopt to defeat the contract of three notrump by South?

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Paper Hankies Do Their Work And Disappear

There Are Lots of Other Handy Gadgets Found by the Shopper.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

It was a hot day, a very hot day for fall. The shopper leaned back in her easy chair and closed her eyes as she made a mental list of all the things she must remember to buy. Suddenly she felt someone tap her smartly on the wrist and cry out in a gruff voice: "Hey, there, you, get up!"

She leaped to her feet hurriedly and stood confronting quite the largest, roundest human being she had ever seen. Furthermore, he was dressed most peculiarly in a scarlet robe and carried a policeman's club in his hand.

"How'd you get here?" he asked.

"Where am I?" asked the shopper.

"In the Land of Lost Things, of course," he told her. "Any of those yours?" He pointed to the mountainous piles of gloves, pins, bags, handkerchiefs and other things all around them.

"Very possibly. I'm always losing things," the shopper told him.

"I'll look you up in my records," decided the strange individual. He pulled out a mammoth notebook from under the folds of his voluminous cloak. "Yes, sir, here you are. Lot of handkerchiefs marked against you. So many, in fact, I'll have to sentence you."

The shoper trembled fearfully.

"You'll have to buy paper tissues and use them; they're good for cleansing, too," he went on.

The shopper awoke. "Oh, that's what I was trying to remember for my list—Paper handkerchiefs! Fourteen cents for a box of them."

You've heard of chore boys all your life, but the chances are you never heard of one as versatile as the young fellow selling for 10 cents in a G street store. He's really a small square of wiry cloth primarily for scrubbing pots and pans. But he has 242 other uses, besides, and they're all listed right on him. In the kitchen, pantry, laundry, cellar, bathroom, bedroom, garage, barn or office, he's a man of many works. In fact, he's ideal for cleaning and peeling vegetables. All he asks is a try, and that's up to you.

When you first see them, you'll say to yourself: "My, what a bristling little dog!" And that's what he is. He's small and wooden, but he bristles with the little clothes brush and hat brush he's carrying. He, himself, is a natural wood color, but the brushes are in red and green. He'll make an ornamental handy dog to have around. And he's yours for $1.50. You can buy a teakwood elephant, having the same mission in life, for $3.95.

Now is the time to take advantage of these low prices on undies, for as soon as the present supply is exhausted, you'll be digging deep in your pocketbook for others. An F street store has a table full of French crepe panties, chemise and dance sets in tearose, white and pink, trimmed in Alencon lace. When you see them, you'll realize there's not a garment there which isn't a remarkable value for $1.65. Even if you don't need them yourself right now, it's a real opportunity to pick up a few lovely gifts for Christmas.

An ingenuous young man in New York read where a large perfume house was going out of business and all the stock on hand was to be auctioned off. He didn't think much about it at the time, but decided he might as well drop around and look about. He noticed an especially strong essence which didn't seem to sell, so at the end of the auction he picked it up for an amazingly small price.

Having studied chemistry for several years, and being well versed in perfume composition, he set about making one all of his own. The results were amazing. Before he realized what had happened he had a splendid product on hand, which a well-known manufacturer could sell for fabulous prices.

He decided to sell his quite cheaply to give people a chance to find out about it. You can buy a small bottle of this really luxurious scent on sale at a downtown store, together with a box of dusting powder, for 59 cents.

Imagine finding anything quite like them! Even in wild dreams they'd appear fanciful, but there they were, real, honest-to-goodness gadgets. They're called French sponges, but they look like compressed cottony discs. You put one of them in your tub of water and it swells to goodly proportions and may be used as a wash cloth. Besides all this modern magic, they are antiseptic and disinfect your bath. You may buy them 10 in a tube for $1.

We've heard of double compacts for a long, long time, but triple compacts are somewhat newer. A downtown store has just gotten some in that you'd like even if you were prejudiced. They're as handy as any compact you'd want and they're smart looking with their satiny finish. Some of them have loose powder; others the regular cake. And there's rouge and lipstick besides.

Washington Woman Spurns Officials' Warning; Conquers Mexican Mountains Amid Hardships

Mrs. Estelle W. Douglas and Son Cross Rugged Range in Car.

When a red-haired woman in the prime of life starts out for adventure, you can count on records being broken—or established.

Estelle Williamson Douglas is back at her apartment at the Kennedy-Warren from a month's excursion into mountain regions of Old Mexico never before invaded by an American woman.

In the face of solemn warnings of Government officials, friends and wayfarers; challenging dirt, exhaustion and malnutrition, as well as the forces of nature, Mrs. Douglas motored over the towering Sabinas mountain range, between Monterey and Mexico City.

Son, 20, With Her.

With her was her 20-year-old son, Donald, also a redhead.

The trip took two days and two nights. For most of that time they were without food. Their only nourishment was a canteen of water, which midway in the trip gave way to a canteen of tea. One night they slept in a beetle-infested native hut. The next night was spent in their car on the mountain top.

Hour after hour, by daylight and dusk, they crept on stealthy wheels around climbing, corkscrew mountain turns. Herds of wild horses, sheep and goats sprang up to impede their progress.

"They would dart into our pathway and out to the edge of the 10-foot road. There they would perch, startled, on the verge of a sheer precipice, dropping down 3,000 or 5,000 feet. How they kept their footing I'll never know. Every time it happened, we held our breath in terror lest they fall," Mrs. Douglas recalled with animation.

Mrs. Douglas gives a spirited account of how it all came about.

"Donald had just bought a new car. It was between school terms and he hadn't a job. It was a trip we had often talked about and this seemed the time to take it. So, in the middle of July, we were off."

By easy stages, they reached the Mexican border and crossed at Nuevo, in Loredo. When Mexican officials found themselves unable to dissuade the adventurous redheads from the mountain trip, they broke a rigid military rule. They issued a pass for a tourist to carry a weapon.

Weapon Brings Respect.

Young Donald, with revolver prominently displayed in holster, was the cynosure of respectful native eyes and recipient of obsequious native courtesy, throughout the mountain journey. So proud is he of the seldom-issued Mexican gun permit he expects to frame it and hang it in his dormitory room at the University of North Carolina, where he went this week.

At Monterey, where motor tourists to Mexico City ordinarily abandon cars in favor of train transportation, the Douglases tarried to have their car overhauled against the mountain climb.

Here, the chorus of protests and warnings against the mountain journey rose again. But it fell, as before, on unheeding ears.

Beetles Infest Their Shanty.

At midday they were on their way to Mante, in the foothills of the Sabinas range. Arriving at nightfall, they were harbored overnight in a native house. With 3-inch beetles crunching under their feet as they entered the house they had to clear other swarms out of their room before they slept.

The following noon, after partaking apathetically of a Mexican breakfast, mother and son headed into the mountains. They were without provisions, save the canteen of water. At Vallee, a mountain village, they stopped late in the day, invaded a native kitchen and made some tea.

"We did not care for the native food we might have found en route and we hoped the tea would keep us up," Mrs. Douglas explained.

Toward midnight, completely exhausted, they agreed to spend the night on the road.

"We were awakened at 3 in the morning by native road construction gangs going to work. And we found ourselves with a flat tire," Mrs. Douglas continued. "The Mexican workmen showed not the slightest interest in us, strange as it may seem when one considers what an unexpected sight an American woman must have been on that road and sleeping in a car at that!"

Finally on their way again, encountering occasional stretches of paved roadway, negotiating countless fords due to road construction, Mrs. Douglas and her son reached Mexico City in late afternoon.

Illness Follows.

Here Mrs. Douglas betrayed the first ill effects of her daring journey. She was confined to bed for three days, under a doctor's care, suffering with "mountain sickness." And here she drew the rebuke of former Vice President Charles Curtis, a contemporary guest of the hotel, for her reckless courage in crossing the Sabinas range by motor.

Spend Night in Hut After Clearing Out Swarm of Huge Beetles.

"You were taking your life in your hands," he told Mrs. Douglas.

Much as she thrills to her conquest of the mountain, Mrs. Douglas would not care to repeat her experience. When leaving Mexico City for San Francisco, she entrained, shipping her car.

Suffering with a throat infection acquired on her mountain journey, Mrs. Douglas entered a hospital on her arrival in San Francisco. She further proved her endurance, however, by leaving her bed to accompany her son to the exposition at Chicago before returning home.

"It was Donald's vacation and I didn't want to spoil it. You know how enthusiastically boys cling to original plans," she smiled.

Night-Thieves.

By Katherine W. Smith.

Beneath the leaves of poplars hides
A wealth of silver dust
That gleams like coins when the moon
Is shining, and a gust
Of wind comes blowing stealthily
Like velvet-footed thieves
Then tosses all the silver up
From out the pocket-leaves.

Seven-Year-Old Girl Becomes Turf Champion

Tossed by Horse on First Ride, She Goes on to Win 40 Trophies.

Doris Dawley, youngest horsewoman in the annals of turf championships, has just won her fortieth trophy.

Her 40 trophies weigh more than she does. She is 7 years old, 46 inches high, and tips the scales at 50 pounds.

Two years ago her father bought her a pony. Doris got aboard, the pony bolted, Doris came a cropper. Too small for descriptive adjectives, she called her mount Lindy, and climbed back into the saddle. Three weeks later she rode off with fourth prize at Watertown, Conn., and has been stopping horse show's ever since.

Horse-show spectators from Madison Square Garden to Atlantic City hail her. She can put six trained ponies through a military drill with a professional cracking of the 12-foot whip. She is not interested in prizes, clippings, or in becoming a professional horsewoman.

Her father is a writer and musician. She says, in the American Magazine, "I want to be a doctor." And, having said this, the shy little girl of Watertown rolls her big, brown eyes, shakes out her bright, yellow curls, stops another horse show, and and takes another trophy.

Exhibition Is Set By Photographers

The first annual exhibition of the Washington Photographic Society, at 917 Twenty-third street northwest this evening, will be judged by David B. Edmonston, head of the local Edmonston Studios.

The guest list includes Dr. J. A. Almstead, chief photographer of the Smithsonian Institution; Clifton Adams, of the National Geographic; Capt. Frederick W. Hoorn, in charge of the Army Pictorial Service, and Burt H. Carroll, formerly with the Bureau of Standards.

The members of the society have on exhibition more than 80 pictorial photographs, a number of which have been exhibited in recent photographic competitions.

Officers of the society are Francis T. Marsten, War Department, president; Mrs. Alice E. Moreland, secretary, and Shaw Hall Matthews, of George Washington University, treasurer.

The Family Marketer

Prunes, Delectable, Healthful and Neglected, Suffer Through Name.

If prunes only had another name they might suddenly leap into popularity such as they have never known. Not that "prunes" is such a bad name, after all, but like "spinach" and "turnips," it just doesn't denote a delectable flavor.

But, as a matter of fact, prunes are delectable. They can be prepared any number of ways in desserts, such as prune pudding and prune whip.

Even stewed prunes can be prepared to win general favor. Why not try them this way? Put a pound of fine dried prunes in a saucepan. Cover with water. Place on the range to boil up a few times so they can soften, then drain and cover with a 28-degree syrup, adding two or three slices of lemon, a small piece of cinnamon and a quarter of a bottle of red wine. Place the saucepan on the stove and let the whole boil slowly until the prunes are done, then let stand until cold and serve on a compote dish.

They're Healthful, Too.

However, with fresh prunes on the market selling 4 pounds for 25 cents, there's no necessity of clinging to dried fruit. The fresh ones can be prepared the same way, or can be eaten like plums between meals. And don't forget to recommend them to the juniors in your home, for their iron content is notably high.

Broccoli is down another 5 cents, due to continuation of hot weather. Some dealers say they have trouble keeping it fresh and green on their stands all day. If you buy it in the morning to cook that evening be sure to keep it in a cool place. It would help if you would place it in a pan with a damp cloth over it and crushed ice all around it. If it turns yellow before you use it, you might as well discard it, for it's no good then.

Cabbage Down.

Cabbage is down, too. We were paying 7 cents a pound for it only a few days ago, whereas in the chain stores it's 3 cents, and in the markets, 5 cents.

You might be glad to see the fresh pineapple supply looking more plentiful. There's nothing which can add a flavor to punches, desserts and stewed fruits like the pineapple at its best. They are selling at 20 cents apiece, and, although most of them seemed to be in good condition, they are slightly smaller than usual.

Now we may walk in and buy lettuce, firm heads of the Iceberg variety, for 10 cents a head, while the dealer is paying $5 a crate of exactly 60 heads. During the last week the wholesale price jumped from $2.50 and $3 to $5, whereas the retail price remained unchanged.

Grapes Cheap—and Good.

All grapes except the local Concords are selling for 10 cents a pound. The Concords are 20 cents for a 3½-pound basket. They're all in the pink of condition and should be kept around the house to serve as family nibblers while they're in their prime.

All we can do is stand helplessly by and watch eggs mount. We can console ourselves with remembering that we knew them when they were only 25 cents. But our consolation is short lived when we realize we have to buy them now at 45 cents. And the pessimists will add we'll soon be paying 80 cents.

What Today Means

"Libra."

If September 28 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 to 11:20 a. m., from 1:30 to 2:45 p. m. and from 6 to 7 p. m. The danger periods are from 9 to 9:50 a. m., from 3 to 4:15 p. m. and from 8:30 to 9:20 p. m.

People generally will be inclined to be rude on this day and those with finer sensibilities will be easily shocked and hurt. You will feel "up on your toes" eager to be at your work, and the coming of night should see a good day's work done. You will have to choose your words in speaking with those of the opposite sex; they will be inclined to misunderstand and to misinterpret.

The child born on September 28 will be a frolicsome little one that will just bubble over with life. Because of its enthusiasm and spontaneity it will frequently let the cat out of the bag and give away secrets. A very honest and trusting little one that will go out of its way to keep from harming another.

If September 28 is the date of your birth, you are more than likely a person of great energy and one who likes to get action; you have no patience with people who think or act slowly. You must guard against the danger of plunging ahead too quickly without knowing just where you are going, or how you are going to get back. You will succeed best in some field where you can be out pretty much on your own hook. You do not like to be too closely supervised, and when it comes to working directly under some one and having to take orders from them, it is almost impossible for you to do it. You get along in business only with those people who try to understand you; you require a good deal of handling.

Born on September 28, you have a natural and deep love of things esthetic; anything beautiful moves you deeply. The chances are that you contribute in some way to the world of beauty; it is possible that you paint, sketch or write prose or poetry. Perhaps your love of beauty expresses itself only in the clothes that you wear, but a very definite touch of the artistic or appreciation of it will be found in your make-up somewhere. You are a rather well-balanced person except when it comes to affairs of the heart. Here your emotions run you completely and without rhyme or reason you embark on the most ardent and pointless love affairs.

Successful people born on September 28:

Arnold H. Guyot, geographer.
Richard H. Bull, mathematician.
Frances E. Willard, reformer.
Henry M. MacCracken, clergyman.
Kate Douglas Wiggin (Riggs), author.

Stubborn Tan Flees Before Oil Treatment

Finds a Method to Help Where Nature Forgot Her Job.

This is the season of the year when one's carefully acquired suntan—so smoothly golden and becoming through the summer—becomes a beauty boomerang unless it is handled carefully.

And there is a way to handle it—a very simple and effective way. In three consecutive sittings of 15 minutes each a woman can be restored to her original ivory or peach-bloom coloring. And her skin will be the fresher and more satin-smooth for the treatment.

On the other hand, if she neglects this simple autumn precaution, her skin throughout the winter may develop to an alarming degree two attributes of skin-age; withering and discolorations.

Sun rays of sufficient intensity to burn the epidermis to a golden-brown also are sufficiently fiery to more or less parch the oil sacs at the base of each pore. When these sacs cease to function, the muscles under the skin lose their firm tone and begin to shrivel. Forthwith, the skin covering relaxes into infinitely fine, crepe-like wrinkles.

So science, nature's worthy helpmate, has stepped into the breach with a brand-new beauty masque treatment to take care of this.

The 15-minute aspect of the treatment should make a powerful appeal to today's woman of crowded calendar, hurried this way and that to discharge social, professional and civic obligations.

This treatment, moreover, is excellent for the skin with large pores and relaxed muscles, and works wonders with the oily skin.

"It has a very firming effect on the face and throat muscles and, because of the hot oil treatment, is especially safe for the dry skin," declared a Washington skin authority.

New Wool and Felt Sports Hats Swing in Happy-Go-Lucky Lines

Directed by Amos Parrish.

Information as to where styles of the type illustrated and their variations are available in Washington will be given by the Fashion Department, The Washington Post, on request.

Happy-go-lucky. There's a good old-time word. And certainly just the one to describe the newest sports hats with their careless, comfortable lines.

Most any sports hat you pick up has a happy-go-lucky swing to it. Berets take a regular roller coaster swoon down over the right eye. Cloche brims swing up in back. Fedora crowns slide down from back to front.

Comfortable Berets.

If utmost comfort is your aim you need look no further than berets. There's so little of them they're feather-light. They won't blow off. They don't get in the way of coat collars. And they're easily packed.

One of the most popular is the draped type sketched. But square tam tops, pointed tops and ridged or pleated tops give you plenty of variety.

If it's brimmed hats you like you'll be taken with the new roll at the back of the brim of the newest cloches. Sometimes it's just a slight roll and sometimes it's quite snug against the crown.

Newest crowns are ridged, folded in envelope fashion as the one in the center sketch, draped or peaked. And the few which do keep the smooth oval line have sectional seamings, stitchings or tuckings for decoration.

The Fedora.

Another good brimmed choice for wear with tweeds and other tailored woolens is the fedora. Its brim has the swagger lines of a man's snap brim felt and, like the men, the girls who wear it give it a tug down over the right eye as in the right-hand sketch.

A very new fedora has a brim which rolls up slightly at the sides and makes you think a bit of the man's Homburg hat.

Then, of course, there are all sorts of little turbans, some draped with a twist to add height and some with turned-up cuff brims with peaked or folded crowns.

Hairy wools, ribbed wools, felt, velveteen and corduroy are the favorite materials for these sports hats. And it's smart to choose them in a colorful ensemble with gloves and scarf.

Neutral or Bright.

Browns, grays and beiges are the favorite neutral tones, while if you want to be bright you can do it with rust, bright green, bronzy green, red and royal blue.

When these sports hats have trimmings they are simple ones. Gay quills, shiny metal ornaments and grosgrain bands are the most popular ones. And they are generally placed high to give the hat the fashionable up-and-up look.

Tomorrow: Colorful Shirts and ties now an American complex.

Distinguished Audience to Attend Rialto Premiere—Next Week's Theater Bills

Many Notables To See Unique Sound Picture

All-Day "Grind" Showing Begins on Saturday at Popular Prices.

Under the partial sponsorship of the Minister of Denmark, Mr. Otto Wadsted, and his staff, the Washington premiere of "S O S Iceberg," with which the Rialto Theater will be reopened to the public on Friday night at 8:30, promises to be an event of genuine importance in the ushering in of the new theatrical season of 1933-34.

Among the distinguished guests who have signified their intention of being present to view one of the most unusual sound-and-dialogue films ever made are Ambassador Hans Luther of Germany, the Ambassador of Japan and Madam Debuchi, the Mexican Ambassador, Dr. Don Fernando Roa, the Ambassador of Turkey, Mr. Ahmet Muhtar, the Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull, the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. William H. Woodin, the Postmaster General and Mrs. James A. Farley, the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, Secretary Henry A. Wallace of Agriculture, the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper.

Under Secretary of State William Phillips, Assistant Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Henry L. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture R. G. Tugwell; Mr. Justice McReynolds of the Supreme Court of the United States, Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. Louis D. Brandeis, Senator Henry F. Ashhurst, of Arizona; Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, and Mr. and Mrs. Louis McHenry Howe, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen E. Early and Mr. and Mrs. Marvin H. McIntyre of the President's secretariat.

Five New Ones.

It is worthy of note that even with RKO-Keith's holding May Robson, Warren William, Ned Sparks, Guy Kibbee, Glenda Farrell, Nat Pendleton, et al., over for a second week in "Lady for a Day," and the Columbia playing a return engagement of Will Rogers in "Dr. Bull," based on James Gould Cozzens' best seller, "The Last Adam," the reopening of the Rialto, restoring to maximum the complement of downtown, first-run picture houses, will make five new films available to the faithful after tomorrow.

Judith Allen, Bing Crosby in "Too Much Harmony."—Metropolitan.

Rod La Rocque, Leni Riefenstahl in "S. O. S. Iceberg."—Rialto.

Elizabeth Young, Ricardo Cortez in "Big Executive."—Loew's Fox.

A Will Rogers Hit to Return For F St. Week

Will Rogers, the screen's most human, most lovable and most amusing star, returns to "F" street this week with "Doctor Bull," which Loew's Columbia is bringing back for the week beginning tomorrow.

All the genial humor, rapier wit and humanness that have made him the world's favored entertainer are incorporated in this, the drollest story of his cinematic march to the heights.

"Doctor Bull" is a picture based on James Gould Cozzens' best-selling novel, "The Last Adam," and was produced by Fox.

"Dr. Bull" also boasts a strong cast, embracing Marian Nixon, Louise Dresser, Andy Devine, Ralph Morgan, Vera Allen, Howard Lally and Berton Churchill.

A complete booking of short subjects, latest news pictures and a laugh-provoking comedy augment the feature.

Film Table

Feature pictures and stage shows are presented on the following schedule:

RKO-Keith's—"Lady for a Day," at 11 a. m., 1:05, 3:20, 5:20, 7:30 and 9:40 p. m. Stage presentations at 12:40, 2:55, 7:05 and 9:15 p. m.

Loew's Fox—"This Day and Age," at 10:45 a. m., 1:20, 4:15, 7:15 and 9:50 p. m. Stage shows at 12:30, 3:25, 6:20 and 9 p. m.

Earle—"Torch Singer," at 11:10 a. m., 1:40, 4:35, 7:25 and 10 p. m. Stage shows at 12:40, 3:30, 6:25 and 9 p. m.

Palace—"Pilgrimage," at 12:15, 2:35, 4:55, 7:15 and 9:35 p. m.

Gloria Stuart in "Secret of Blue Room."—Earle.

Will Rogers in "Dr. Bull."—Columbia.

May Robson in "Lady for a Day" —RKO-Keith's.

Alice Brady in "Stage Mother." —Palace.

A Strong Film, Street Singer Lead Fox Bill

Radio's most pleasing personality, Arthur Tracy, better known as "The Street Singer," holds the top notch position in the stage show opening tomorrow at Loew's Fox Theater.

Tracy is no stranger to Washington, being one of the loyal local sons who has become famous not only on Broadway, but on the radio and in motion pictures as well. When the initial strains of his theme melody are heard it is usually a signal for radio listeners to pull up their chairs and spend an enjoyable 15 minutes listening to an excellent program.

Ricardo Cortez, who caused such a sensation in "Midnight Mary" and "The Torch Singer," returns to the screen to take the leading role in "Big Executive," a Paramount picture with Richard Bennett, Elizabeth Young and Sharon Lynn in the principal supporting roles.

"Big Executive" is a swift, high-powered tale of a modern business racketeer who makes his fortune on the misfortunes of others and is successful until he falls in love with the daughter of a prospective client.

Star performers who surround Tracy on the stage include Mills, Gold and Raye, in humorous songs, patter and dances; the Carrie and Eddie Revue of sensational dancing and the refreshing nonsense of Paul Nolan, the jesting Swede.

There is also a Phil Lampkin overture.

Metropolitan Presents Star Musical Cast

With many beautiful girls, dozens of musical numbers and spectacular dance scenes, "Too Much Harmony," will occupy the screen at Warner Bros. Metropolitan Theater, beginning tomorrow. Starring Bing Crosby, popular stage, screen and radio songster, it boasts a supporting cast led by Jack Oakie, Skeets Gallagher, Lilyan Tashman and Judith Allen.

"Too Much Harmony," moving in and out of a theatrical atmosphere, features the adventures of a group of show people rehearsing for a forthcoming musical comedy. Bing Crosby, star of the show, is engaged to the fascinating gold-digger, Lilyan Tashman. He meets Judith Allen while on a trip in the West, tures of "Mystery of the Wax Museum," you will enjoy the newest, most harrowing of mystery thrillers, "The Secret of the Blue Room." Imagine an old, musty castle. Imagine a sinister master of the house, a beautiful girl, a newspaper reporter, a youth desperately in love, and a handsome Marine officer all helplessly entangled in a web of unseen death, all striking, all striking blindly, at a leering something that seeks to destroy them, one by one.

Barbara Stanwyck needs no introduction in Washington, being one of its greatest screen favorites. However, this is her first personal appearance in this city. She presents, with a company of four, an entertaining sketch, "The Interview," which has been selected to display her charm and talent to the best advantage.

Other acts are Britt Wood, "the boob, himself," and his harmonica; Johnnie Woods, the original ballyhooligan; Stone and Vernon, in dance divertissements, and Gracie Barrie, mistress of ceremonies.

Epic of Arctic The Choice to Reopen Rialto

The Rialto Theater reopens for the fall picture season tomorrow, September 29, with one of the most remarkable pictures of the year, "S. O. S. Iceberg," a unique subject which Dr. Arnold Fanck required a year to make in the vast wastes of Greenland for Universal Pictures and Carl Laemmle, the noted picture producer.

In the cast are Red LaRocque, Leni Riefenstahl, Gibson Gowland, Walter Riml, Max Holsboers, Ernst Udet, the great German flier, and Knud Rasmussen, the Arctic explorer.

"S. O. S. Iceberg" is a true epic and brings the Arctic lands to the camera in pictorial brilliance. For the first time in picture history, sound cameras were sent to the ice packs bordering the North Pole. Dr. Fanck shared the honors of direction with Tay Garnett.

The opening of "S. O. S. Iceberg" is sponsored by the Danish Legation through the Danish Minister to the United States, Mr. Otto Wadsted. Denmark aided Universal Pictures in making "S. O. S. Iceberg," offering its cooperation to the expedition and the technical men who accompanied the Fanck party.

On the opening night a gala, Hollywood first-night is promised. Only a single showing of the film will be given, and social, political and diplomatic notables have been invited to view this remarkable film.

On Saturday, September 30, the picture opens a Washington run at regular Rialto Theater prices.

Miss Stanwyck Headlines the Earle Program

Washington has its first opportunity to see Barbara Stanwyck, alluring Hollywood screen star in person this week.

Miss Stanwyck, away from the studio for a few weeks, is making a personal appearance as the headline attraction of the Earle Theater stage show beginning tomorrow. The screen portion of the program features "The Secret of the Blue Room," a Universal mystery thriller, with Lionel Atwill, Gloria Stuart and Paul Lukas.

If you have thrilled to the flesh-devouring fiend of "Doctor X," if you have been chilled by the eerie creathinks she has great stage possibilities and makes her a member of the show—and promptly falls in love with her.

Eight new song hits by Arthur Johnston and Sam Coslow are introduced in the film. They are "Thanks," "Buckin' the Wind," "Cradle Me With a Hot-Cha Lullaby," "Black Moonlight," "Boo-Boo-Boo," "The Day You Came Along," "The Two Aristocrats," and "I Guess It Had to Be That Way."

Completing the program will be selected short reels, including a new Looney Tune Song Cartoon, entitled "We're In the Money;" "The March of the Champions," a Grantland Rice Sportlight, showing scenes of Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney, Bill Tilden, Helen Wills, Gertrude Ederle and Johnny Weismuller in swift action, and the latest issue of the Paramount Sound News.

Alice Brady in A Stage Story At the Palace

Alice Brady reveals again that she is the screen's chief claimant for honors as a character actress with her sterling efforts in "Stage Mother," the absorbing narrative of backstage life that will be featured tomorrow at Loew's Palace theater.

"Stage Mother" is Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's filmization of the widely heralded novel by Bradford Ropes, who also authored "Forty-Second Street."

An exceptionally strong cast has been assembled to appear with Miss Brady. Maureen O'Sullivan plays the young daughter, struggling for stage fame under her mother's guidance. Franchot Tone is seen as her young lover and Phillips Holmes attempts his most mature role, that of a titled nobleman who wins the affections of Miss O'Sullivan.

Dance numbers that serve as a background for this vivid story were staged by Albertina Rasch, who has staged the dances for many of Broadway's stage hits.

A Laurel and Hardy laugh provoker, "Busy Bodies," is an added feature along with news subjects and selected short features.

May Robson Is Held Over for Another Week

RKO-Keith's is to continue the engagement of "Lady For a Day," featuring May Robson and Warren William, for an additional week.

This Damon Runyan picture, which has won universal approval, has in its cast, in addition to the featured players, such well-known screen and stage names as Guy Kibbee, Walter Connolly, Nat Pendleton, Jean Parker and Ned Sparks.

The stage appearances of Arthur Godfrey and winners in a N. B. C.-R. K. O. contest will not be continued into the second week, due to previous contract obligations of Mr. Godfrey's.

A special short subject of David L. Hutton, husband of Aimee Semple McPherson and former barytone of the famous Angelus Temple, will "tell his side of the story" in what is said to be entertaining fashion.

Retail Price-Fixing by Code

Proposed Provision Would Hurt Public and Make Inventories of Stores Slow-Moving

By RALPH WEST ROBEY
Financial Editor

PUBLICATION of the retail code in advance of its being submitted to the Administration is said to be for the purpose of getting the attitude of the public on its provisions. The feature about which there is most question is that of price fixing, which in the Washington discussion is broken down into "price maintenance" and "price control." If these provisions are to remain in the code, the public will have to pay more for its products and the retail merchandising business will be done serious injury.

The "price-maintenance" feature sets as the minimum at which goods may be sold the wholesale delivered price plus 10 per cent. The major exceptions in the ordinary run of business are for bona fide clearance, highly perishable merchandise and imperfect and actually damaged goods. In each of these cases the cause of the low prices must be plainly made known. "Price-fixing" refers to the prohibition of selling any "standard trade-marked drug products" at more than 21 per cent below the retail price advertised by the manufacturers.

Purpose Is to Prevent Predatory Price-Cutting

Those who have drafted these provisions explain their purpose is to prevent predatory price-cutting. If this can be done, it is held that stability will be given to retail trade and that this will be reflected in better conditions throughout the country. There is much to say for this point of view. At the same time, it is essential to bear in mind the effect of such price-fixing upon the welfare of consumers and upon the long-term solvency of retail organizations.

These effects in the final analysis will rest upon the interpretation which is to be placed upon the exceptions made in the code. Obviously, the term "bona fide clearance" could be made to cover almost any condition since the whole business of merchandising consists in clearing goods off the shelves at the most profitable figure. One must assume, therefore, that a reasonably rigid interpretation is to be placed upon this exception. This means that if the code is adopted, there will have to be a substantial readjustment in the recognized retail practice of marking down goods in order to get them to move.

Marking-Down Is an Automatic Retail Practice

In its most advanced form this marking down is an automatic process. If goods have not been sold within a stipulated time after they have been placed on the shelves, a set markdown is made. After a further lapse of time there is a further reduction and so on until a price is reached at which the public does buy the goods.

If stores are not permitted to continue this practice, it means, therefore, on the one side, that their inventories will become relatively frozen and, on the other, that the public will not enjoy the benefits of this determination of retail managers to keep their stock moving through price reductions. The provisions, in other words, have a strong smell of having been formulated by merchandisers who have found the competition of well-managed stores too severe. Meeting the demand of such a group cannot help us out of the depression. We need stability, but it must be the lasting stability which comes from efficiency and good judgment, and not the temporary stability obtained by freezing business initiative.

School Looted Of $8,000,000 Says McWane

Candidate for Governor Hits Political Trickery in Arlington Speech.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Fred McWane, Republican candidate for Governor of Virginia, opened his campaign in Arlington County yesterday in an address before the Organized Women Voters at Olivet Methodist Church.

He declared himself "for honesty in politics," and said it was wrong to put roads ahead of schools.

The average school teachers' salary in Virginia is $350, he said, yet the "Blue Eagle" flies over the capitol in Richmond. He claimed State school funds have been robbed of $8,000,000 through political chicanery.

McWade lauded T. Coleman Andrews, former State auditor of public accounts, for his investigation work. He found 46 county treasurers short in accounts and other discrepancies in State and local fiscal affairs, McWade said, but, "ceased when he started on the highway department."

Need Man Like Andrews.

"If the Republicans come into power in Virginia," McWade asserted, "we are going to get someone like Coleman Andrews and keep him there. We would pin medals on him."

"School terms are being curtailed," he continued, "and the school program almost has stopped."

Allen B. McDaniel, Arlington County sanitary engineer, also spoke and explained plans for installation of the county-wide sewerage system.

The organization voted to hold a special meeting in October to consider the Byrd road plan.

Following were elected on the committee to select officers to be elected in November: Mrs. George A. Collier, Mrs. Arthur Orr, Mrs. H. H. Simpson, Mrs. Pearle W. Sharpe, Mrs. Caroline Royall, Mrs. Alice Semones, and Mrs. Bertha Kelly.

Relief Drive Planned.

Plans for $10,000 relief fund drive in the county were completed last night by the citizens' relief committee of Arlington County. Virtually all sections of the county are organized.

Gilbert L. Hall, chairman, announced 7,000 letters requesting contributions are ready for mailing. Window cards, placards and buttons also are ready. A benefit dinner is planned for October 11.

Cadets Win Promotions.

Col. C. A. McNeill, commandant of cadets at the Washington Lee High School, yesterday announced the following promotions:

Cadet Maj. F. Utterback, captain and adjutant; John Roberts, captain; George Brunner, supply officer.

Captain Company A, W. Bell; Company B, I. Goings; Company C, D. Dugan.

Sergt. Maj., Alexander Long; first sergeant Company B, R. Strickler; first sergeant Company C, T. Johnson.

Promotions in the Girls Auxiliary are: Major, Margaret Kirschner; captain Company I, Katherine Hagan; captain Company K, Margaret Bailie; First lieutenants: Company K, Marion Ewald; Company I, Gertrude Finklestin; staff, Mildred Chewning; second lieutenants: Company I, Alice Besley; Company K, Hilda Howell; adjutant, Elizabeth Shelton.

Repeal Workers Named.

Precinct workers in Arlington County to conduct the fight for repeal of the eighteenth amendment were appointed yesterday by Chairman Thomas W. Phillips. They are:

Arlington—Emery N. Hosmer, Broadman Munson, A. L. Scheffel, Thomas A. Flynn and George F. Dube; Ballston—Thomas J. Crack, Lewis E. Summers, Henry P. Batch; Carne—Mrs. Dorot Dunn, Lawrence Maus, Lawrence Marcey and Frank L. Woolfolk; Cherrydale—Fred Doe, Harry Clark, Gordon Marcey; Glencarlyn—John H. Olcott, R. L. Weaver and Carl A. Schultze; East Falls Church—Charles R. Fenwick, Reginald Turner, Edward E. Eldridge; Rosslyn—R. Blakley James, William E. A. McShea, George T. Collins; Virginia Highlands—Albert M. Jones, George W. Wilson and Edward Duncan; Lyon Park—Hugh J. McGrath and Howard C. Duckson; Clarendon, No. 1—Mrs. Clara E. Nevin, H. B. Mitchell, Maynard M. Carlisle, and John E. Crack; Clarendon, No. 2—Leo C. Lloyd, P. R. Burke and I. C. Buchanan.

Mrs. Morsell Recovers.

Mrs. Ernest Morsell, of Clarendon, who has been suffering 10 days from a sprained ankle, is up again.

Mrs. Ballenger Head Of King's Daughters

Mrs. Marion Ballenger, of Washington, was reelected president of the King's Daughters Circles of Fairfax County, at the annual convention in Sherwood Hall. Mrs. D. J. Garber, of Franconia, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Delegates from circles of Fairfax County, Alexandria and Washington attended. The principal speaker was Mrs. Henry Eley, of Suffolk, Va., State president. Others were Mrs. William Cleveland, of the Fairfax County Welfare Board; Mrs. Reba Smith, of Alexandria, official of the Florence Crittenton Missions, and Mrs. Taylor Burke, of Alexandria. The convention next year will be held in Alexandria.

Queen of Piedmont Dairy Festival

Miss Mary Stevens Jones (left), named Regina III, Queen of the Third Annual Piedmont Virginia Festival at Manassas, Va., Saturday. Miss Jones is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Jones, of Stevensburg, Culpeper County, Va. Miss Jeanette Michelbach, daughter of Frank Michelbach, of Alexandria, Va., who will represent Alexandria as princess in the festival.

Eight Bands to Be Heard In Virginia Dairy Festival

Senator Byrd Will Officiate at Coronation of Queen; Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley to Ride With Leesburg Hunt Club.

Manassas, Va., Sept. 27 (AP).—Representatives of 11 northern Virginia counties gather here Friday and Saturday for the third annual celebration of the Piedmont Virginia Dairy Festival.

Ample provision has been made that the program shall not suffer from lack of music. Eight bands already have accepted invitations to join in the parade and other festivities, and invitations have been extended to others.

Parade to Be Feature.

The grand "Milky Way" parade will be the feature closing event of the day-time program Saturday. Organizations which will take part in the parade are Boys' Independent Band, of Washington; Culpeper Municipal Bank, Fredericksburg High School Band, Washington and Lee Band, Linton Hall Band, Alexandria Amreican Legion Drum and Bugle Corps, Richmond Light Infantry Blues and the Alexandria Band.

Marchers in the parade, to be led by Regina III, queen of the festival, will include school children from the 11 participating counties, 4-H Clubs, Future Farmers Clubs, fire departments and other organizations.

More than a score of floats also are entered in the parade.

Hunt clubs from Leesburg, Rock Creek, Warrenton and Prince William will ride in the parade, and others have been invited. Mrs. Patrick Jay Hurley, wife of the former Secretary of War, will ride with the Leesburg Club.

Ball to Open Festival.

The festival will open Frdiay night with the opening ball at Manassas High School Gymnasium. Coronation ceremonies for the queen will be held Saturday morning at Annaburg, the Portner estate near here. Senator Harry Flood Byrd will act as master of ceremonies.

Following the coronation, children of Prince William schools will present a pageant depicting growth of the dairy industry.

The parade and an aerial exhibition in the afternoon and the queen's ball Saturday evening will close the program.

Milk Groups To Hold Parley In Code Battle

Hagerstown Mayor Issues Call in Attempt to Bring Accord.

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 27 (Spl.).—Mayor I. M. Wertz today called a mass meeting of all branches of the milk industry, as well as consumers to reach an agreement and, if possible, obtain a revision of the present code.

The meeting will be held Friday night in the armory. The mayor will preside. He invited representatives of business clubs, the chamber of commerce and other civic groups.

The meeting was called after milk distributors and producers in the Hagerstown area prepared to appeal to Secretary Wallace. D. Angle Wolfinger, attorney here, representing 18 Maugansville distributors selling milk in Hagerstown, said his clients received telegrams from Wallace ordering them to sell for the code price. They replied they did not sign the Philadelphia marketing agreement and did not consider themselves bound by its provisions.

One milk distributor has been cited for violation of the code and 26 others warned that unless they abided by its provisions they will be cited and their licenses suspended or revoked.

Producers contend distributors are charging 11 cents a quart, an increase of 3 cents over the price paid prior to the code, and are failing to pass on shares in this boost to dairy farmers.

Stanley R. McCoy, local distributor, cited by the Department of Agriculture for refusal to sell his milk at the code scale, and given until October 4 to show cause why his license should not be revoked, stated today he had no intention of opposing the Government, but he could not do business when 26 competitors were selling milk below the code price.

Students Decrease At Maryland U.

Drop of 3 Per Cent in Year Laid to Depression.

Total enrollment of the University of Maryland is 3 per cent less than last year, it was announced yesterday.

Reduction from 1,786 students registered at this time last year, to 1,725 this year is attributed to the depression.

Other schools, it was pointed out, have listed greater reductions.

Enrollments for the various colleges follow:

Agriculture, 160; College of Arts and Sciences, 821; College of Education, 216; College of Engineering, 320; Home Economics, 110; graduate school, 98.

Chattanooga Seeks Confederate Meet

Legion Post Invites Civil War Veterans.

Petersburg, Va., Sept. 27 (AP).—The United Confederate Veterans have been invited to hold their 1934 convention in Chattanooga, Gen. Homer Atkinson, commander in chief, said today.

Gen. Atkinson said three conventions have been held in the Tennessee city.

The invitation was extended by the Davis King Summers Post, No. 14, American Legion, through its commander, Frank S. Dawson.

Washington Midshipman Awarded Regimental Post

"Five Stripe" Honor Goes to New York Student.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 27 (Spl.).—Commander of midshipmen, highest post attainable by a Naval Academy student, has been bestowed upon Edward J. Fahy, New York City. Announcement of the regimental organization for the academic year was made today by Rear Admiral Thomas C. Hart, superintendent.

The appointments are based upon efficiency and work done during the summer cruise. Fahy is a "star" member of the senior class and a member of the gymnasium team. The commander is known as the "five striper." Next highest post, regimental subcommander or "four striper," went to Richard G. Akeroyd, El Paso, Tex.

A Washington boy, Frank C. Tharin, was designated ensign and color bearer. Other staff officers are lieutenant and adjutant, Robert H. Milrath, Milwaukee, Wis.; lieutenant and signal officer, Edward R. Tilburne, New York City; junior lieutenant and commissary, Shester A. Siver, Kenosha, Wis.; junior lieutenant and color bearer (national), Ernest E. Christensen, Landover, Md.; chief petty officer, Frank A. Nusom, Rockport, Tex.

Commanders and subcommanders, of the four battalions, ranking as lieutenant commanders and lieutenants, respectively, were named as follows:

First, George E. Mumma, Chicago, and William B. Brooks, Corpus Christi, Tex.; second, Frank M. Whitaker, Spokane, Wash.; William M. McCormick, Perth Amboy, N. J.; third, John J. Waybright, Clarksburg, W. Va.; James D. Fulp, jr., Greenwood, S. C.; fourth, Harley K. Nauman, Frankfort, Kans., and William W. Keller, Scranton, Pa.

Lieutenants and company commanders: John M. Wilson, Scottsburg, Ind.; William McMillan, Arlington, Wis.; Manown Kiser, Monessen, Pa.; Hugh Q. Murray, Newnan, Ga.; Charles Blenman, jr., Tucson, Ariz.; George F. Pittard, Thomaston, Ga.; Melvin H. Dry, Lancaster, Pa.; Edward F. Dissette, Detroit, Mich.

James W. Brock, Hackettstown, N. J., was designated commander of the bugle corps, with rank of lieutenant.

Floats Placed For Piedmont Dairy Parade

Order of Appearance Set; Fairfax Entries Top Last Two Years.

Entries from Fairfax County, Va., in the Piedmont Dairy Festival will exceed those of the past two years, John W. Brookfield, festival committee chairman of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce, announced the order of the floats in the parade.

The floats as they will appear are:

Replica of old Falls Episcopal Church, whose history dates back to 1774, loaned through courtesy of Mayor L. P. Daniels, of Falls Church.

Float representing Mount Vernon, followed by a reproduction of Woodlawn, occupied by the following in colonial costume: Miss Warwick Rust, Miss Randolph Richardson, Miss Ann Stuntz, Miss Gene Redfield Talbott, Miss Virginia Eaton and Miss Elizabeth Payne.

Reproduction of Gunston Hall, occupied by Miss Waneta Mae Kidwell, Centerville District; Miss Mary Josephine Armfield, Dranesville District; Miss Elizabeth Lynch, Falls Church District; Miss Frances Cecilia Read, Lee District; Miss Elizabeth Hopkins, Mount Vernon District, and Miss Adele Pfalzgraf, of Providence Magisterial District.

Float depicting a scene at Ravensworth, occupied by Miss Mary Lee, Miss Margaret Keith, Miss Anne Shreve Cleveland, Miss Alice Allen and Miss Helen Webb, daughters of the past presidents of the chamber of commerce, and Master Robert E. Lee 4th.

Float representing Ossian Hall, home of Senator Joseph L. Bristow, to be occupied by the senator's granddaughters and four other Fairfax girls.

Ash Grove float, occupied by the children of Herbert Haar and the grandchildren of Supt. M. M. Barnard of the District Workhouse.

Roosevelt's Son Quits Grid for Boat

Declares Football Robs Study Period.

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 27 (AP).—Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., Harvard freshman, son of the President, today returned his football equipment and joined the crew squad. Coach Burt Maines started him as stroke in the second freshman eight.

Young Roosevelt's first athletic choice was football. He drew his equipment last Saturday, before starting his classwork. He withdrew, he explained, because his studies would not permit him to devote two hours a day to the gridiron.

Chevy Chase Civic Unit Elects R. C. Corderman

Roy C. Corderman last night was elected president of section eight, Chevy Chase Citizens Association. John Overholt was chosen first vice president; W. T. Allen, second vice president; R. C. Duncan, secretary, and William F. Henry, treasurer.

William Buckley was elected delegate to the Bethesda fire department and J. Harry Welch, John Overholt and Roy C. Corderman, delegates to the county feredation.

Repeal Rally Sponsored by State Groups; Bland Aids Cause.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 27 (AP).—The repeal campaign in Virginia centered in Richmond tonight, with an address by C. O'Connor Goolrick, of Fredericksburg, as the feature.

Mr. Goolrick, a foremost advocate of repeal, spoke under auspices of Virginia repeal organizations.

The State repeal committee issued a statement in which Representative S. Otis Bland, of Newport News, was quoted as saying prohibition enforcement efforts have failed and that he would vote for repeal.

The emergency prohibition movement headquarters here also issued a statement, quoting T. C. Walter, Negro lawyer of Gloucester, as saying "the wholesome relation" between races in Virginia was largely the outcome of the removal of the saloon.

Early Mormon Leader Dies in Salt Lake City

Salt Lake City, Sept. 27 (AP).—Brigham H. Roberts, 76, president of the first council of 70 of the Latter Day Saints Church, died at a hospital here today.

He was a writer of historical and theological works. The church leader was born in England and came to Utah with his widowed mother when he was 9 years old.

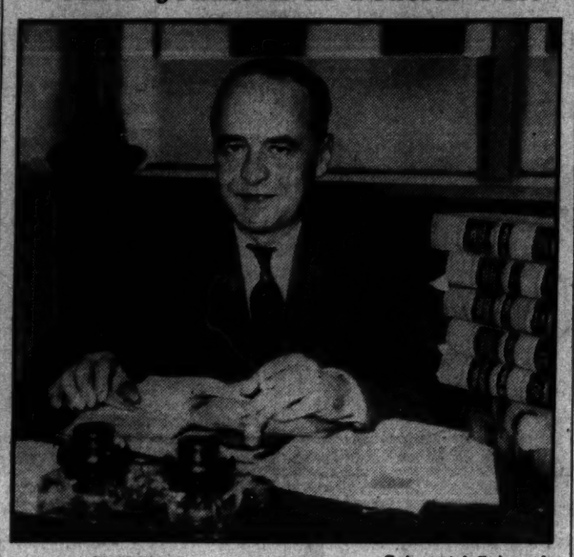
Mrs. Mabel G. Dawson yesterday won grand prize in a flower show of the Garden Club of Brookmont, Md.

Other prize winners included William F. Dawson, prettiest garden; Mrs. A. C. Cutting, best lilly pool; C. R. Greimel, greatest garden improvement; A. C. Cutting, best rock garden; Millard F. Hudson, most attractive home. Dr. Furman L. Melford was chief judge.

Dr. Hagan Heads Dentists.

Dr. E. R. Hagan was elected president of the Arlington County Dental Society last night. Dr. R. L. Williams was named vice president; Dr. C. R. Boyland, treasurer, and Dr. H. A. Boston, secretary.

Fourth Johnston in Federal Post



Underwood & Underwood.

ALEXANDER JOHNSTON, brother of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, who took up duties as assistant to solicitor in Department of Commerce in charge of shipping board cases.

Whether Name is Spelled With "t," Johnson's Kin Join to Aid U. S.

The Commerce Department Building is just one big home to the family of Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson.

Whether listed on pay rolls as "Johnson" or "Johnston," they now number four, occupying key posts in both the Commerce Department and the National Recovery Administration.

Latest addition to the official family is Alexander Johnston, of Tulsa, Okla., brother of Administrator Johnson. Yesterday he took over his desk as assistant to the solicitor of the Commerce Department, in charge of Shipping Board cases.

Recently Kilbourne Johnston, the administrator's son, was assigned to unraveling NRA legal tangles, and earlier the Administrator brought in his wife to aid him in the drive toward recovery.

Whether "Johnson" or "Johnston," its all the same family, friends explained. Gen. Johnson lost the "t" from his name during his travels through the West years ago. But when his son entered West Point, he discovered it again. The son has spelled his name "Johnston" ever since.

County Gets School Loan

Prince Georges Granted Fund by Public Works Board.

Allotment of $408,000 to the board of education, Prince Georges County, in the public works expansion program, was announced yesterday by Federal Administrator of Public Works Harold L. Ickes. The sum is a fraction of other allotments to 31 non-Federal project in 12 States.

The allotment is in the form of a loan and grant for the construction of new school buildings and additions to existing buildings throughout the county. Approximately $103,000 is a grant, and the balance is to be repaid by the applicant from revenues.

Work can begin in 30 days, and it will give employment to 160 men for the duration of construction.

An exact list of contemplated building was unavailable last night, but County Superintendent Nicholas Orme said the expenditures were figured at $440,000, and therefore the grant fell $32,000 short of expectations.

An addition to the consolidated school at Upper Marlboro, to cost $70,000, headed Orme's list. Altogether 15 buildings or additions will be constructed.

Among allotments made public yesterday were $11,000 to Nelson County, Va., for a school; $2,000 to Rocky Mount, Va., for repairing schools.

Services Today For Mrs. Weems

Burial Set for Arlington National Cemetery.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 27 (Spl.).—Funeral rites for Mrs. Elizabeth Dey Weems, 43, wife of Judge Donald L. Weems, will be held here tomorrow at Sacred Heart Catholic Church. The Rev. Father Robert E. Hannon will officiate. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Mrs. Weems was a native of Norfolk, a daughter of the late Capt. and Mrs. W. W. Dey. Her father for many years was revenue commissioner at Norfolk. She is survived by her husband, a son, John Weems, and a brother, W. A. Dey.

Sleuth Convicted Of Attacking Thug

Faces Year for Assault on Capone Gangster.

Chicago, Sept. 27 (AP).—Former Detective Sergeant Harry Lang, member of the late Mayor Anton Cermak's special crime squad, was convicted tonight of assault with a deadly weapon upon Frank Nitti, Capone gangster.

The verdict carries up to a year imprisonment. Lang was suspended after he refused to testify against Nitti when the gangster was tried for shooting him.

Lang maintained he was shot for his ardor in protecting Cermak, who, he said, was marked for assassination.

Truck Driver Injured.

Louis G. Brownstein, 31, of 1352 Fairmont street northwest, was injured yesterday when a truck he was driving collided with another truck driven by W. J. Yowry, 21, of 1505 Gales street northeast.

NRA Gives Work To 127 in County

Prince Georges Employers 96 Per Cent Enrolled.

A total of 127 full-time employes and 15 part-time employes have been added by Prince Georges County employers since the NRA campaign, according to reports received yesterday by H. Winship Wheatley, jr., of Hyattsville. In addition, 50 part-time employes have been restored to full time.

The figures are based on reports received by Mr. Wheatley from chairmen of committees in 13 of the 21 districts of the county.

An average of 96 per cent of the employers in the county have signed or promised to sign the President's reemployment agreement.

Apple Yield Falls Below Early Report

Virginia Harvest So Far Only 20 Per Cent of Estimate.

Harrisonburg, Va., Sept. 26.—The Virginia apple harvest has progressed far enough to show the crop of No. 1 apples will be much lower than recently published estimates, W. S. Campfield, secretary of the Virginia State Horticultural Society, said today.

"Apples harvested up to this time have packed out only about 20 to 30 per cent of earlier estimates," Mr. Campfield said today. "In some cases the pack has been even less.

"There are many excellent crops scattered throughout the State, which are packing out fruit of fine quality and nearly up to estimates. But on the whole Virginia will pack out the shortest apple crop of the past 10 years, with one exception. Some persons well acquainted with crop conditions throughout the State think that it will not pack more than three-quarters of a million barrels. A few believe it will be nearer a half million barrels.

"Prices offered now are compared to the short crop of quality fruit in the eastern United States.

"I have completed a survey of Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia and Virginia, covering 3,000 miles by auto, and find the crop in this area, normally 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 barrels of No. 1 apples, will be not more than 1,200,000 barrels this year and perhaps less.

"The crop of York Imperials, a favorite apple in England, the production of which is confined almost entirely to the Cumberland-Shenandoah Valleys district, will not pack more than 20 per cent normal. There is a good crop of apples in Nova Scotia and Canada, which will find a market in England due to trade barriers against our apples, but England will take some of our Yorks. The Shenandoah-Cumberland district has not enough of U. S. No. 1 grade Yorks to supply even a restricted demand, however.

"Many people feel storage of the better grade of apples is justified this season by general marketing conditions. Care should be used in selecting apples to be stored any length of time. Some growers are holding U. S. No. 1 Yorks at $3 per barrell f. o. b. and others for $3.50 net on account of what now is known to be a shortage."

Marlboro Dance Tonight.

The annual dance of the Marlboro Volunteer Fire Department will be held tonight at Parish Hall, Upper Marlboro, Md. Music will be furnished by Dee's Syncopators.

County Fair Opens Today

Record-Breaking Crowd Expected; List of Features Told.

La Plata, Md., Sept. 27 (Spl.).—Fair weather continuing, a record-breaking crowd is expected at the Charles County Fair, which will be opened tomorrow morning.

More exhibits than ever before are ready for display. These represent every industry and branch of agriculture active throughout the country. Of special interest is the large exhibit of home canning and needlework. These fill a large building.

A new feature of the fair, will be seven Whippett races daily. This attraction supplants horse races, which it was necessary to forego because of encephalitis prevailing in the State. Friday and Saturday the feature of the fair will be a tobacco pageant entitled "The Magic Weed," written and directed by Kathleen Read Coontz, of Washington.

Closing this pageant, Gov. Ritchie will crown, as "Queen Nicotinia," Miss Ethel Martin recently chosen for that role by popular contest throughout the county.

Following the crowning of the queen, Gov. Ritchie and "Nicotinia's court," flanked by State dignitaries, will review a parade representing 300 years of tobacco transportation in Maryland.

Governor of Illinois Calls Relief Session

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 27 (AP).—Gov. Henry Horner tonight called a special session of the Legislature next Monday to consider unemployment relief and other emergency matters.

The administration is supporting a $30,000,000 bond issue, to be repaid by the counties from their allotments of motor fuel tax money in direct proportion to the amount of funds used by the counties in unemployment relief work.

Court to Test Mount Rainier Arrest Rights

A. A. A. Says Judge Acts Illegally, and Town Ordinances Void.

Mount Rainier town officials yesterday were ordered to appear before the Prince Georges County Circuit Court to explain what right the town has to arrest motorists passing traffic lights at Thirty-first street and Rhode Island avenue northwest.

Under a writ of certiorari, the mayor and common council must, on October 5, appear at Upper Marlboro to defend their alleged charter rights. The writ also demands the presence of Justice of the Peace Robert Joyce.

The court action followed a plea from the American Automobile Association, made to Judge H. W. Mitchell Diggs. The association acted to prevent conviction of Emily G. Smith, 1436 Meridian place northwest, arrested September 10.

In the court plea, the association alleged Judge Joyce tries cases illegally, since he receives fees in cases of conviction. It was also alleged Mount Rainier town ordinances are void.

Youths Hunted In Hagerstown

Abandoned Auto Traced to Gettysburg Owner in Gas Station Death.

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 27 (Spl.).—Hagerstown and Pennsylvania police joined forces tonight in a hunt for two youths, Elvin E. Fair, and Dave Bingan, both of Gettysburg, Pa., in hope of solving the murder early today of Reuben N. Sollenberger, auctioneer and gasoline station attendant.

Pennsylvania authorities said the license tags on the automobile abandoned near the station where Sollenberger was shot, were issued to Fair. Gettysberg police were unable to find the youths at their homes. There was no report of the machine having been stolen.

The machine with two occupants was seen by a railroad watchman near the gasoline station a few minutes before the shooting.

As police reconstructed the crime, Sollenberger was seated at a desk, checking up receipts of a sale held at his second hand shop, when the assailants crept up behind and struck him over the head. Sollenberger reached for his revolver, police believe, and a single shot was fired by one of the youths.

Two residents saw the youths run out, followed by Sollenberger, who fired thrice at them, then fell. Sollenberger died soon after reaching the hospital. About $350 in a box on the desk was undisturbed.

The same two bandits attempted to hold up the night attendant at the Fairmont Garage a short time before. They were frightened off when a policeman walked past.

Falling Tree Top Breaks Leg of Man Sawing it

His right leg broken by a falling tree top, George Poole, 53, of Rockville, Md., was rescued from a tree near his home by the Rockville Rescue Squad.

Poole had sawed off the tree-top. In falling it struck him. His safety belt saved him from a 20-foot drop. He is in Georgetown Hospital.

Stocks Droop As Inflation Hope Wanes

Rally in Late Session Fails to Hold; Sales Total 2,308,246 Shares.

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—Stocks took another flop today as the inflation barometer sagged.

The stock list was under pressure all day, except for a brief period around mid-afternoon when wheat's upturn brought a rally from earlier lows. However, selling picked up again in the last hour and closing quotations represented general losses of 1 to 4 points for industrials and rails, utilities faring somewhat better. Sales totaled 2,308,246 shares.

Reports that something definite was soon to be said by the Administration on monetary policy circulated freely through the financial district.

Gossip on Statement.

Gossip had it that this pronouncement, if made, would probably hold small comfort for the currency inflationists or their speculative followings and traders retreated. New buyers were unwilling to do much bidding, with the result that many market leaders bogged down easily.

Losses of roughly 2 to 3 points appeared for U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Bethlehem, American Can, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Union Pacific, Western Union, Case, Chrysler, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Westinghouse, Sears Roebuck, National Steel, American Smelting, Cerro De Pasco, Juneau, McIntyre, U. S. Smelting and several alcohols. Oils also dropped. Seaboard losing better than 4 points after its recent excursions into new high ground. Santa Fe lost 4½ and the volatile Homestake skidded 24 points.

Dollar exchange was firm, perhaps because European selling of American securities had subsided and because foreign speculators also were expecting "sound money" developments in this country. Advances in United States Government bonds indicated to many observers that Uncle Sam was looking to the day when he would want to use the investment market for financing part of his recovery program.

Absence of Buoyancy.

Such business indicators as came to hand pointed to the now familiar absence of buoyancy from heavy lines. Steel production has lost the 2-point gain it made last week and is back to 41 per cent of capacity, though such a recession had been forecast.

Iron Age, in making its estimate, said the Government's capital goods program, the faster-moving public works budget and buying stimulated by price advances, had "put new life into a flagging market" for steel products. It pointed out, nevertheless, that consumers were stocking steel in excess of immediate needs.

Electric power production last week was under that of the previous week, but the decrease was not very large. However, the percentage gain over 1932, amounting to 9.9, was the smallest in some time. Several railroads, including New York Central and Pensylvania, report smaller loadings last week than for the prevous period, yet estimates placed the aggregate for all carriers above the figures for the week ended September 16.

Wall Street Briefs.

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—Engineers Public Service Co. reports balance of consolidated earnings for the common stock of $346,833, or 18 cents a share, for the 12 months ended August 31, as compared with $2,633,167, or $1.38 a share for the previous 12-month period.

The Dun & Bradstreet food index remained unchanged at $1.92 for the week ended September 26.

American Light & Traction Co. today declared a 40-cent dividend on the common stock payable November 1 to stockholders of record October 14. Three months ago the declaration was 50 cents a share.

Charles Francis Adams, former Secretary of the Navy, has been elected a director of the new United Drug Co. Other new directors are James L. Richards, Frederick E. Snow and Eugene Stetson, vice president of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York. They fill vacancies created by resignations.

The Iron Age composite price for heavy melting steel scrap has declined to $11.04 a gross ton from $11.17, the fourth consecutive weekly reduced. The pig iron composite is unchanged at $16.71 a ton, but the finished steel average has risen from 1.979 cents to 1.992 cents a pound and is due for another rise next week when fourth-quarter prices on heavy rolled products become effective.

Wisconsin Telephone Co. reports a net gain of 1,000 stations for the first 20 days of September. August was the first month in a year and a half to show an increase in installations.

Lake Shipments Rise 36 Per Cent

Detroit, Sept. 27 (AP).—Estimates of a 36 per cent increase in shipments for the last quarter of 1933, as compared with the last quarter of 1932, were made by the Great Lake Regional Advisory Board, in its regular quarterly meeting here today.

Reports from 24 commodity groups in the Great Lake regions showed the estimated needs for October, November and December to be 287,353 cars. The last three months of 1932 required 210,518 cars.

The greatest single increase was that in the ore and concentrates group, which in the last quarter of 1932 used 9,648 cars, but is expected to use 64,000 cars for the last quarter of this year. An increase of 33.5 per cent was estimated for the last three months of the year by the automobile industry, including shippers of passenger cars, trucks, tires and accessories.

Rail Program Insufficient

Recognizes Two Basic Weak Spots Of Today, But Will Not Cure Them

By Ralph West Robey.

President Roosevelt's call for a reduction in the price of steel rails, in an attempt to get the railroads to buy 700,000 tons, reflects a recognition of two basic weak spots in the economic system today. The first of these is the burdensome lack of balance between the value of different commodities. The second is the sluggishness with which heavy industries are responding to the recovery program of the administration.

Both of these constitute problems that must be solved before we can get any widespread and lasting recovery in this country. Their solution, in fact, is essential if we for long are to be able even to hold the improvement which already has taken place. Unfortunately, however, they are too complicated to be affected to an appreciable extent by any such program as that currently being offered by the administration for rail buying.

This does not mean, of course, that a full realization of this plan would not result in any benefits. Obviously the purchase of 700,000 tons of steel rails must increase production and put men to work, as well as have many collateral effects. The task today, however, is not one of in effect subsidizing industry from one end of the country to the other. It is a question of creating a situation which will lead individuals to support our productive machine.

On Prices Program Works in Right Direction.

Insofar as prices are concerned the current rail program is working in the right direction. It is attempting to end the rigidity in the value of one commodity that has been outstanding for the tenacity with which it has held to practically the predepression level. To this extent, therefore, the plan, if it is successful, will tend to eliminate a conspicuous discrepancy in the price level.

The plan fails to be especially significant in this connection, however, because the price of rails is not of noteworthy importance in the general business structure. In fact it is doubtful if many more rails would have been purchased in the last four years had the price been substantially reduced. The lack of buying by railroads, in other words, has not been because of considerations of price nearly so much as the absence of any money with which to buy and the conviction that borrowing funds for such purposes would be unwise.

Prices that are important from the point of view of hastening recovery are those for the commodities which directly concern large numbers of private undertakings. Building costs are a good example. They have remained high throughout the depression and unquestionably have hindered activity in this field. It is such discrepancies as these in the price level that are acting as drags upon business activity.

Getting Capital Investment More Important.

Even these discrepancies, however, are of only limited importance as compared with the unwillingness of individuals to make capital investments. It is this that is causing the sluggishness with which heavy industries are responding to the recovery program of the administration. Investors still are afraid to make long-term commitments in fixed interest-bearing obligations.

Until investors again become willing to buy mortgages and bonds there can not be much recovery in the heavy industries. One can go farther, too, and say that until there is recovery here, there can not be any lasting prosperity throughout the rest of the economic system. It is imperative, therefore, that we create a condition which will lead investors to make mortgage and other long-term money available.

This can not be done simply by getting a large purchase made from a heavy industry with funds borrowed from the Government. Investors are not like a well that merely needs to be primed in order to get a flow of water started. Having the Government advance $25,000,000 for the purchase of rails, therefore, will not influence them a particle. Before they will advance funds for long-term purposes they will have to know what is going to happen to the dollar.

U. S. Bonds Fail To Halt Slight Market Loss

Contradictory Trends Laid to Inflation Sag; Sales, $10,385,000.

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—Bonds followed diverse paths today with highest grade maturities maintaining a steady to firm position, while secondary, or speculative, loans were heavy throughout.

Sales totaled $10,385,000, par value, only a slightly larger volume than yesterday, and the average for 60 domestic corporate issues eased two-tenths of a point.

The contradictory trends were generally attributed to the further waning of inflationary sentiment. There was little change in the trade picture, and actual news affecting bonds was scarce.

U. S. Issues Rise.

United States Government securities moved up one thirty-second to as much as ten thirty-seconds of a point in response to reports that the administration might make some sort of a sound-money statement soon.

In the corporation section small gains were recorded by American Smelting 5s, American Telephone debenture 5s, Consolidated Gas 5s and 5½s, Central Pacific first 4s, McKesson 5½s, Philadelphia Eelectric 4½s, Shell Pipe Line 5s, Shell Union Oil 5s, Sinclair Oil 6½s, Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s, Standard Oil of New York 5½s, Texas Corporation 5s, United Drug 5s, Utah Power 5s, Vanadium 5s, Western Electric 5s and Wilson Co. first 6s.

Allegheny Liens Suffer.

Losses of 1 to 2 or more points were suffered by some liens of Allegheny Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corporation, St. Paul, Chicago & North Western, Erie, Illinois Central, American & Foreign Power, International Telephone, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Philadelphia Reading Coal & Iron, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, Southern, Studebaker, and Frisco.

Foreign obligations were mixed. Bonds of Italy Argentina and Denmark were up 1 to 2 or more, but issues of France, Switzerland, Great Britain and Germany were somewhat soft.

Railroads Study Fare Reductions

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—Executives of railroads in Eastern, Western and Southern territory in a joint session today considered the question of a general cut in the basic passenger fare rate, 3.6 cents a mile.

Before the opening of the meeting, which was held in the office of F. E. Williamson, president of the New York Central, some of the executives expressed the opinion that no final agreement would be reached today.

A committee composed of President Williamson of the New York Central; W. R. Cole, president of the Louisville & Nashville, and Paul Shoup, vice chairman of the Southern Pacific Co., was named last week to consider steps for a uniform lowering of rates and was expected to make its report at today's meeting.

Offer Is Approved By Pacific Eastern

Wilmington, Del., Sept., 27 (AP). Stockholders of the Pacific Eastern Corporation, formerly Goldman-Sachs Trading Corporation, last night approved acceptance of $85,000 in cash and 100,000 shares of the corporation's stock from Goldman-Sachs & Co., New York bankers, and $40,000 in cash from Ralph Jonas, New York attorney, in full settlement of all claims the corporation might have against them.

The vote was 3,041,517 in favor of approval, 10,178 shares against and 139,792 shares not voting.

The special meeting of stockholders, which began yesterday, adjourned tonight. It was attended by upwards of a score of attorneys.

Railway Is Authorized To Abandon Short Line

The Associated Press learned yesterday that the Interstate Commerce Commission authorized the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railway Co. to abandon its 28-mile branch line from Luverne, Minn, to Doon, Iowa.

Protests were filed by the City of Rock Rapids, Iowa, and the Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission and the Board of Railroad Commissioners of Iowa.

New York Central Lines Report Loadings Loss

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—The New York Central handled 98,048 cars of freight last week compared with 101,517 in the previous week and 91,134 a year ago. The gain over 1932 was 7.6 per cent as compared with a rise of 12.9 per cent in the week ended September 16.

New York, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—Steel prices unchanged.

Curb's Prices Cut Again by Selling Wave

Utilities, Oils and Metals, Join in Loss; Trading 258,000 Shares.

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—Another selling wave hit the curb list today, forcing leading shares down 1 to more than 2 points. The market opened hesitantly, but selling appeared in fair volume before the end of the first hour and after a lull was resumed around noon. A mild recovery in the afternoon failed to hold and prices closed around the day's low points.

Losses embraced utilities, oils, metals, alcohols and various specialties. General Tire & Rubber lost 6½ points while Gulf Oil dropped 5¼. Other petroleum shares yielded moderately, Humble conceding a point while Standard Oil of Indiana eased a major fraction. Bunker Hill & Sullivan and Sherwin Williams sagged more than 4 apiece.

Utilities as a group offered stiffer than other categories and excepting a drop of 2½ poinnts by Commonwealth Edison, losses were confined to around a point or less. Newmont and Hiram Walker declined 2½ each while other issues off 1 to 2 included Aluminum Co. of America, Dow Chemical, Lake Shore Mines and Parker Rust Proof. Transfers approximated 258,000 shares compared with 192,000 for yesterday.

Officials Unmoved By $100,000 Suit

Woman Charges Unlawful Eviction From Hotel.

Leonardtown, Md., Sept. 27 (Spl.). Although they face a $100,000 damage suit, District Attorney John H. T. Briscoe and Sheriff Richard Hammett and his son, Howard, were going about their duties today, apparently unconcerned.

The suit has been filed by attorneys for Mrs. Jeannette Lichtman, former proprietor of the Fishing Point Hotel near here, who charged she was unlawfully evicted from the hotel in May. The woman is said to have accepted $450 in payment on the sale of the hotel, but contends she had the alternative of rejecting the sale agreement.

The hotel burned August 12.

Heat Sufferers Lose Compensation Claims

Richmond, Va., Sept. 27 (AP).—The State Industrial Commission today denied claims of Miss Pearl Williams, and Miss Mary E. Clarke for workmen's compensation for prostrations by heat last June.

Commissioner W. H. Nickels, Jr. ruled the heat in the establishment where they worked was no worse than the general public suffered outside.

Rockbridge Association Gets Carload of Pigs

Lexington, Va., Sept. 27 (Spl.). The Rockbridge Live Stock Marketing Association has obtained a carload of pigs for shipment to Richmond.

This shipment is a part of the administration's pork reduction campaign.

Goods Markets.

New York, Sept. 27 (A.P.).—Cotton goods sold in moderate lots in the finished goods division today. Gray cloths were quiet and fairly steady. Baron producers will begin to allocate their output for November due to the heavy demand and restricted output. Silk goods were firm, with printed silks of some types very scarce. Burlaps rule firm. After a good initial spring business on men's wear trading has become quieter. Women's wear for spot use is still in demand.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—Business on the stock exchange continues small. Gilt-edged securities improved following the announcement of the terms of the new government conversion loan. Argentine rails were firm on the signing of the supplementary Anglo-Argentine trade agreement. Transatlantic issues moved irregularly following overnight advices from Wall street. German bonds were better. The closing was irregular.

Paris—Prices on the bourse opened unsteady, but a strong advance in Rio Tintos started an upward movement which was supported by the strength in rentes and De Beers. The closing was steady.

Berlin—Trading on the bourse was hesitant, although industrial shares stiffened and the market closed unsettled.

Press Building May Be Home Of Deposit Unit

Federal Insurance Group Favors It for Office, Realtors Say.

Real estate circles were buzzing yesterday with the report that the National Press Building will be the new home of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. Formative agencies for the work of this corporation now are housed in the Treasury Department Building.

Although official confirmation was unobtainable either at the Treasury Department or at headquarters of the National Press Building Corporation, it was understood that negotiations whereby the Federal Deposits Insurance Corporation would occupy a considerable amount of space in the Press Building had reached a successful conclusion. Some reports place the amount of space to be occupied as high as an entire floor and a half.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation recently was apopinted by President Roosevelt to administer the deposit insurance clause of the banking act. Under the terms of the act, insurance of bank deposits up to $2,500 will begin January 1. Six months later, a more permanent system of insurance will be adopted covering much larger amounts.

Capital Traction Deficit.

The August statement of operations of Capital Traction Co. was filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission. The net income item revealed a deficit of $17,734.97, as compared with one of $15,495.95 for the month last year.

Operating revenues in August amounted to $219,143.65 in comparison with those of $237,725.64 in August, 1932, a recession of $18,581.99. Operating expenses were $190,159.06, as against $208,721 in the month in 1932, a reduction of $18,562.26.

An operating income of $13,590.19 was reported for last month, in comparison with one of $15,191.53 for the month a year ago, a reduction of $1,601.34. Nonoperating income was practically the same as that of the month in 1932 as was interest on bonds.

Drop in Passengers.

Revenue passengers numbered 2,656,566. The number in August, 1932, was 2,873,573, or 217,007 more than that of last month.

For the first elght months of the present year, the company announces a decline of $287,868.56 in operating revenues. Operating expenses, however, were reduced by $229,929 87 in this period. At the conclusion of the period, the item shows a decrease of $51,032.80.

Net income revealed a deficit of $14,063.11 against a net gain in this item in the similar comparative period last year of $43,364.41, a drop of net for the year thus far of $57,427.52.

Revenue passengers for the first eight months of 1933 totaled 23,468,085, in contrast with 26,554,116 for the similar length of time last year, or a decline of 3,068,031.

Stock Business Improves.

Business improved yesterday on Washington Stock Exchange. There was a 500 transaction in Washington Gas 5s bonds at 103½, 3-point recession. In the stock trading, Potomac Electric 6 per cent preferred came out at 109 in a 2-share exchange and moved up to 110 in a 10-share transaction. These represented 3 and 2 point declines from the last previous sales.

Potomac Electric 5½ preferred moved in three lots of 9, 1 and 10 shares, at 107, a point loss. Eight shares of Mergenthaler Linotype changed hands at 26, point gain.

After call, 7 shares of Capital Traction sold in two lots, of 5 and 2 shares, at 13¼, fractional rise.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Tin—Despite the considerable drop in quotations during the past week, consumers continue to show but slight interest in the market, according to trade interests.

Wash goods—Prices lack stability and the competitive situation among converters is said to be not favorable to an immediate improvement. Market observers assert that selling prices in trading quarters are below production costs.

Gasoline—Reports to the trade say that the Midwest market for spot gasoline is weak, with offerings at 4 cents a gallon for low content material. The bulk of the movement, however, is reported at from 4¼ to 4½ cents.

Cotton yarns—The market is showing increased activity and a steadier price trend, it is reported in mill quarters. The greatest improvement has occurred in carded and combed yarns.

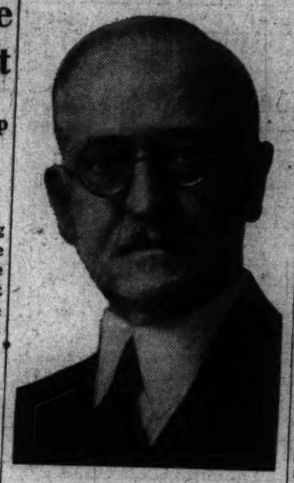
On Bankers' Council



Harris & Ewing.

HENRY H. McKEE, president of National Capital Bank, who has been appointed to the executive council of the American Bankers Association.

Pennsylvania Area Joins Recovery

Waynesboro, Pa., Sept. 27 (Spl.).—Assurance that Waynesboro is keeping pace with increased railroad business through the country, as well as in general lines of business, is seen in reports today from centers of transportation here.

Marked business improvement is reported by the Pennsylvania and Western Maryland railroads. The upturn in railroad business is always an index to gains in other channels, and is especially noticeable in comparisons of this season with the same period in 1932.

The Pennsylvania Railroad, through its agent T. MacWest, reports a 60 per cent increase in inbound and outbound freight during September so far over the same month of 1932, while a 75 per cent increase in August carloadings was also reported for outbound freight. A like increase was noted in inbound freight in August over the same month of 1932.

A. J. Barnes, freight agent of the Western Maryland, reports a great interest in inbound freight over that road for August. A 40 per cent increase in inbound freight for September so far was reported by Mr. Barnes over September a year ago.

Conservative Bankers Praise Government's Cut of Deficit

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—Those conservative bankers and economists who have been afflicted with a sort of inflation phobia, are now taking some real comfort in the Government's improved fiscal position.

Those wholly uncontrolled inflations, which have torn through several countries at various times in the past, have almost all resulted from inability of Government revenues to catch up with Government expenditures.

As deficits widened the government's credit vanished and there was finally no recourse save the printing press. That was the situation which led to our issue of Civil War greenbacks, and that was the nemesis of the old German mark.

But the sharp reduction of our Federal deficit in recent months has depicted a Nation in control of its finances, and with such control in the saddle, proponents of inflation argue, a restricted and salutory inflation should be possible.

Nevertheless, it is acknowledged that inflationary steps must be taken with care, if the market for Government bonds is not to be harmed.

The dip in gilt-edged securities a few days ago, when inflation-minded Senators were making known their views in Washington, was indicated by conservatives as significant. If the Government intends to refund any substantial part of its indebtedness, Wall street authorities say, it is apparent that it must handle the inflation problem skillfully.

The Federal Government's financial statement for the period of July 1 to September 16, makes reassuring reading, compared to the preceding record. Receipts exceeded those of a year previously by $212,000,000, while expenditures were $271,000,000 less. As a result, the deficit for the fiscal year which started July 1 was on September 16 only $229,000,000, compared with $712,000,000 in the like period of last year.

The Government's huge public works program, however, will require considerable financing as it progresses. The public debt on September 16 was $23,061,000,000, which, while about $6,876,000,000 above the total at the end of the 1929-30 fiscal year, was still $3,536,000,000 below the post-war peak reached in 1919.

Virginia May Cut Corporate Taxes

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 27 (Spl.).—The State Corporation Commission proposes to reduce the assessments upon corporations operating in Albemarle by $137,773 for purposes of taxation this year, and a review of these reductions has been ordered by the county board of supervisors.

The schedule of 1933 assessments submitted to the board by the commission calls for increases on four companies totaling $1,481 and reductions in the valuation of eleven companies' properties amounting to $139,614. The net loss, therefore, comes to $137,773.

J. Fendol Garth, commissioner of revenue, in submitting the commission's figures to the supervisors, estimated the loss in taxes by this reduction would come to $2,930. The lowering in this county rate of taxation on real estate will bring the total of taxes collected from the corporations this year still further below those collected in 1932. Increases in assessments are as follows: American Telegraph & Telephone Co., $880; Appalachian Power & Light Co., $735; Virginia Gas Transmission Co., $65; Western Union Telegraph Co., $51. There was no change in the case of the Charlottesville and Albemarle Railway Co.

Southern Peanut Men Confer Here on Prices

Peanut shellers and growers from seven Southern States conferred with Agricultural Adjustment Administration officials yesterday in an effort to map out a plan for increased prices to growers, according to the Associated Press.

The conference, started Tuesday, was resumed with possibilities of a marketing agreement and a crop control program being discussed. Representatives were present from North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Georgia, Alabama, Florida and Texas.

Pennsylvania Railway Freight Cut 4,544 Cars

New York, Sept. 27.—The Pennsylvania Railroad handled 94,338 cars last week against 98,882 the week before and 87,180 a year ago, according to information received by the Associated Press.

50 Firms Sign for Expansion.

Farmville, Va., Sept. 27 (Spl.).—Fifty firms have signed up for membership in the Farmville Trade Expansion Bureau, which has for its purpose the expansion of business in this trade area. It is planned to have a trade expansion "jubilee" in Farmville on Friday, September 29.

Wheat Climbs On Roosevelt Policy Rumor

Rush of Eastern Buying Aids Price Advance; Winnipeg Weak.

Chicago, Sept. 27 (AP).—Violent reversal of trend swept wheat prices up more than 3 cents a bushel late today as compared with earlier levels.

The sudden rise followed rumors that President Roosevelt was to make an important announcement tonight. Preceding the advance at the last, wheat values had a general downward tendency, owing in great degree to uncertainty over Washington and industrial prospects and because of notable weakness of the grain market in Winnipeg.

Chicago wheat prices closed firm around the day's top point, ⅞ to 1⅜ above yesterday's finish; corn, ¼ to ½ up; oats, ⅜ to ⅝ advanced, and provisions, 2 cents to 50 cents down.

Rush of Buying.

A rush of buying on the part of houses with Eastern connections went hand in hand with word about President Roosevelt's expected statement.

Selling from the Northwest developed just at the finish of trading here, but failed to overcome the upward impetus of the market here. On the other hand, the Winnipeg market did not show much recuperative power, and closed 1⅛ to 1¼ cents down.

Friends of higher prices in Chicago contended that there was no reason for United States wheat market declines, except that confidence had been shaken by elements of uncertainty which naturally intimidated investors.

Buying by Millers.

Purchases for domestic millers were pointed to as significant in this respect. Winnipeg weakness was attributed to increased stocks of Canadian wheat, 217,123,000 bushels against 176,461,000 at this time last year, and to large European arrivals of wheat from other countries than Canada, together with a better outlook for growing crops, both in Australia and Argentina.

Corn and oats rallied with wheat. Some uneasiness was shown regarding indications that estimates of 1933 corn yields would be curtailed.

Provisions ran into liquidating sales, but sympathized with late strength of grains.

Commodities Rise Slightly During Week

New York, Sept. 27.—The Daily Weighted Price Index, compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., rose to 104.50 on Monday, due to rumors of inflation. This was the highest level reached since August 10. The prospects for immediate inflation, however, have petered out, and the daily index dropped from 104.20 on Wednesday to 102.76 on Thursday. Declines in steers, lambs, silk, tin, silver, wheat, corn, rye, oats, and lard were responsible for the lower index. The latest figure compares with 102.10 a week ago, 101.54 a month ago, and 80.26 for the like date of 1932.

Following is tabulated the Dun & Bradstreet Daily Weighted Price Index of 30 basic commodities compiled from quotations furnished by the United Press, since July 1 for this year and last. (1930-1932 equals 100):

Cotton Prices Decline Again In Dull Session

December Sells at 10.00 as General Market Drops 5 to 12 Points.

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—Trading in cotton was comparatively quiet today and prices moved within a range of 15 to 20 points.

After selling off to 9.98 for December, the market rallied to 10.18 for that position on covering and local buying following a firmer turn in the wheat market, but eased again in the late trading under some local and southern selling.

December closed at 10.00, with the general market closing easy at net declines of 5 to 12 points.

Price Changes Narrow.

Early price movements were narrow. Offerings were absorbed by trade buying, and some demand was also reported for Bombay and Liverpool account.

Selling increased slightly on a forenoon bulge and the market sagged off to net losses of 7 to 11 points under continued liquidation and local selling.

A sharp rally in the wheat market brought in a spurt of buying during the early afternoon, but after making net gains of 5 to 9 points the demand tapered off and prices weakened under realizing or liquidation promoted by the action of the stock market and reselling by some of the early afternoon buyers. Closing quotations were within a point or two of the lowest for the day.

The weekly weather report was considered favorable, but there were reiterated reports of a tendency to hold cotton in the South.

Exports today, 18,360, making 1,174,480 so far this season. Port receipts, 68,184. U. S. port stocks, 3,382,524.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil today closed unchanged to 5 points net lower. Sales were 29 contracts, including 16 exchanges. Weakness of crude oil, easiness of lard and a late setback in cotton were the depressing factors. Bleachable spot closed 4.45, October, 4.50, December, 4.80, January, 4.88, March, 5.08.

Pennsylvania Road's Income Rises Sharply

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway reports August net operating income of $1,645,648, against $2,651,032 a year ago. Gross was $10,637,318, compared with $11,736,325.

Reich Judge Misled Public, Red Charges

Nazi Court Threatens to Remove Defendant From Room.

Leipzig, Germany, Sept. 27 (AP). The supreme court justices hearing the trial of five men charged with burning the Reichstag today threatened to have one of the accused, Georgi Dimitroff, expelled from the room.

The threat was made after police restrained the prisoner, who accused an examining judge of false statements.

The examining magistrate, Judge Vogt, was on the witness stand when Dimitroff, Bulgarian Communist, asked:

Charges Prejudice.

"Did you cause publication that the three Bulgarians arrested in the Reichstag fire were identical with those participating in the Sofia bombing in 1924?"

"Yes, there were certain inaccuracies, but they were not mine, and it may be the future evidence will prove the Bulgarians had some connection," Vogt said.

Presiding Justice Buenger interrupted, but Dimitroff continued angrily.

Kept in Chains.

"I want to prove the whole examination has been prejudiced and the public mislead."

"It is not your place to insult Judge Vogt," Buenger countered, "take heed."

The defendant said he had been insulted and kept in chains.

Buenger and the other justices left the courtroom, while the police pulled Dimitroff back into his chair.

The court returned with the admonition the Bulgarian would be excluded from the courtroom "if you say another word."

Publishers Mourn E. H. Baker Death

Notables Wire Family of Cleveland Editor.

Cleveland, Sept. 27 (AP).—The Nation's fourth estate and the City of Cleveland mourned the death today of Elbert H. Baker, chairman of the board of the Plain Dealer Publishing Co. and for the last 17 years a director of the Associated Press.

The veteran newspaperman and civic leader died early this morning in his eightieth year. He underwent an operation for an abdominal ailment last Friday and suffered a relapse Monday.

The funeral will be at 2 p. m. Friday. Messages of condolences poured in today from outstanding editors and publishers of the Nation.

Cammerer to Sit On Zoning Board

Bride Rules on Question of Parks Officer.

Arno B. Cammerer, director of the office of National Parks, Buildings and Reservations, will sit as a member of the District Zoning Commission next Wednesday unless the opinion of Corporation Counsel William W. Bride is found in error.

While a legal question as to whether the elimination of the post of director of Public Buildings and Public Parks prevents Cammerer from succeeding Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, on the zoning commission has been raised, Bride holds that the new parks director inherits the job.

Fifteen petitions for changes in zoning are scheduled for hearing next Wednesday.

Taxi Driver Slain In Gun Rampage

Shot Trying to Calm Man Firing at Wife's Home.

Oakland, Calif., Sept. 27 (AP). Victim of a shooting rampage, Roy Newstrom, taxicab driver, died in a hospital here today.

William Wallace, his asserted slayer, was shot in the jaw with his own gun during a wild ride in commandeered automobiles following the attack.

Wallace's estranged wife said he fired wildly at her home when she refused to return to him. Newstrom, who drove Wallace to the house, was shot while attempting to calm the enraged man.

Police Guard Socialite After Extortion Threat

Chicago, Sept. 27 (AP).—A police guard was stationed today at the home of Mrs. Joseph B. Long, social leader, after authorities learned she had received an extortion letter demanding $10,000.

Mrs. Long did not report receipt of the message to police. They were informed of the threat by one of her friends.

Grandson of Tennyson Ill in Coast Hospital

San Mateo, Calif., Sept. 27 (AP). Lord Lionel Hallam Tennyson, grandson of Alfred Lord Tennyson, was in a hospital here today convalescing from a minor operation.

When he recovers, he said, he wishes to spend a night cruising with police in a San Francisco patrol car.

Radio Waves and Ripples

On the left is the easy-to-look-at Gertrude Niesen, who sang low for Columbia's premiere of the Big Show, and who will sing that way again Monday night. Every Sunday afternoon Julia Mahoney sings her soprano for the Cathedral Hour.

THE New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra renews broadcasting for Columbia in a two-hour concert starting at 3 Sunday afternoon, October 8. A 30-week season will be divided by Conductors Toscanini, Walter and Lange.

Comes also from Columbia the announcement that the network will radio concerts for children under the Saturday morning batonage of Ernest Schelling.

And from N. B. C. is heard news of Walter Damrosch's Music Appreciation Hour return Friday, October 6, at 11 a. m. It will be the sixth broadcasting of the Damrosch music school.

Whitecaps.

WRC — Vallee, Cronin-Terry Interview, 8 p. m.; Show Boat, 9 p. m.; Jolson, Whiteman, 10 p. m. WMAL—Crooning Choir, 8:45 p. m.; Sidney Resnick, 9:30 p. m.; Echoes of the Pallisades, 10:30 p. m. WJSV — Eddie Dooley, 6:30 p. m.; Mills Brothers, 7:30 p. m.; Boswell Sisters, 8 p. m.; President Angell, of Yale, 8:45 p. m. WOL—Godfrey Ludlow, 1:15 p. m.; Eight o'Clock Review, 8 p. m.; Wrestling, 9:30 p. m.

Robert Trout, WJSV's No. 1 announcer, got the call from the coffee people yesterday to complete their five-a-week show bill.

For the Wednesday night broadcasting, the minds hit upon the idea of having Trout interview news personalities. They indicated having hit upon Arthur "Street Singer" Tracy for the opener because they were in a hurry about getting a name listeners would recognize. The Street Singer's assignment to an F street stage show should be kept in mind, however.

In case you have been confused about the coffee show schedule it's Tenor Phil Crist, Three Little Girls in Brown, better known as Three Maids and a Mike, and a Rudolph Schramm orchestral unit on Monday and Friday nights; the Hill Billy singing McCravy brothers on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and Trout on Wednesdays. The series begins Monday, all acts going on the air at 6:45.

WOL will inaugurate the fourth season of the Washington Catholic Hour broadcasts Sunday, though Father Francis J. Hurney, originator and conductor of the church series, died yesterday.

In previous years Father Hurney preached the inaugural sermon. His place this year will be taken by Father Alphonse Freehill, of Peru, Ill.

The broadcast will begin at 5 in the afternoon with Florence Yocum, Ann Arlen and Fred Nolan, soloists, and the Boys' Sanctuary choir.

WOL and Father Hurney's Immaculate Conception Church are considering plans for radioing his funeral mass Saturday at 10:30 a. m.

Waves.

N. B. C. has signed Author S. P. B. Mais for more broadcasting of British views of America in a series to start October 13. Ambassador Robert Bingham will make the introduction from London, and the British Broadcasting Co. has fixed things so Author Mais can be heard in the Empire.

Justin Winkle traded a job with the Department of Agriculture for a steady announcing chore with WOL. Winkle is 22. Practically all of his microphone experience was acquired with WJSV's Sun Dial this summer. Early Monday morning he takes over radioing the Musical Clock.

Meanwhile, over at the WRC-WMAL offices the hunt for new announcer talent continues, Program Manager Berkeley having returned from New York empty-handed.

The WMAL show schedule for Friday lists William Abernathy, one-time announcer, now advertising man, and the Radiotone Quartet at 8:45 p. m.

And another item from the junior N. B. C. outlet tells how Arthur Godfrey is putting on an extra RKO-Breakfast Club show at Keith's for benefit of fans who wanted to see the act during its scheduled run and couldn't find time.

Ripples.

Columbia has canceled the Lombardo, Burns and Allen broadcast Wednesday night, October 4, to make way for the President at the Catholic Charities Conference . . . Error Department — WJSV Dance Teacher Marion Venable comes from Fredericksburg, not Hagerstown, and WJEJ, Hagerstown, remains on the air despite what was said about it closing down some days back . . .

Britain Links Arms Accord To Recovery

Foreign Minister Pleads for Prompt Action at League Session.

Geneva, Sept. 27 (AP).—Prompt disarmament agreement, Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, told the League of Nations Assembly today is vital for the world political and economic recovery.

"A disarmament convention based on concession and cooperation is the greatest need of the world," he said, adding he detected signs of a beginning in economic recovery.

He warned "recovery can not make strides without political amelioration."

Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss staunchly proclaimed Austria's right and "duty" to maintain her independence. This statement, accepted by his hearers as a hint to Grmany, brought a wave of applause in the assembly.

Norman H. Davis, American Ambassador at large, also dealt decisively with the disarmament problem outside the assembly meeting when he told Joseph Paul-Boncour, French foreign minister, the American delegation opposed any project postponing the conference.

He also made it plain the American group did not favor letting the four-power peace pact of Premier Mussolini direct preliminary negotiations, as sought by Germany.

Nazi Elected Reich Bishop

Selection by Synod Gives Hitler Group Control of German Church.

Wittenberg, Germany, Sept. 27 (AP). Complete Nazi domination of the German Protestant Church received the finishing touch tonight with the election of Ludwig Mueller as first Reichs Bishop, by the National Synod.

He defeated Friedrich Von Bodelschwingh, candidate of the non-Nazi faction. Associated with him will be representatives of the United Evangelical Lutheran and Reformed Churches.

Two thousand Protestant clergymen tonight lodged a vigorous protest with the synod, complaining of the methods adopted by the Nazi Christians for stifling all opposition.

Mueller described the day's happenings as "the fulfillment of Martin Luther's old dream," ending the cleavage within the Protestant churches.

Indorsing the Nazi anti-Semetic doctrine, he said:

"Equality before God does not mean equality of human beings. It is self-evident the incumbents of public offices must be Germans by race and inheritance, so the pastorate, as a public office, naturally follows this tendency of our times."

Brutal Slugging of Prisoners Laid to Nazis by Committee

"Brown Book of Hitler Terror," Published in U. S. Today, Asserts Goebbels Plotted Reichstag Blaze to Destroy Communism.

New York, Sept. 27 (U.P.).—Horrifying charges involving persecution of Jews, intellectuals and Communists in Germany under the Nazi regime are related in "The Brown Book of the Hitler Terror," prepared by the "world committee for the victims of German Fascism," and published tomorrow in this country.

Lord Marley, chairman of the committee, declares in a foreword, "This book aims at keeping alive the memory of the criminal acts of the Nazi government. This fight is not directed against Germany; it is a fight on behalf of the real Germany."

In a section devoted to the burning of the Reichstag, for which five alleged Communists are now on trial in Leipzig, the committee accuses Dr. Joseph Goebbels, Hitler's minister of propaganda, of concocting the plot and the "fanatical lies and provocation" connected with it.

Goering Held Plotter.

Capt. Wilhelm Goering, Prussian premier and one of Hitler's most trusted lieutenants, is charged with having directed the trial.

The book includes an appendix containing a list of 250 reputed murders, of which the committee says it holds authentic proof. Quoting from one investigator's report, the book declared:

"Simple membership of the Social Democratic party is punished with 30 blows with a rubber truncheon on the naked body. Membership of the Communist party is usually punished with 40 blows. The penalty is increased when the prisoner has been an official of a political party or trade union.

"Four of the Nazis do the beating. Each blow cuts raw flesh to pieces. They then get tired and push him into the next cellar, where fellow victims are cowering in the corners. Some are crying out.

Shooting Threat Charged.

"The next victim's offense is 'criminal' and the punishment more severe. After the beating the Storm Troop leader announces, 'now you will be shot.'

"The prisoner is placed with his face to the wall; there is silence, broken only by the Nazis releasing safety catches of revolvers, then shots. The prisoner hears the whizz of bullets past his ears, and begins to realize that they are not hitting him. At last he sinks in a swoon, but before he loses consciousness he hears the Nazis laughing."

Plan to Occupy Peiping, Tientsin Meets Denial

Tokyo, (Thursday), Sept. 28 (U.P.). Rumors that Japan planned to send troops to occupy the north China cities of Peiping and Tientsin were denied today by the government.

Competent observers believed Japan prefers to cooperate with the Peiping government in ousting Fang When-Wu, Chinese general, from north China.

Paper Charges Couzens Seeks Bank Revenge

Now Moved by 'Hate,' Says Free Press, but Senator Denies This.

Detroit, Sept. 27 (AP).—An open controversy between the Detroit Free Press and Senator James Couzens (Republican), Michigan, an outspoken critic of executives of Detroit's closed National banks, flared up tonight with the Free Press quoting the senator as saying he was motivated by "hate" and a desire for "revenge" against the bankers.

The senator is quoted as saying in an interview that "I know I'm through politically," and that "I am out to get revenge and I will never rest until I get even with those — — — — who lied about me and my dear wife."

At his Birmingham home, Senator Couzens called these statements "lies," and said the Free Press could not "prove any such ridiculous statements."

He said that in an interview on September 14 he told a Free Press representative he was in the Senate until 1937 and that "between now and then I intend to decide what my future will be."

Denying emphatically that his motives in continued criticism of former Detroit banking methods were hate or revenge, he declared his sole purpose is to "correct an evil." He said he had never brought his wife into any controversy. He added that if the Free Press "wants to get into a personal controversy, I am ready."

During the long grand jury investigation of the bank closings that ended last week, one witness testified that Mrs. Couzens had drawn most of her account from one of the banks just prior to the Michigan bank holiday last February.

Legislature Adopts Philippine Budget

Bill Calls for Expenditure of $27,037,151.

Manila, Sept. 27 (AP).—The Philippine Legislature completed action today on a government budget totaling $27,037,451, approximately the amount asked by Governor General Frank Murphy.

This action cleared the way for a political campaign before the proposed submission of the independence question to a vote of the people.

The budget reduces the salary of Rafael Palma, president of the University of the Philippines, and the allowances of the resident commissioners in Washington. They championed acceptance of the independence act, which is opposed by the majority of the Legislature, headed by Manuel Quezon, president of the Senate.

"Bring On Hubbell," Say Nats, After Testing Braxton's Screw Ball

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

THE boys may be whistling to keep up their courage, but there is some satisfaction in hearing Joe Cronin and the rest of the Nats pooh-pooh the idea that Carl Hubbell is going to throw a three-speed screwball, or something, that will knock the bats out of their hands.

All this Hubbell hubhub and hullabaloo has made no more impression on the Nats than the four-power pact. He's just another pitcher, to hear them tell it—and that's a nice frame of mind just before the world series.

They aren't kidding themselves, either, leastwise Joe Cronin isn't. To hear Cronin tell it: "This Hubbell must be a pretty good pitcher. Those 11 shutouts tell you that. But we've got some pretty fair pitchers in our league, and they didn't give us a lot of trouble. And there hasn't been anything new in pitching since they banned the freak deliveries a dozen years ago. Whatever he pitches can be hit."

That Unhappy 1925 Complex!

All of which carries us back to 1925 and the sad world series between the Nats and the Pittsburgh Pirates that went seven games to a disastrous finish for Washington. Bucky Harris never has forgiven himself for the Washington club's fear of the Pirates.

That was the year the Pittsburgh club, with a bevy of right-handed hitters, was murdering left-handed pitching. And Harris genuinely distrusted his own left-handers against those Pirates. He had Tom Zachary and Dutch Ruether, the two best left-handers in the league, available, but he was afraid to start either of them.

The Nats had a lead of three games to one in the series when Harris started Stanley Coveleskie in the fifth game with but two days' rest for the old-timer. Zachary and Ruether were champing on the bench, but Harris gave them the go-by.

Game Lost, Then the Deluge.

Coveleskie lost that fifth game, and the rout of the Nats began. The Pirates came along with a rush to win the last three games of the series and relieve Washington of the world championship it had won the year before from the Giants.

The sixth game of that 1925 series saw Alec Ferguson, another right-hander, in the box for the Nats, and Ferguson lost that game, 3 to 2, evening the series.

Came the seventh game. Walter Johnson, winner of the fourth game by a 4-to-0 score, was willing, but with only two days' rest. Both Ruether and Zachary were available, Ruether having broken into the series only as a pinch hitter, and Zachary having pitched only 1 2-3 innings in a relief role.

Yet the fear of sending a left-hander against the Pirates caused Harris to send Johnson back. He lost that final game and the world's championship, 9 to 7, going the route, because, Harris explained, "he had pulled us through so many times before, I had to leave him in there.

And then, as irony would have it, the Yankees met substantially the same Pirates in the world series of 1927, with the same bevy of right-handed hitters, and the left-handed Herb Pennock dealt them a shut-out, in which he allowed only two hits.

Down Hill With Sharkey.

Primo Carnera, King Levinsky, and now Tommy Loughran. That is the order in which Jack Sharkey hit the bumps in his descent from the fistic peak within four short months. And it's a trail that appears to have no upturn for the former world champion.

Sharkey's latest defeat, by Tommy Loughran last night, fails to surprise those close to the prize ring industry. His decay set in long ago on the night he took a woeful beating from Max Schmeling and simultaneously was handed the world championship by grace of a cock-eyed decision of the judges.

Four years ago, Sharkey knocked Loughran kicking in three rounds. Last night Loughran floored him. There must be a reason, and if you look up the history of other former heavyweight champions, Sullivan, Johnson, Willard and Dempsey, you will find it written across their paunches in one terse line:

"Easy living!"

Series Ticket Plans Meet Delay of Day

Fans allotted tickets for the world series games in Washington will not be notified until tomorrow, Secretary Edward B. Eynon, jr., of the Washington Club, announced late last night.

Originally, club officials had planned to mail notifications yesterday, but the deluge of requests delayed their movement. Distribution of tickets to holders of cards notifying the fans of their ticket allotments will begin at Griffith Stadium tomorrow.

Sharkey Bout Decision to Loughran

Latter Barely Survives After Flooring Rival; Attendance Light.

By Westbrook Pegler.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 27. Tommy Loughran squared an ancient grudge against Jack Sharkey this evening when he pecked him in the face with a million feeble left jabs throughout a 15-round fight in the Phillies' ball yard and to the amazement of himself, Sharkey and a small but excited attendance, dropped him on his face with a straight right hand in round 10.

Sharkey bounced up before the referee, Spud Murphy, a retired pugilist now engaged in the retail beer trade, could bring his arm down in the first stroke of an official count. He went to his corner a few seconds later either in a dazed condition or putting up a convincing pretence.

But he came out charging for Round 11 and Loughran's coaching staff, who were planted in all the corners except Sharkey's, hopped up in wild alarm, crying, "Keep away! Stick that left in his face and move around! He's stalling!"

Loughran Bleeding.

If Sharkey had been shaken he revived quickly and entirely, for he was strong and violent with his sullen, exasperated charges, until the final bell caught Loughran panting in a clinch with both eyes gashed and his face veiled in crimson. There was a disagreement between the two judges. One of them, a Mr. Voice, voted that Sharkey had won, presumably awarding him great credit for his persistent, though ineffective, attack, which set the pace of the fight all the way. The other, a Mr. Weintraub, voted for Loughran and thus the final decision was given by Mr. Murphy, whose score gave Loughran a plurality.

Loughran weighing 183 pounds to Sharkey's 202, plainly was unable to meet him in crude, rough punching bouts and set out to feed him a left jab, as the boys around the ring expressed it. He fought very skittishly, always at a great distance, tapping Sharkey with the jab on the nose and mouth, except a few reckless moments when, for his pride and in defiance of his own judgment and the hysterical alarm of his coaches, he undertook to plant his feet and shove in smashes to the body or uppercuts to the chin.

In the eighth round, Loughran apparently felt weary and dropped the pace of his runaway fight just a trifle, permitting Sharkey to tag him with a hard right to the chin and a left to the body, which sank into the wrist. Loughran was shaken and annoyed, and near the end of the round he stopped abruptly and fired a right to the chin himself. This made him brash, and in the ninth round he gave his people the horrors when he came to a stand again and offered to fight a stronger and heavier man.

Evades Sharkey's Swings.

Old and decrepit as both fighters were, Loughran, though slow and delicate, had the fine skill left to pull away from a hundred swings at his head, any one of which might have knocked him out. His foot work was not fast, but almost always carried him just out of danger. Sharkey was even more rusty and from around the ring time and again, as he charged after Loughran, cocking his right hand, there came the cry from the customers, "there comes the right hand," before he could bring it over.

Loughran won his fight backing away. When he came in he was always in danger. The customers numbered about 10,000 and it seemed quite unlikely that Loughran would derive any great reward for the evening's exertion.

GIANT FAN
JACKSON'S WEAK KNEES... THE GIANTS' BIGGEST GAMBLE OF THE SERIES. WILL THEY HOLD UP?.....

Bluege Is League's Best "Hot Corner" Holder; Rival Only "Fair."

(Herewith is the sixth of a series of articles comparing the rival positions in the coming 1933 world series.)

THERE is no more smugly complacent human than the Washington fan when third base is mentioned in connection with the world series. Fans agree with Joe Cronin, who said of Ossie Bluege two days ago, "When a better third baseman comes along, I won't believe it."

Bluege, the personification of grace in the infield, bulwark of the Nats at third base for the past 11 seasons, will find himself opposed in the world series by another veteran who broke into the big leagues in the same year—Travis Jackson, of the Giants. And here again Washington appears to have a pronounced edge.

Jackson, a shortstop by trade, was impressed into service at third base late this season when Johnny Vergez was stricken with appendicitis. And, like the great money player he is, Jackson proceeded to give the Giants third-base protection that nullified the Vergez loss.

Good, But Not Great.

But Jackson is no third baseman, despite his willingness to serve. Those sharp dashes to the right, which distinguish a great hot-corner man from a run-of-the-mill player, Jackson has not yet mastered. That vulnerable territory between himself and the bag he can not cover with the agility of the cat-like Bluege.

It is at third base that the Giants are taking the greatest gamble. Jackson's weakened bone structure in his knees forced him from the shortstop berth early in the season. He never has fully recovered, and it was in the fear that his legs would go back on him that the Giants procured the eligibility of the veteran Charley Dressen as a reserve infielder.

It is to Jackson's credit that since his assignment to third base he has fielded at a higher average than Bluege, but balls that Jackson wouldn't attempt to reach, are converted by Bluege into putouts.

About Even at Bat.

On the offensive this season there is little to choose between Jackson and Bluege. Both are hovering around the .265 mark, but Jackson in the past has been a consistent .290 hitter, while Bluege but once has reached the .300 circle.

It is asking too much for Jackson to rival Bluege in the field. For years, the Nats' star has been acknowledged the greatest third baseman in the league.

The World Series and The Post

The Post takes pleasure in announcing that Mahatma Gandhi, Aimee Semple McPherson, Prof. Moley, Col. Lindbergh, "Machine Gun" Kelly and "Sistie" Dall will not cover the world series for The Post.

This newspaper will cover the year's greatest sports spectacle with sports writers, which seems fairly logical, at that.

Supplementing these bona fide sports writers of The Post family, staff feature writers trained in the treatment of crowd stories will supply their color offerings and collateral news developments of point-by-point events.

No ghost writers will haunt the pages of The Post. The spooks will be missing, but the facts will be there—facts treated with real reportorial skill. The Post's stories will be powerful, persuasive news reports, not second-hand ghost stories planned for a 10-year-old intelligence.

The ghost writer still walks the night, but not in the pages of The Post.

Hollywood, Sept. 27 (AP).—Separated and reconciled on numerous occasions heretofore, Max Baer, leading contender for the world's heavyweight boxing title, and his wife, the former Dorothy Dunbar, were headed toward the divorce courts again today.

Mrs. Baer said this time she plans seeking an absolute divorce suit to be filed within 24 hours.

Giants Win, Lose In Pair With Phils

Hubbell Hurls 3-1 Victory; Schumacher Beaten.

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—Bill Terry gave his two pitching aces, Carl Hubbell and Hal Schumacher, their final workouts for the world series today, but the best the New York Giants could do was an even break in a doubleheader with the Phillies.

Carl Hubbell, picked to hurl the first game of the series against the Senators, won the opening contest, 3 to 1, for his twenty-third victory of the year and the one hundredth of his major league career. Hal Schumacher, young right-hander, who probably will pitch the second game, was not so fortunate, however, falling before the slugging Phils, 6 to 0.

Home runs by Hughie Critz and George Davis pulled Hubbell through.

Macks Gain Third; Divide With Yanks

Philadelphia, Sept. 27 (AP). — The Philadelphia Athletics clinched third place in the American League today when they divided a doubleheader with the New York Yankees, losing the first, 7 to 0, and winning the nightcap, called in the seventh on account of darkness, 10 to 1.

Lefty Gomez was largely responsible for the Yankees' victory.

With Johnny Marcum, American Association recruit, hurling four-hit ball for his third major league victory, and Jimmy Foxx driving in five runs with his 48th homer and two singles, the Athletics had little trouble taking the abbreviated nightcap.

Only Six Vets In Series Line-Up

Terry, Goslin, Mancuso, Jackson, Myer, Bluege Only Veterans.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (AP).—The pay off on previous world series experience doesn't figure to be very heavy this year, with only a half dozen veterans of championship warfare in the ranks of the New York and Washington regulars, but two of the big guns, Bill Terry, of the Giants, and Leon (Goose) Goslin, of the Senators, have brilliant reputations to sustain.

Terry, successor to John McGraw at the Giants helm, did about all you could ask of one ordinary workman in the series of 1924, one of the most dramatic in baseball history, when he got into five games against the Senators; hit safely six times in 14 appearances at the plate; banged out one home run; scored three times, and wound up with a batting average of .429.

Goslin Win More Deadly.

Goslin, soaring high, played every minute of that seven game series and did even more execution, but at a slower pace. In 22 times at bat Goslin gathered 11 hits, three of them homers; scored four times; drove in seven runs, and averaged .344. The next year, against the Pirates in another seven game series, the Goose went to bat 26 times; banged out eight hits, again getting three home runs; driving in six, and scoring six.

Gus Mancuso, the Giants' dependable backstop, was the No. 2 catcher for the Cardinals in two world series, and Travis (Stonewall) Jackson tasted the front-line fire in 1924 after being a pinch-hitter the year before.

Jackson played well in the field against Washington nine years ago, but he was a sorrowful figure at bat, getting only two safe blows in 27 times at the plate for a mark of .074.

Slowed by Operations.

This year he is expected to do considerable hitting, and Terry's lone worry concerning his third play as a substitute for Johnny Vergez, is his fielding ability, strongest point back in 1924. Major operations on injured knees have slowed the veteran, left him fragile and susceptible to muscle strains that come of favoring his legs.

Winooka, Australian Turf Ace, at Laurel

Winooka, the Australian wonder horse, hailed as "another Phar Lap," arrived at the Laurel track yesterday and created a stir among the turf colony.

The Australian 5-year-old, which raced impressively on the Pacific Coast during the summer, may be pitted against C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, American champion, in a match race during the Laurel meeting. Equipoise is slated for retirement after the Havre de Grace meet, but there are reports that he will start at least once at Laurel.

Wales Falls Again—But in Golf Play

St. Andrews, Scotland, Sept. 27 (AP).—The Prince of Wales and Archie Compston, his personal golf professional, today were defeated by Lord Castleross and Dorothy Pearson, runnerup for the British Women's golf title in 1927, 4 and 3. Miss Pearson was given a handicap of nine strokes.

The prince drove well throughout the round but was putting poorly in the early stages. Toward the end he was approaching nicely and getting down in regulation figures, having several fours on his card.

The heir to the British throne appeared fit as he went around the course hatless, dressed in a sporting jacket, plus fours, pale blue stockings and black shoes.

Browns' Star Doubles for Giants' Ace

Nat Batsmen Confident After Slamming Ball to Far Corners.

Braxton Specially Asked Here by Cronin for Hour of Hurling.

THE best known imitation of Carl Hubbell's famed screwball was among those present at Griffith Stadium yesterday, and the Nats learned a few intimate details concerning the amunition of the southpaw who will be on the firing line for the Giants in the world series opener Tuesday:

E. Garland Braxton, possessor of a screwball of his own, doubled for Hubbell on the mound at the Nats' ball yard and gave the Washington Club a full hour's look at a "blood brother" to Hubbell's delivery.

"Bring on Hubbell," was the verdict of the Nats at the end of the long batting drill, with Braxton throwing the National League ball that will be used in the first two games of the series.

Here by Special Invitation.

Canny Joe Cronin had induced Braxton "to stop by" en route to his North Carolina home. The former Washington southpaw, who joined the Browns late this season, accepted the invitation. He bore down from the start, and Cronin thanked him warmly at the finish.

"That screw ball didn't look so tough to us, and Braxton knows how to throw it," said Cronin. "The only thing he lacks is Hubbell's speed. He's not quite as fast. But speed never worried us. Gomez and Grove have more speed than Hubbell, and a better curve, but they never bothered this club."

Sock Far and Wide.

They socked the imitation Hubbell shoots for goodly distances despite the presence of the National League ball that is supposed to contain none of the jackrabbit substance of the American League pellet. If there was any rabbit in the ball, the Nats pinned it's ears back.

Cronin, Schulte, Goslin, Manush, Kuhel and Myer, right-handers and left-handers alike, slammed the ball to the distant corners and expressed no annoyance at the screwball, after taking their turns at the plate.

The Nats left for New York on the midnight train for a three-game series with the Yanks starting today. What had once shaped up as the most important series of the season, now is no more important to the pennant race than an exhibition game in Podunk.

Warm Up for "Big Five."

The series will serve as the final warm-up for Cronin's Big Five of his mound staff—Crowder, Whitehill, Weaver, Stewart and Russell. Crowder and Weaver are sched-

High Quest and Cavalcade, Entry, Run 1, 2 in $10,000 Havre de Grace Stake

Brookmeade Pair Pays 8 to 1

Wise Daughter Is Third, Two Lengths Back of Winner.

By Staff Correspondent.

HAVRE DE GRACE Race Track, Sept. 27.—The Royal Blue and White of the Brookmeade Stable dominated the finish of the $10,000 Eastern Shore Handicap here this afternoon. High Quest and Cavalcade, both the property of Mrs. Dodge Sloane, ran one, two in the 6-furlong sprint and they finished a length apart. Another length back, came Wise Daughter, favorite and hope of the Everglade Stable.

It was a burning dash by nine of the best 2-year-olds in the country and set a new record of 1:11 3-5 for the event.

Wise Daughter was first to show on top after the scramble out of the stall gate, with Hadagal second and High Quest third. This trio did the principle running to the far turn, where Hadagal dropped out of it and Wise Daughter went on, followed by High Quest. In the meanwhile Bellizzi was shaking some speed into Cavalcade, which broke last.

Wise Daughter Ahead.

Wise Daughter was still in front at the stretch turn, but Bobby Jones was bringing High Quest up with a rush on the outside. Cavalcade cut the corner at the swing to gain yards. Gilbert rode desparately on Wise Daughter but High Quest moved into the lead, never to be headed. Cavalcade, on the rail, took up the battle with Wise Daughter and won it to slide across behind his stablemates.

The great Jamestown of 1931 came back to the races today. Pointed for a comeback campaign, the big son of St. James displayed a sizzling sprint to defeat Character, Indian Runner and others over the 6-furlong course in 1:11 2-5. Sonny Workman had the mount and did not appear to be pressing his charge at the finish, although the winning margin was only a neck. Those who know their horses watched Jamestown as he returned to the judges' stand. There was no trace of the lameness that forced the star Widener representative into temporary retirement. He appeared fit as a fiddle as Workman bounced him back up the track. Prince Wick, at mountainous odds, led for three furlongs, but folded as Jamestown took the lead. Meade and Character moved up and gave a game but losing battle.

This satisfactory trial means Jamestown will meet his old rival, Equipoise, in the latter's alleged racing finale here on Saturday.

Modern Times Scores.

Modern Times made the first race no contest, sprinting into a lead at the start. On the far turn advantage was one of six lengths. Everfair made a mild challenge in the stretch but Williams' heavy whipping was futile. Soeur Blanche was third. Modern Times was played into favoritism and paid even money. Tipton rode the winner.

Jimmy Sullivan and Zembla teamed to win the second race in a closing burst of speed that beat Did She by a head. Flying Cherokee saved the place by a neck from Kindacorn, the favorite. Rush and Did She had their moments of pace setting, but Zembla's stretch speed decided the issue.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Strange as it seems, the Japanese military police hired Col. R. W. Thornberry, an American, to teach them their own special kind of self-defense—the art of jiu-jitsu. He is also credited with being the only foreigner holding a diploma from the Japanese government for mastering the art well enough to teach others.

How the colonel came to take up the Japanese art of wrestling is a weird story. I will tell it as it was told to me: According to Col. Thornberry, who is a physician, he and two friends in 1902 treated a young Oriental girl for an illness. While at the bedside he pushed up one of his sleeves, baring a tattoo mark on his arm. The mark—meaningless to him—was recognized by the girl as that of an Oriental cult. Her brother was a member of an opposing cult.

The colonel's two friends died shortly after of a mysterious poison, and Thornberry, though stricken, survived. He suffered reoccurring attacks of pain because of the poison which, they say in the East, would surely have killed him eventually had he not followed the advice of friendly Orientals who said that violent exercise was his only hope of health.

Accordingly, he took up jiu-jitsu, practicing it hour after hour, and day after day until the subtle poison left his system. For years, however, as the story goes, he was pursued by members of the cult until, somehow, they discovered that the mark on his arm was meaningless—and he was not the man they sought.

Tomorrow: The sleepless wonder.

Dear Al: Havre de Grace Race Track, Sept. 27.

Mighty tough pickings here. The retiring Bennings managed to squeeze two winners out of the card. I say "retiring" because if I don't strike my stride soon, I'll be asked to retire. However, as I have said before, the Salvation Army has a phrase for it. So I won't give up the ship. Don Meade kept one winner in front of Tony Tipton in the jockey race. Each had one winner and the score is now 16 to 15. Action, shipped away from here because he detests stall gates, won at Aqueduct, where the old-fashioned barrier is used. If you must play them, you might as well go to these.

BILL.

First race—I gave you Murmuring as a good thing and she was beaten only a head, after being virtually left at the post. Looks like the money in this field. Knight's Hope and Flight to complete the money picture.

Second race—Prince Pompey didn't have enough speed for Discovery, but fits in this sprint very well. May break on top and never be headed. Sir Ten has run in fast company.

District College Elevens Are Hard at Work for Saturday's Opening Contests

Callahan New Captain of Hoyas

G. U. Coach Pessimistic; Maryland Boasts Good Ends.

FRED CALLAHAN, Dedham, Mass., was elected captain of the Georgetown University Football Team yesterday at a meeting of the 1932 lettermen. He steps into the role previously conferred upon Tom Carolan, who failed to return to school this fall.

The new grid leader of the Hoyas is a center and has been a member of the squad for the past two years. His fine defensive play during the 1932 campaign stamped him one of the outstanding pivot men in the District.

Coach Not Optimistic.

For the first time in years, Georgetown will be anything but a favorite to cop the lid-lifter from Mount St. Mary's Saturday. This was the opinion of Coach Jack Hagerty as he watched his charges in an unimpressive scrimmage against the freshmen yesterday.

Injuries have knocked the props from any tentative starting line-up that the Hoya mentor had planned upon. The chief worry, of course, is the sprained wrist of Capt. Fred Callahan, which may hold him out of play until the Canisius game the following week.

Hagerty will continue light practice for the remainder of the week, with signal drills and short sessions at blocking and tackling.

Maryland Ends Good.

When the University of Maryland takes the field against St. John's of Annapolis Saturday at College Park in the opening football game of the campaign, it is confident it at least will be bigger and better in one department than it was last year.

End trouble, and no end of it, was one of the main factors in keeping down the Old Liners last season, but, unless the three sophs the Terrapins are counting upon this Fall to come up to expectations, they are certain to be much better fixed than last year.

They are Louis Ennis, Carl Stalfort and Bernie Buscher, all sophomores who have been showing up well during the past week at the wings. All stand close to 6 feet and tip the beam around 185. Ennis appears to have the left flank cinched, with Stalfort and Buscher putting up a merry battle for the right end spot.

Light Drills at C. U.

"Dutch" Bergman continued to polish off his starting regulars for their clash with La Salle Saturday. Due to the apparent crippled condition of the Birds, the Catholic U. mentor decided upon light drills in the place of a prearranged scrimmage with the freshmen outfit yesterday, and will continue such work on through Friday.

Marty Brill's Philadelphians are reported to be in fine shape and realizing that they will boost their stock considerably if they eke out a victory Saturday against the Brookland outfit, will be bent on bagging the game at all costs.

The wiley Cardinal coach has been spending much time working out a forward passing defense which La Salle is expected to use throughout the game.

With the exception of Capt. Jankowski at right half, Bergman is mum as to who will make up his starting line-up.

Colonials Work Hard.

George Washington is expecting anything but a light workout with Catawba Saturday afternoon. The Colonial coaches, after reading the accounts of the little school's battle last week-end with the strong North Carolina State team, decided on another stiff scrimmage with the freshmen yesterday afternoon.

If yesterday's varsity line-up that started against the frosh can be used as an indication as to who will take the field in the opener, then the following Colonial gridders will stack up with Vonder Bruege and Bill Parrish, ends; Pearce and Demming, tackles; Stuart and Hickman, guards, and Rathjen at the snapperback post. In the back field will be "Tuffy" Leemans, Nig McCarver, Finis Parrish and Capt. Lee Carlin.

Seven touchdowns were scored at will with Carlin and Parrish showing up in fine style. The scrimmage lasted but 20 minutes, the rest of the session being devoted to signal drills, blocking and tackling.

It was the snappiest workout the squad has had since returning from camp.

uled to work in today's game with neither pitching more than four or five innings.

The Nats are due back in the Capital Sunday, for the last game of the season, with the Athletics; but Manager Cronin has ordered his regular pitchers to remain in New York until the world series opener, Tuesday.

Their drill yesterday was in the nature of a relaxation from the dress rehearsals for photographers which has been the rule all week. Working in sweat shirts, and capless, the Nats looked like so many regamuffins compared to their well-groomed appearance in league games.

With the diamond again in shape, Cronin led his regulars through a long infield drill, the first in two days, and dismissed them after a short session at the bat.

Brawner's 74 Tops Field Of Columbia Qualifiers

James and Frost Runners-up for Medal in Club Title Event; Woodmont Women's Final Round Today.

JOHN F. BRAWNER, strictly a week-end golfer, installed himself as a big favorite to carry off honors in the Columbia Country Club championship yesterday by registering a 74 to win medal honors in the 18-hole qualifying round.

Brawner, who last year qualified for match play in the National Amateur at Five Farms only to lose to the eventual champion, Ross Somerville, in the first round, shot a 38 on the outgoing nine, and played beautiful golf on the stretch for a 36. His score was 4 over par. Brawner was even par for the second nine going to the eighteenth, but bad tee and second shots cost him a 5.

Match play will begin this morning, two rounds being scheduled today and two more tomorrow.

Third flight—Mrs. D. C. Gruver, bye; Mrs. D. A. McLenden, bye; Mrs. Byron Price beat Mrs. M. R. Palmer, 7 and 5; Mrs. L. Brubaker won by default.

Polo Favorites Given Scare By Cripple

WESTBURY, N. Y., Sept. 27 (AP).—Westbury, added starter in the United States open polo championships, today outrode and outscored a favored Greentree team through the early part of their semifinal match on International Field at the Meadowbrook Club, but faded in the later stages to let Greentree ride through to a 14-9 victory and the finals.

The winners upset conquerors of the defending championships, Templeton, in the first round, will meet Aurora for the title Saturday.

Led by C. V. (Sonny) Whitney, his broken finger in a cast and his rein hand bandaged, the surprising Westbury team jumped away to a three-goal lead in the first five minutes and held an advantage until the closing minutes of the fifth.

Tri-State Title Skeet Shoot Here Saturday

The Tri-State skeet shooting championship scheduled Saturday at the Montgomery Skeet Club grounds on the East-West highway is expected to draw virtually all of the outstanding shooters from Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Semifinal Play Today In Filipino Tournament

Unranked players will dominate the semifinals of the eleventh annual Filipino Open tennis tournament to be played this afternoon at 4 o'clock on the Monument courts.

Felix M. Silva will meet Porfirio Eugenio, champion of the Filipino Club for the past two years, and Felix Piniera, who so decisively trounced Arturo Tomelden, seeded No. 2 in the quarter-finals, will oppose Mariano Erana, champion of the Veteran's Administration.

Lucky Strike Bows.

Lucky Strike, defending champions, dropped three straight games to Rendezvous as the lid of the ladies' District duckpin season was pried off last night.

Bill Woods won three from Convention Hall; Arcadia took two from Petworth; Columbia two from Georgetown, and Recreation, two from Meyer Davis. Catherine Forney, of Rendezvous, had high individual set with 347, while Gladys Mills, of Petworth, bowled a 135 for high game. Columbia led in high-team game and high set, with 552 and 1,570, respectively.

Emerson Easy For Central Eleven

King's Play Features 23-0 Victory; Score in First Five Minutes.

BERT COGGIN'S Central High footballers continued their winning ways yesterday by soundly trouncing Emerson Institute at Central Stadium. The score was 23 to 0.

The Capital Hill eleven started down the field at the opening kick-off and registered a touchdown within five minutes when 15-year-old Billy Richardson crashed through tackle from the 4-year line.

King's Score Features.

A long end run good for 20 yards and a score was reeled off by George King for the outstanding piece of work of the day. King scored again in the fourth on a short line buck, after a steady march down the field. A pair of safeties, one in the first and another in the third, showed the Central line to be playing alert ball.

The line-up:

Central.	Position.	Emerson.
Wheedon	L. E.	Newman
Holmes	L. T.	Wallace
Pistolas	L. G.	Giller
Dunn	Center	O'Brien
Nicolopoulos	R. G.	White

President Cup Race Entry In Trial

MANY Gold Cup craft entered in the President's Cup race have arrived in Washington and are being given their preliminary tune-ups for the event, which is to be run tomorrow and Saturday.

John Shibe's Ethyl-Ruth III was given a limbering exercise on the Potomac yesterday and clicked off 77 miles per hour without being opened up. Armand D. Pugh, who will pilot the craft in the race, expressed some doubt regarding the ability of the craft to stay in the water due to its powerful motive power. It will be recalled that the Ethyl-Ruth III is powered by the engine from the ill-fated Miss Philadelphia, whose hull was not strong enough to carry the powerful motor.

George Reese and his El Logarto, which won the President's Cup race in 1931, and the National Sweepstakes and Detroit Gold Cup races this year, arrived yesterday. The craft will probably be given a workout on the Potomac today. The Delphine VI, defending champion, piloted by Bill Horn, is already here, ready to race Friday.

Commodore Horace Dodge's latest speed craft, the Delphine IX, will be piloted by the commodore himself, and is expected to play an important part in the event.

Tickets for the 5,000 seats in stands erected at Hains Point are on sale at the A. A. A., Seventeenth street and Pennsylvania avenue or the Willard Hotel. General admission seats will sell for 25 cents, reserved seats for 40 cents and a strip of three tickets granting admission to the stands for the Friday afternoon races, Friday night pageant and Saturday afternoon finals in the President's Cup race are on sale for $1.00.

Fans in World Series Contest Send in Many Forecasts, But There's Still Chance for You

Just Fill Out the Coupon; Perhaps Your Guess Will Top 'Em All.

SOMEWHERE in the more than 6,000 entries received to date in the popular Post world series contest there must be a prediction that is exactly or very nearly correct concerning the outcome of the initial game between the Nats and Giants.

The fans entered have guessed at almost everything, and if they are not right, it is because fate knows a few tricks with which they are not familiar.

One or another of the entrants has picked almost every pitcher in the New York and Washington line-ups to start the game, although Carl Hubbell and Gen. Alvin Crowder still hold the inside track in the predictions by a wide margin. Many of the fans are nominating moundsmen and behind-the-plate workers to succeed the starting players as they drop out, and are indicating on the inning-by-inning score just where the switches are to be made.

Many predictions being received are, of course, just shots in the dark, and there is still plenty of opportunity for smart embryonic manipulators of players to outguess Joe Cronin or Bill Terry.

All you have to do to try your luck at outfiguring the Nats' and Giants' managers is to fill in the form shown, giving your guess as to the score by innings, total runs, hits and errors, and the batteries for the first series game.

And if you are one of the three fans coming nearest to the box-score figures, the guest tickets are yours.

Young Stopped In Fourth by Ray Bowen

Technical K. O. Recorded at Laurel; Genaro, Gauzman Win.

DANCING between the raindrops that fell intermittently all evening, the blood and thunder boys managed to make the trip fairly worth while for the handful of intrepid fans who journeyed to Twin City last night to witness the "club fight" card.

Mickey Genaro started the action in the eight rounders by outboxing and outfighting his younger, but not stronger opponent—Tony Lopez. Genaro gave a very good account of himself inside, but Lopez managed to hold him fairly even at long range. The loser several times landed solid, well-timed blows to Genaro's chin, but the tough little old man waded right back in every time to sweep his younger opponent almost off his feet. Genaro removed his shoes after the second round and finished the fight in his bare feet to keep from slipping on the rain-soaked canvas.

Decision to Gauzman.

Joe Gauzman counter-punched a very good decision from Jimmy Tramberia, who abandoned almost entirely his weaving, crouching style and as a result turned in one of the best battles he has fought here in many months. Only when badly shaken up did Tramberia, who was apparently in splendid condition, resort to the tactics which make him so difficult to hit ordinarily.

Ray Bowen got a technical knockout over Pepper Young in the remaining eight rounder. Young, who no longer is, was unable to get started in time to connect with Bowen's glass jaw while it was still susceptible, and as a result got his right eye so badly cut that the referee refused to let him come out for the fifth round. The loser was down early in the first round for no count and again nine seconds before the bell from left hooks to the jaw. The bell rang just as the referee tolled off the fatal 10, saving Young a knockout in that round.

Roma Labona banged out a close decision over Andy Kelly and Soldier Clark fought out a nice win over George Essrick in the four rounders.

Houghton Ties Beach's 140 In Open

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 27 (Spl.).—Al Houghton, of Kenwood, defending title holder, and Ralph Beach, of Suburban, tied for the Maryland State open championship today with 36-hole scores of 140 at Five Farms.

Beach and Houghton split $150 offered for first and second.

Another record went by the boards when Dave Crook, Middle Atlantic champion, won low gross prize among the amateurs with 72—75—147. Dr. Larry Otell, Indian Spring, finished with 78—78—156.

Johnny Bass, Woodholme, led the assistant pros, with 71—76—147, while Bob Scott and Nate Mather shared the greenkeepers' prize.

The play-off is slated for Friday, at 2 p. m.

Grid Teams Meet.

The 135-pound section of the National Capital Football League will meet tonight at the Atlas Sports Shop, 827 D street northwest, at 8 o'clock. It is expected that 10 clubs will comprise this section.

Regatta Will Use Mechanical Timer

A new timing device will be used for the first time to clock the speed boats participating in the President's Cup Regatta races tomorrow and Saturday. A combination electric timer with a camera, a device first used to time airplane and Olympic races, is declared to be superior to former methods, as it entirely eliminates the human element of error.

The machine records time to one-hundredth part of a second and also a motion picture record of the finish. It is constructed around a tuning fork with a recording clock face of three concentric dials. The timing devices will be set up at both start and finish lines.

Eastern High Given Call For Title

Experts Select Veterans of "Big Chief" Guyon to Dethrone Tech.

(This is the second of a series of articles dealing with football prospects in the Washington public and prep schools.)

OF course "there's many a slip," &c., but Big Chief Charley Guyon's fine-looking outfit representing Eastern is being picked by experts as the logical successor to the perennial champion Tech outfit. It is admitted, however, that Hap Hardell and his lusty Tech gridsters will have something to say about that.

Here are reasons why a championship bee is buzzing in the bonnets, stetson and skull caps of the cohorts of Eastern:

Guyon has five lettermen on the forward wall from tackle to tackle, who really are good. At the pivot position Lewis again is on deck, while flanking him at guards are Wolfe and Boyd. Davis and Abshen roam about the tackle spots.

Not Bothered About Ends.

At ends, the redskin mentor has Jim Coughlin and Pete Thompson, both of whom saw considerable service last year. In the event that one of these wingmen fail to fill the bill, Tommy Nolan of the back field can be called upon to fill the breach.

Also, a veteran back field reinforced by two transfers is at Guyan's command. Carl Mills will direct Eastern's play in the game. For the quarter backs he'll have his brother, Joe Mills and Tommy Nolan as first stringers and the two new comers, John McCarthy and Bill Cadell, the Filipino, from St. John's and Tech respectively.

Lack of reserve strength is causing a slight flurry in the otherwise calm and collected brow of the "Big Chief." However, the quality of first stringers, providing they miss being cracked up, would gladden the heart of any high school mentor.

Aerial Defense Needed.

From a two-hour practice scrimmage early this week with Devitt Prep, Guyon learned that he has as slick a forward wall as he has ever boasted of, but the defense for an aerial barrage is sorely needed. The Preppers grabbed heaves out of the sky almost at will.

Eastern will have no set captain for the season, but will name one for each game, the honorary title probably being conferred at a banquet at the end of the season. This is something new.

Eastern's schedule follows:

Sept. 30, Episcopal High, in Alexandria; Oct. 6, Alexandria; Oct. 13, Central*; Oct. 20, Western*; Oct. 25, Washington-Lee; Oct. 31, Roosevelt*; Nov. 10, Tech*; Nov. 17, Gonzaga.

*Interhigh games played at Central Stadium.

Fine Field of 100 Swimmers in Meet

More than a hundred contestants, representing athletic clubs as far west as Los Angeles, will vie for honors in the Venetian pool of the Shoreham Hotel tonight. The meet, under the auspices of the President's Cup Regatta and sanctioned by the D. C. A. A. U., will begin promptly at 8 o'clock.

Among the well known entries are A. J. Callaghan, of the Los Angeles A. C., who swam on the national championship relay team at Chicago this summer; Johnny Broaddus, Wilson Teachers College, fancy diving expert; Rita Augusterfer, women's free-style water cutter; Lois Bates, women's fancy diver, who is also entered in the 100-yard breast stroke, and Leonora Taube, another fancy diving expert.

The events carded for this evening's water show for men are 50 and 100 yard free style, 300-yard medley relay and fancy diving. Women will compete for honors in the 50-yard freestyle, 100-yard breaststroke, 100-yard backstroke and fancy dive.

Gunboat Smith Mat Referee Tonight

Will Have Task Trying to Make Zaharias Forget to Use Knees.

PROMOTER JOE TURNER is stepping out tonight in staging his final rassle show of the outdoor season, for he not only has lined up five better-than-fair bouts, but he also is featuring a new referee—Gunboat Smith. The Gunboat was one of the ranking contenders for heavyweight boxing honors and, since Father Time caught up with him and put him out of ring action, he has made quite a reputation for himself as a boxing and mat referee.

In bringing the Gunboat to anchor in Griffith Stadium, Turner is making the newcomers face quite a test. He will be called upon to make George Zaharias, the Giant Greek, stop using his knees when he meets Jim McMillan in one of the cofeature bouts. No one has done anything about Zaharias' kneeing here and fans will be interested in seeing if the Gunboat checks this practice—and how.

Cofeature Promising.

In the other headline bout, two popular fellows exchange grips, Everett Marshall being booked to take on Dr. Karl Sarpolis, he of the flying scissors. Marshall has no particular hold which he features, but he is strong, scientific and willing and this bout promises much in the way of good, clean sport.

Another Marshall named Floyd, appears on the card, but he is one of those archvillains whom everyone roots against. He mingles with the former Mexican bull-fighter, Jacques Humberto, in one of the preliminaries. The others call into action Tom Alley vs. Milo Steinborn and Cliff (Swede) Olsen vs. Karl Davis.

No charge for escorted women fans, with kiddies under 16 getting in for the nominal levy of a quarter.

Walt Mason, Himself

Misguided Youth.

Tired Father now and then deplores the present taste in youngsters' books; the growing youth forever pores o'er tales of gangsters, gunmen, crooks. He follows up with bated breath the fortunes of some jazzy queen, 'mid battle, murder, sudden death, with all surroundings base and mean. It makes Tired Father sick and sad, it rends his heart with iron hooks, to contemplate a growing lad as he avoids the Rollo books. Tired Father, though, when he was young, loved heroes of the roughneck breed; before his nerves were all unstrung he read the novels of Mayne Reid. And in those books red murder stalked upon the lonely, windswept plain; by night the grim avenger walked, with more avengers in his train. The savages of fen and brake pursued the white man, on the run; they longed to burn him at the stake, which was their way of having fun. The white man then, in deep disgust, pursued the savages in turn; and some red Injun bit the dust when'er he made the powder burn. The scenery has known a change, to city streets from prairies gray; but stories were as weird and strange, as full of gore in father's day. Tired Father's likely to forget the stolen hour behind the barn, when he was bathed in clammy sweat, produced by some old Beadle yarn.

Accused Bank Officer Witness In Own Behalf

Paul V. Hitchins Testifies at Trial in Cumberland in Conspiracy Case.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 27 (Spl.).—Paul L. Hitchins, attorney and secretary to the board and a director of the Citizens Bank, Frostburg, who with his cousin Emery G. Hitchins, president, and Frank Watts, cashier, is on trial in U. S. Court here on indictments charging conspiracy to violate the national banking laws, was the first witness for the defense today.

He said Mr. Watts, cashier, usually made all loans, adding, applications for loans were at times held for a directors meeting. He admitted Watts had made loans without consulting anybody. He also said that to his knowledge, the board never refused any loans recommended by Watts. He admitted he had been a borrower at the bank and these loans were usually made by Watts after discussion with the directors. He said he paid 5 per cent interest on his loans, the rate having been arranged by Watts.

Questioned about reports sent to the Treasury, he said they were made up by Robert E. Watts, assistant cashier, son of the cashier, and were signed by the directors.

Questioned about a $113,000 stock transaction, Hitchins denied knowledge of the stock having been purchased by Watts until bank examiners had recommended its disposal. He said when examiners advised of the loss sustained by the depreciation of the stock, he agreed with other directors to take steps to cover it and continue operation of the bank.

Judge William C. Coleman, presiding, ruled that Samuel Simon was a competent witness, after the defense contended he was not a certified public accountant.

Simon testified he completed investigation of the bank April 29. He found several loans owed the bank which had been charged off. Explaining disposition of stock amounting to $113,000, which several bank examiners had criticized, Simon said the Union Trust Co., Baltimore, had loaned $52,000 to the bank, taking the stock as collateral.

An additional $39,000 had been "donated," he said, by Director Davisson, of the bank, and the remaining $22,000 of this amount was covered by notes from relatives of bank officials.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

The Weather and Sleep.

That children's sleep varies with the weather is the conclusion of Miss Eunice Pierce, of Cleveland, based on a study made in four nursery schools.

1. The length of time children sleep is variable.

2. The weather affects the length of time a child sleeps.

3. Children sleep noticeably longer on rainy days.

4. The length of the midday nap drops tremendously on the first day of severe weather change—either hot or cold.

5. Sleep tends to go back toward normal if the extreme hot or cold level lasts for more than one day.

6. Boys, as an average, tend to sleep longer than girls.

7. Sleep falls off markedly preceding an illness.

8. The 2 and 3 year olds do not sleep longer than the 4 and 5 year olds, as an average.

9. The sleep graphs of children from different sections of Cleveland, followed much the same curves.

By way of comment on these conclusions:

The rule that a child a certain age should sleep a certain number of hours a day is right, provided we remember that a large part of the children are exceptions. One child requires more sleep daily by hours than does the next one in the row.

The relative darkness and the monotonous character of the noises of a rainy day both induce sleep. However, thunder and lightning tend to make sleep less restful. The noise and light may not be enough to waken the child, but the impress registers on the brain. This is noticeable in graphic records of muscular and mental restlessness of sleeping children. Though the sleeper does not waken after a crash of thunder, the graph shows that he tossed considerably. Tossing is unconscious, but it records on the brain and lessens the restfulness of sleep.

The number of nerve endings in the skin is infinitely greater than the number in the eye and ear. Heat and cold affect these nerve endings. Nerve impulses are sent to the brain. These register as discomfort. Sometimes the discomfort is great enough to awaken. But the skin nerve endings have considerable capacity for adjustment. We become somewhat accustomed to "sleeping cold" or "sleeping hot."

Milk and Milk.

M. P. W. writes: Is milk fattening?

Reply.

You can get the question answered either way. In the milk propaganda now being spread over the country you will find that both sides are being pushed. If the chief demand is from those who want to put on weight, milk is recommended. The ladies who wish to remain slender are recommended to drink milk. Milk is a rather dilute solution and suspension of fats, proteins, carbohydrates, minerals and vitamins. It is easily digested and absorbed. If it is the sole source of food supply and is consumed in moderation the weight will be reduced. The same can be said of bread and water. If it is eaten in fair or considerable quantities along with an ample allowance of other food the result is usually an increase in weight. Whether milk causes an increase in weight or a decrease depends on how it is used.

Boilermakers Vote to Return In Plant Strike

Action Follows Order by President; Differences Await Settlement.

Striking boilermakers last night reached an agreement and will return to work today at the Central Heating Plant here.

Though the differences with employers remain to be arbitrated, the 32 men participating in the walkout voted to obey instructions of A. J. Franklin, international president, who said their withdrawal prevented other craftsmen from working.

About 200 men now are employed at the plant. L. W. Fuller, superintendent for the Rust Engineering Co., said the settlement would permit increasing the force to 450 men.

Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the National Labor Board, attempted to communicate with William L. Hutcheson, president of the carpenters' international. He intervened last week in the dispute between that trade and iron workers, which forced a shutdown on the new Interstate Commerce Commission-Labor Department Building, September 15.

Girl, 14, Vanishes Following Illness

Fourteen-year-old Marcia Louise Dixon yesterday ran away from her home at 4108 Ellicott street northwest.

Her mother, Mrs. Sophie Dixon, said she knew of no reason for her disappearance. She said the girl is of nervous temperament. Marcia was believed to have been without funds.

Mrs. Dixon said Marcia had been too ill to attend school. The girl has brown hair, brown eyes, and wore a green dress and black shoes.

Beltsville Boy, Hit By Car, Near Death

Harry Nichols, 17, of Beltsville, Md., is near death in Sibley Hospital from injuries received last night when he was struck by an automobile while riding a bicycle near his home. He was brought to Washington by a passing motorist. Physicians said he suffered a fractured skull, lacerations and bruises.

John R. Bullis, of Silver Spring, was held by Hyattsville police.

E. C. Graham to Address Business Men's Group

Edwin C. Graham, president of the new Hamilton National Bank, will address members of the Northeast Business Men's Association at a meeting at 9 o'clock tonight at the Northeast branch of the bank.

Roger J. Whiteford, general counsel for the new bank, also will speak.

Mercury Hits 89, 33-Year Record

Hottest Sept. 27 Since 1900; Cooler Today.

After one of the hottest September days on record yesterday, Washington is expected to gain respite from the heat wave today. The forecast calls for fair and cooler weather.

The temperature soared to 89 at 2 p. m. yesterday. That was the highest reading for September 27 in Weather Bureau records since a mark of 92 in 1900. The lowest was 68 degrees at 6 a. m.

The mercury reached 86 at 2 p. m. in New York City, surpassing by two degrees the record for September 27 established there in 1881. The average reading for this date there is 63 degrees, but the lowest yesterday was 69 at 5 a. m.

B'nai B'rith Lodge Hears Rothschild

Jewish business men are faced with a double responsibility these days, Louis Rothschild, director of the Washington Better Business Bureau, told members of the Argo Lodge, District chapter of the B'nai B'rith Society, in the Jewish Community Center, last night.

First is their duty to promote prosperity, and second their obligation to be so fair in their dealings that the world will condemn persecutions against their race, Rothschild said.

Harry Schipiro, Cincinnati, field representative of the B'nai B'rith, told members of the work the junior order of the lodge was doing.

Courtroom Assailant Gets 360-Day Term

A sentence of 360 days in jail was given James Otis Smith, colored, yesterday in Police Court after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of attacking his wife. Witnesses said Smith struck his wife as she was testifying against him in the Juvenile Court two weeks ago.

Lutheran Rite Nov. 10 On 450th Anniversary

The 450th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther will be observed by Lutheran church members of Washington with religious ceremonies at Constitution Hall on November 10. A bronze plaque of Martin Luther will be presented President Roosevelt in the ceremonies.

The Rev. Paul Scherer, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran Church in New York City, will speak. Dr. Hans Luther, German Ambassador to the United States, a descendant of the brother of Martin Luther, will appear on the program.

Long and Thin, But Plenty Poisonous

Even JoJo, the dog-faced boy, who was credited with "eating them alive," might hesitate before he made an "entre" of the inmates of this cage at the Zoo. There are thirteen green mambas, slim, fast and deadly snakes of West Africa, eight feet long and not much thicker than your thumb.

Holy Cats! 13 Green Mambas Park at the Zoo for a Spell

If That Isn't Thrilling! Listen, Pheasants Get Married!

When the late Edgar Wallace titled a story about a most dangerous and treacherous character, he called it "The Green Mamba."

And yesterday, expressmen played baseball with dynamite and called it quiet sport after delivering thirteen green mambas to the National Zoological Park.

Of course, there is argument as to which is the most deadly snake, but there is no answer to the contention the mamba is the fastest, most vicious and most intelligent, in addition to packing a venom second to none.

So Washington Zoo visitors today and henceforth will see the greatest collection of mambas in any zoo; since zoo workers gingerly made the baker's dozen at home in the reptile house.

Hot Off The Ticker.

Incidentally such concentrated wickedness has its price. Mamba quotations are about $150 each. So with the other breeds in the shipment, Dr. William H. Mann, director, calculates the Zoo has $2,000 worth of new inmates.

The prize package which Dr. Mann and his workers opened had more than mambas. Other snakes which took the journey from Camden, N. J., were two gaboon vipers, an African cobra and two "boomslangers."

A bit of description about the green mambas: They are from 6 to 8 feet long and slender as a whip. Their heads are small.

Tops of their slim bodies are dull greenish, and underneath yellow green. Part of the tail is a bright yellow.

Closely related to cobras, they have a hood and scales, especially those of the back, are large.

Live in African Trees.

According to Dr. Mann they take more lives than any other kind of serpent in Africa. They are at home in jungle trees.

Keepers at the Zoo heaved sighs of relief and took off their goggles—the mambas can spit like the famed spitting cobra—when the 13 at last were behind the glass and steel.

The gaboon vipers—no small shakes themselves as venom dispensers—were introduced as the zoo's one specimen of the breed.

The cobra, a small, black African, went in with the zoo's collection of three others, while the boomslangers rated a cage of their own.

When in Chicago Dr. Mann met a collector—J. M. Buck—not Bring-'Em-Back-Alive Buck—who offered loan of the collection as he is Africa-bound for more. So the snakes come here.

Zoo Social Notes.

A couple of weddings were celebrated at the zoo—in the pheasant colony. The single blessedness of the Lady Amherst male was changed with the arrival of three females. Also the female Reeves pheasant walked the aisle with a new male bird.

It couldn't be said exactly the union were "love matches" as the acquisitions were the result of a deal made by Dr. Mann—he traded a Japanese deer for the pheasants.

Million Added By Hargreaves In Slander Suit

Former Bank Official Here Increases Sum Asked in California.

Richard L. Hargreaves, former conservator of the Park Savings Bank, has added $1,200,000 to the $750,000 suit he has filed in Los Angeles, Calif., against six bank officials of the defunct First National Bank of Beverly Hills.

Hragreaves, the husband of Helen Ferguson, actress, was formerly a national bank examiner. After the bank holiday he was named conservator of the Park Savings. As a result of the allegedly slanderous statement of the defendants, he charges he lost his position as conservator.

He alleges, according to an Associated Press dispatch, that the dedendants with whom he was once associated in the Beverly Hills bank, had made statements imputing dishonesty and that he was not a competent bank executive.

As a result of the alleged slanderous statements, he charges, the Department of Justice made an investivation of him.

While in Washington, he lived at the Shoreham.

$80 Jewelry Theft Reported.

Leave Denied To Temporary U. S. Workers

Employes Dropped, Then Reemployed, Hit by Ruling.

Federal employes dropped from the service in the reorganization and temporarily reappointed are not entitled to leave during the temporary employment, Comptroller General J. R. McCarl ruled.

The question of leave was raised by the Department of Labor. Workers in the Immigration and Naturalization Bureaus were released by the consolidation of the units. All employes then were reappointed temporarily while selection was made of those to be kept.

These employes are not allowed to take used leave earned prior to the separation. Nor do they earn any leave while temporarily employed, McCarl ruled. If they are appointed permanently they are entitled to leave earned before their temporary employment and may also take leave earned while on the temporary rolls.

No Pay Increases.

McCarl also ruled that employes who resigned because of illness may be reappointed in the grade from which they resigned. If they are reappointed at a lower salary than that paid on their resignation, however, they can not receive a raise to the former salary.

This question was raised in the case of a nurse employed in the Tuberculosis Hospital here. She contracted tuberculosis and resigned. She was receiving $1,740 per year. After her recovery, she was reappointed in the same grade but to fill a vacancy paying $1,620.

Park Head Loses.

Another ruling denied the request of Frank T. Gartside, acting superintendent of Capital Parks, that his position be given the higher classification awarded to it by the Personnel Classification Board. The act of 1932 prohibited pay raises by reason of a change in classification. Mr. Gartside's classification was changed in December, 1932, because of additional duties.

Paymasters were directed to show on pay rolls the total compensation of temporary workers, including food and quarters allowances.

Antiwar Rally Of Europe Told

Workers Abroad Planning to Block Conflict, Says Delegate.

How workers and peasants in Europe are planning to stop the wheels of war was described to the Washington Chapter of the Congress Against War by Miss Dorothy Detzer, executive secretary of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, at a rally in the 1800 block of I street last night.

Miss Detzer, who attend the International Antiwar Congress in Amsterdam last year, said the delegates spent their time devising methods of tying up their governments by strikes in time of impending conflict.

The gathering last night was described as a "send-off" for the delegates to the National Congress Against War, meeting October 1-4.

Other speakers were Jack Zucker, of the National Students League, and Charles Spencer, representing the Communist party. Both described armed combat as the "tool of capitalism."

Struve, 15, of No. 15 East Woodbine street, Chevy Chase, Md., who was killed by the accidental discharge of a rifle Tuesday, will be held from the home at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Dr. J. Hillman Hollister, pastor of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church will officiate, and the boy's companions will be pall bearers. Interment will be in Rockville, Md.

Benefit Party at Retreat.

A benefit card party will be given at the Washington Retreat House, 4000 Harewood road northeast, tomorrow night by members of the Retreat League. Automobiles will meet guests at Michigan avenue and Harewood road.

Pork "Chop!"

D. C. Free Meat Quota Cut to Fraction.

The District's destitute will not feast so sumptuously on pork this winter as they expected.

Public Welfare Director Wilson yesterday was informed by the Federal Relief Administrator of a clerical error made in the District's allocation of surplus pork being bought by the Agriculture Department.

Instead of an alllotment of 2,210,000 pounds, for which the Federal Relief Administration was to pay $66,330 through the District, the local quota of pork is 190,000 pounds, which may be bought for $5,730.

C. C. C. Treat

70,000 Cigarettes Salvaged From Treasury Stove.

The reforestation army will have a smoke on John M. Moran, chairman of the destruction committee of the Treasury, who yesterday prevented 70,000 cigarettes from being "smoked" in an incinerator.

A St. Louis tobacco firm went bankrupt. The receiver wanted quick liquidation. There were $2,748 in revenue stamps on the stock. He asked a rebate on the stamps. The Internal Revenue Department instructed him to send the stamps to Washington. He did. But attached to each stamp was a package of cigarettes, 3,500 cartons of them.

The Government turned the stamps and the cigarettes over to Moran for destruction.

Moran did not see the wisdom of destroying the smokes with the stamps. So instead of burning the stamps, he decided to deface them by removing the cigarettes. The Army Quartermaster's Corps came to his rescue and did the job. The cigarettes now go to the reforestation army.

Clerk Admits Bank Shortage In Court Plea

Averill Jailed on $45,000 Theft Charge After He Helps Trace Loss.

Wilbur N. Averill, 32-year-old bookkeeper of the Northeast Savings Bank, last night formally admitted he had embezzled $45,000 from the bank.

The admission came when he was arraigned before United States Commissioner N. C. Turnage. Appearing without an attorney and disdaining the advice of friends that he secure a bondsman, Averill entered a plea of guilty. He was ordered held under a bond of $10,000 and was committed to the District Jail to await grand jury action.

The warrant issued by Commissioner Turnage times the embezzlement as of February 28, 1933. Although auditors have gone over the bank's books since then, the shortage was not discovered until Tuesday night. Officials of the bank called Averill at his Hyattsville, Md., home, and he admitted he had taken the money, signing a statement to that effect.

Yesterday he was asked, by phone, to come to the District and surrender. After being taken into custody he went to the bank and helped Eugene C. Sauer, special agent of the Department of Justice, trace the shortage through books covering the last 10 years.

The shortage is covered by a surety bond, bank officials said.

While part of the assets of Northeast Savings are used with those of six other institutions in forming the Hamilton National Bank, the shortage will have no affect whatever on Hamilton funds, officials said yesterday.

Smoker Raided By Vice Squad

Motion Picture Machine and Alleged Gambling Equipment Seized.

In a spectacular raid on a "smoker" run jointly by members of Costello and Victory Posts, of the American Legion, at Pythian Temple, the vice squad late last night seized a motion picture machine, alleged gambling equipment and arrested about 20 men.

More than 300 men were crowded into the basement of the temple when police entered, breaking up the exhibition of an alleged obscene picture. Various gambling machines and schemes also were in operation, police said.

The smoker was the final money-raising enterprise of members of the drum corps for defraying expenses of delegates to the national convention in Chicago next week.

Owner of Century-Old Hotel Sued at 80 for Wife's Support

Court Told "Joe" Schladt Is $160 Behind After Years of Paying.

Complaining her 80-year-old husband, "Old Joe" Schladt, proprietor of the historic West Washington Hotel, whom she married 54 years ago, had fallen $160 behind in his voluntary maintenance payments, Mrs. Sarah Schladt yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to compel him to resume support.

They separated 16 years ago, and until recently "Old Joe" gave her $40 a month.

Her attorney, E. Hilton Jackson, asked the court to issue an order for Schladt to pay up.

Mrs. Schladt lives with her daughter, Mrs. Rose Dingman, 205 D street northeast.

Schladt has been proprietor of the old hotel at 1238 Wisconsin avenue for 50 years. He succeeded his father, who operated the hotel for another half century.

Many of the original furnishings of the hotel still are in use. In its early days the hostelry was patronized by the Capital's most famous personages.

Letter Pieced Together Gives Clew in Robbery

Small bits of paper pieced together by Detective Sergt. Elmer Lewis, of the police robbery squad, resulted in the arrest of a suspect in a recent robbery at the Raleigh Hotel.

The pieces made a letter which led to the arrest yesterday of Daniel F. Holmes, 23, of 324 C street southeast. Holmes, police said, was identified as the man who registered at the hotel, ordered $71 worth of photographic equipment sent to his room and then tied and gagged the messenger.

Two Accused Capital Firms Retain Eagles

119 Washington Houses Report New Jobs for 1,726.

Two of the three local employers threatened with removal of blue eagles by the District Compliance Board of the NRA made satisfactory readjustments yesterday, it was announced by Raymond J. Walter, executive officer of the board.

The third employer will be considered by the District Recovery Board at its meeting Tuesday. The two employers operate a barber shop and a beauty parlor, respectively. The pending case involves a restauranteur.

Washington pay rolls have been increased by $90,238 since July 1 by employment of 1,726 persons by 119 local employers, Walter announced. The 119 employers are the first to report in a canvass of 500, selected from the nearly 10,000 employers who received blue eagles here.

A number of employers said that while they have not taken on new employes, they have kept those who would have been dismissed.

Policeman Fined For "3d Degree"

Striking Colored Woman Costs Officer $50.

Found guilty of striking a colored woman he was questioning at the Fourth Precinct Station, Policeman John G. Middlethon was fined $50 by a police trial board yesterday.

Middlethon was accused of having struck Dorothy Wood, of Arlington, Va., following her arrest several days ago. She failed to appear against the officer.

Charges brought against Policeman Lonnie Tompkins, of the First Precinct, were dismissed when the complainant failed to press prosecution. William Cook, of 350 Anacostia road southeast, testified he had been wrong in making charges against Tompkins.

August Sales Of Department Stores Jump

Gains Were 12.1 Per Cent Above Month in 1932, Survey Reveals.

Washington department stores last month increased sales by 12.1 per cent over August, 1932.

This good sign was revealed last night in a survey by Federal Reserve banks covering all department stores in the Fifth Federal Reserve District.

An average gain of 20.8 per cent was noted throughout the district which, besides Washington, embraces Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the Carolinas.

Baltimore led with an increase of 30.3 per cent, and Richmond, 23.4.

For the first eight months of the year, sales in the reserve district, however, were 9.8 per cent below those for the corresponding period of 1932, Washington's decline being 11.7; Richmond's, 5.8; Baltimore, 9.2, and other cities, 8.2.

The stock turnover in August was .246 for Washington, .26 for Baltimore and .355 for Richmond.

Fear Ascribed To Milk Union

Producers Forced to Form Their Own Coperative, Seal Hears.

Fear of the National Dairy Products Corporation forced producers to form the Eastern States Marketing Association for the Washington and Baltimore markets, Elwood H. Seal, special counsel to the Senate Milk Investigating Committee, was informed yesterday.

I. W. Heaps, marketing agent of the association, told Mr. Seal the producers were forced to organize both markets. When National Dairies came to Washington, he said, it refused to cooperate with producers for this area.

The big corporation then started to purchase dairies in Baltimore, he added, and the producers for both markets banded together in mutual protection, so that cheaper milk could not be shifted from market to market, thereby breaking down the producers' cooperative.

Heart Sufferer Aided Again by Rescue Squad

For the third time in a month, the fire rescue squad was called last night to administer oxygen to Julian Roman, 51, of 63 Princeton place, who was in a critical condition from a heart ailment.

Oxygen administered by the squad saved Toman's life on two other occasions when attending physicians had given up hope for his life.

2 Boy Cyclists, One on Skates, Hurt by Autos

Fractured Skulls, Leg and Arm Toll of Mishap; Woman Held.

Struck by automobiles while riding bicycles and roller skates in the streets, three boys were seriously injured yesterday.

James Roberts, 11, of 9 Sixth street northeast, most seriously injured of the three, skated into the path of an automobile early last night at Third street and Maryland avenue northeast. At Casualty Hospital, he was said to have a skull fracture, internal injuries, and a compound fracture of the left leg. His condition is critical. The driver of the car, Loran Messick, 1318 Oran street northeast, was not held.

At Sixteenth and W streets northwest, Fred Young, 11, 2015 Portland street northwest, was knocked from his bicycle by a car driven by Miss Harven W. Ullure, 27, 2410 Twentieth street northwest. The boy was treated at Children's Hospital for a possible skull fracture, and a fractured left wrist. Miss Ullure was held at the Third Precinct Station pending outcome of the boy's injuries.

Joseph B. O'Connor, 13, son of Joseph O'Connor, Interstate Commerce Commission employe, was seriously injured when knocked from his bicycle near his home at 3002 Rodman street northwest. The driver of the car, Maj. James R. Hudnal, surgeon at Walter Reed Hospital, took the boy to Walter Reed, where he was treated for a fractured left thigh, and later removed to Emergency Hospital.

Court Free Wife In Perjury Case

Mate's Charge on Veteran Compensation Discussed

Charge of perjury, preferred against Mrs. Belle Dunkle, Burlington Hotel, by her husband, Claude C. Dunkle, 1606 G street southeast, was dismissed yesterday by United States Commissioner N. C. Turnage.

Mrs. Dunkle was accused of swearing she got only $18 a month from the Veterans' Administration as disability compensation, while, it was shown, she is paid $80 a month. The Commissioner held the mistake had been honestly made in transcribing Mrs. Dunkle's statement into affidavit form.

The husband obtained the warrant in July.
